'70 ELECTION

Ripon Society's Stinging Report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Ripon Society Saturday described 1970 White House campaign tactics as "a bumbling and exclusionary political strategy" that President Nixon must abandon to avoid defeat in 1972.

The society, a liberal GOP organization, released its analysis of the 1970 election at a news conference held by President Josiah kLee Auspitz and Chairman Howard F. Gillette Jr.

It said the Republican performance this year was the worst since 1964 and "a continuation of the strategy on which it is based will make Mr. Nixon a one-term President."

"Some face-saving explanations already have been heard to prove that the election was really a victory," the survey said.

Auspitz said "Republican moderates" need reassurance and may have to disassociate themselves from Nixon to insure their own reelection. He cited Republican tactics that offended the moderates and said:

Auspitz said Nixon had earned unified Republican support with many of his policies. He described Nixon as "the best foreign policy President of the 1960s" and said he has an important but still unfulfilled program of domestic and administrative reform.

"Yet his politics have failed him," the analysis said.

Auspitz dismissed administration claims to an "ideological" majorty in the Senate and said there was little change before and after the election.

He also rejected GOP arguments that the administration had withstood the normal mid-term losses of the party in power and said the averages applied to the House not the Senate.

A table was produced showing that the party electing a President by a landslide in elections going back to 1920 had lost an average of eight or nine Senate seats six years later. Inasmuch as Lyndon B. Johnson won a landslide victory six years ago, Auspitz said the GOP could have expected to gain the seven seats it needed to take control of the Senate.

He said Republicans failed to pick up a single Democratic Senate seat west of the Mississippi in 10 chances.

"In every western vulnerable Democratic seat a similar pattern emerged," he said. "The GOP staked out a firm law and order position; the Democrat moved close to it, insinuating all the while that Republicans were trying to profit from violence."

Auspitz credited Adlai E. Stevenson III with a masterful campaign in this pattern in unseating Sen. Ralph T. Smith, D-Ill. He said Stevenson won 65 per cent of the blue collar vote, 64 per cent of the Catholics and ran well in the Republican suburbs.

"Thus did the Democrats

U.S. Snubs Soviets Twice On Holiday Over Generals

MOSCOW (UPI) — The United States snubbed the Soviet Union twice today on Russia's biggest national holiday. The acting American ambassador boycotted both a Red Square military parade and a Kremlin reception.

The United States was protesting Soviet refusal to free two U.S. Amy generals and a major whose plane strayed into Russian territory three weeks ago.

The Soviets celebrated their 53rd birthday with a parade of military power and a pledge that Communism soon will put a television set in every parlor.

The nation highlighted the 53rd anniversary of the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution with the traditionol parade of military hardward through Red Square, a display ranging from jeeps to intercontinental ballistic missiles that Western military analysts predicted would reveal nothing new.

At precisely 9:58 a.m., Communist party general secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev led the collective Soviet leadership onto the reviewing stand atop V.I Lenins red marble tomb in a light mist of falling snow. Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and President Nikolai V. Podgorny followed him, their black fur hats powdered with white flakes.

Thousands of Muscovites and foreigh dignitaries jammed the square splashed with red bunting in 20 degree weather while countless thousands of others filed toward the square in tributary parades down Moscow's boulevards.

Top-ranking U.S. diplomats in Moscow stayed away from the Red Square celebration under State Department orders to show American displeasure with Soviet failure to release two U.S. Army generals and a major held captive two and a half weeks in Armenia.

On the eve of the celebrations, the Communist party leadership told the Soviet people they had much more to cheer about than a mighty armed forces — the prospect of a "good life" full of material benefits much like those coveted by bourgeois householders.

Mikhail Suslov, the party's chief ideologist, said in a Kremlin speech a boom in consumer goods production and a swelling of personal incomes were among the strongest points of Russia's economy.

"Every second family has a television set and a washing machine and every third family has a refrigerator," Suslov told the Kremlin palace crowd to heavy applause.

"In a few years, every family will have a television set, a washing machine and a refrigerator."

Western military sources who watched the Soviets rehearse the parade in icy winds and snow said in advance it appeared to be an exact duplicate of last years parade and held "no surprises" for Western intelligence.

Their predictions stripped the show of the suspenseful and ominous "sneak preview" flavor it held in previous years, when the non-Communist world got its first glimpses of Nikita S.Khrushchev's first ballistic missiles, the Surface-to-Air (SAM) rockets now deployed in Egypt and Vietnam and other Soviet armaments.

These items and more, a rough total of about 328 pieces of military equipment including

Denial To Any G.M. Contract

DETROIT (UPI) — The United Auto Workers has asked all members of its General Motors council to come to Detroit Wednesday. But union President Leonard Woodcock denies reports that an end to the 54-day-old strike against G.M. may be at hand.

The council has the power to recommend that union members accept or reject a new contract offer if one is put on the table. Its presence in Detroit could pave the way for speedy action on any tentative settlement UAW bargainers reach in the next few days.

WEEK'S MOVEMENTS

There has been movement on both sides during the past few days on the major, national economic issues, leading to an intensified and more optimistic atmosphere at the main bargaining table.

However, there has been no sign the negotiators are going into marathon sessions. That, together with a news blackout inposed on main table negotiations one week ago, is the traditional sign a settlement is at hand, subject to ratification by the union's membership.

In calling the 350 delegates of the UAW's G.M. council to a meeting in Detroit next Wednesday, UAW President Leonard Woodcock said Friday, "additional local settlements that can be concluded now can help us in our efforts to achieve a national agreement."

DENIES REPORT

He denied reports that an end to the strike, which has idled more than 400,000 G.M. workers, was "imminent."

In a telegram to the G.M. council members — the top officials of the 155 union locals at G.M. plants around the nation and regional officials — Woodcock said, "newspaper and other speculation about the imminent settlement are currently without foundation."

The real import of Woodcock's telegram appeared to be designed to make sure the local officials don't relax, thinking a national settlement is near, and wait for it rather than working on their own local agreements.

By Friday night, 74 of 155 bargaining units in the United States and two of seven in Canada, had come to terms. But G.M. officials have repeatly said they want enough local settlements out of the way before reaching a national contract agreement so the company can resume normal operations once the new contract is ratified.

One industry sources, commenting on the sudden renewed activity in national bargaining Thursday and Friday, said there was movement in all the major areas on both sides. Those areas included a first year wage increase, union demands for unrestricted cost-of-living allowances in the

Massive Push Aimed At Reds In Cambodia

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Cambodian and South Vietnamese task forces were trying to link up today for a major offensive against Communist troops in the provinces south of Phnom Penh.

Military sources here in Phnom Penh said more than 7,000 South Vietnamese and 3,000 Cambodian troops were involved in the joint operation.

South Vietnamese sources in the Cambodian capital said the campaign was expected to last three weeks.

"It is a very big operation," one South Vietnamese source said. "There are other and smaller ones that we are carrying out in Cambodia at the present time, but this is the big one."

The South Vietnamese task force thrust into Cambodia early Friday in what was described as the largest operation by Saigon units in Cambodia since the drive against border sanctuaries last May.

First reports said "several thousand" South Vietnamese soldiers were involved. The South Vietnamese command in Saigon said today 1,500 men crossed the border in the new push, joining 1,000 South Vietnamese Marines already in Cambodia. But Cambodian intelligence sources said the force was bigger and included four battalions of Rangers, four armored cavalry regiments, two Marine battalions, two militia battalions and elements of the 9th Infantry Division.

The precise location of the offensive was not disclosed for security reasons. The South Vietnamese task force was not disclosed for security reasons. The South Vietnamese task force made its crossing through the Plain of Reeds, an area of flatlands which the Communists have used as an infiltration route iinto the Mekong Delta.

No major contact was reported in the drive south of Phnom Penh but Cambodian headquarters reported a clash 11 miles northeast of the capital this afternoon. It broke out when Cambodian troops drove into Communist occupied areas around the Mekong River town of Prek Tameak. No casualty reports were available.

U.S. spokesmen in Saigon announced the turnover of a major coastal patrol operation in the Gulf of Thailand to the South Vietnamese, and said they also were bringing home about 1,600 more American servicemen from the war theater.

Plans for a new Cambodian drive in January were disclosed by Gen. Do Cao Tri, commander of the South Vietnamese Third Military Region, who also is responsible for Vietnamese operations in Cambodia east of the Mekong River.

Dayan For Resuming Talks Under U.N. Eye

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said today he favors resumption of Israeli-Arab talks under U.N. auspices as the only way to peace in the Middle East. Israel broke off the talks in September to protest an alleged Egyptian missile buildup along the Suez Canal.

Dayan spoke in the Israeli port city of Haifa as a prominent Cairo newspaper editor said in an editorial that Egypt reserves the right to revoke the two-day-old extension of the Middle East ceasefire any time it sees fit.

But the truce held today, and Dayan's statement seemed to be conciliatory.

"There is no other way to end the war except by talks and agreement," Dayan said in a reference to the mediation mission of Dr. Gunnar V. Jarring, the Swedish diplomat appointed by U.N. Secretary General Thant to find a way out of the Arab-Israeli dilemma.

"Israel must jump into very cold water, water containing blocks of ice." Dayan said if Israel made the "jump" it would be able to swim.

Dayan said the major "blocks of ice" were the Soviet Union, the U.N. call for Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab lands and "the unwillingness of our (Arab) neighbors to make peace."

It was not clear whether Dayan meant that Israel should drop its demand for a rollback of Soviet-supplied missiles along the Suez Canal as a condition for a resumption of the Jarring talks.

Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir said Friday that Israel's position was not changed. Dayan has disagreed in the past with some government policy.

Ihsan Abdelkoddous, editor of the weekly Akhbar Elyoum, said in an editorial acceptance of the 90-day extension was "not an agreement between us and any quarter but a unilateral decision we took. The same goes for Israel.

"Because this was a unilateral decision on our part, it is our

Bolinas Readies Salvo On Lagoon Quarantine

Bolinas is up in arms because of a critical business slump, which residents blame on the two-month-old county quarantine of Bolinas Lagoon.

Bolinas residents are expected to appear before the Marin County Board of Supervis Tuesday to deliver a blast at the county, particularly health officials.

Jose A. Silva, president of the Bolinas Community Public Utility District, has addressed a blistering letter to the supervisors, charging that transient living caused a hepatitis outbreak in the community, not the sewage discharge into Bolinas Lagoon.

Transients should have been ousted years ago when residents began complaining about cars and vans being used for habitation without water or tiolet facilities, Silva declared.

"The statement has been made that the dumping of sewage in the lagoon waters is the chief factor responsible for the recent outbreak of hepatitis, with the blame put on the Bolinas Community Public Utility District," said Silva.

Since sewage has been dumped at the same location since 1906, without serious consequences, why hasn't this sudden, critical health problem arisen before, asked Silva.

"One of the answers to that question is the living conditions of some of the people in Bolinas. People are permitted to live in cars, trucks, vans and vehicles without any water or toilet facilities."

He listed four specific cases of van-living which were reported to the county health department, and demanded that the county crack down.

He said busienss is suffering and property values dropping at an alarming rate.

In late September owners of most of Bolinas' downtown businesses were interviewed by the Independent-Journal. At that time the merchants expressed serious concern about the economic future of the town.

Jack Pepper, owner of J. R. Pepper General Merchandise, estimated the quarantine is costing him $1,000 a week. Owners of other businesses indicated business was down 25 to 50 per cent.

Have Soviets Resumed Killer Probe Tests?

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Soviet Union apparently has resumed tests of a killer satellite which could destroy orbiting enemy weapons or reconnaissance satellites, U.S. space experts said Saturday.

The tests were detected by experts here during an 11-day Soviet experiment, Oct. 20-Oct. 30, involving the Soviet Cosmos satellites 373, 374 and 375.

During these experiments, Cosmos 373 acted as an intruding enemy satellite and Cosmos 374 and 375 were launched to intercept and inspect it with the capability of destroying it.

The experiments ended with the explosion in orbit of satellites 374 and 375. This scattered numerous fragments in space which U.S. monitors are still tracking.

The experiment, the experts said, seemed to be similar to a 12-day series of experiments carried out Oct. 19, 20 and Nov. 1 in 1968 with Cosmos 248, 249 and 252. In this experiment Cosmos 248 acted as the intruder and Cosmos 249 and 252 played the role of inspector-destroyer satellites.

The experts said this type of military capability has been neglected by the United States.

The magazine Aviation Week and Space Technology will report in its Monday issue, that the explosion could have been conventional chemical blasts used in setting off nuclear weapons.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

'A Long Haul'

HELSINKI (UPI)—The Soviet Union is set for "a long haul" in the negotiations with the United States on nuclear arms limitations, conference sources said today.

The two super powers still are trying to find "a common meeting ground" which could provide the basis for agreement of nuclear weapons curbs, U.S. delegation sources said.

The signs were that such a joint basis is not in sight yet and consequently concrete accords at this session seem unlikely.

Tea Time, Too

LONDON (UPI) — Thieves who cut and burned their way into the vaults of Lloyds Bank, aided by the noise of Guy Fawkes Day fireworks, paused for tea before leaving with loot that could amount to tens of thousands of dollars, police said today.

The thieves opened 95 safe deposit boxes and departed with cash, jewelry, rare coins and stamp collections in a robbery Thursday that may have taken all night to complete, bank manager Guy Piddlocke said.

"They were in there for some time," a police source said. "When the detectives got inside the vault they disocvered the thieves had used some of the staff's tea and milk to make some tea. We're now checking for fingerprints on the two dirty teacups."

'Phoney Revolution'

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—San Francisco State College President S.I. Hayakawa believes militant students are engaged in a "phoney revolution" because society fails to provide enough challenges for them.

Speaking Friday at a convention meeting of the Wisconsin Educational Association here, Hayakawa of Mill Valley said he was referring to "verbally bright kids from the upper middle class who think of themselves as elite, intellectual aristocrats who believe they are entitled to rule."

Still No Verdict

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—There is still no verdict in the Los Siete murder trial.

The seven men and five women who have pondered the case since Monday had the legal instruction relating to "aiding and abetting" read to them for a third time Friday.

The defendants are charged with shooting officer Joseph Brodnik on May 1, 1969, when he and another undercover officer were investigating a burglary.

Strike Continues

HONOLULU (UPI) —A strike affecting 10 resort hotels on three islands is 30 days old today with no end in sight.

Three hotels—the Kaanapali Beach on Maui, King Kamehameha on Hawaii and Hanalei Plantation on Kauai—have been closed because of the strike by the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (ILWU).

Two-thousand workers have picketed those hotels and others which have been operating with limited services.

Many Didn't Vote; Figures For State

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans voted in record numbers in the midterm elections but fewer than 50 per cent of eligible voters cast ballots, estimates showed today.

The estimates, made by state election officials, placed the total voter turnout at about 57.6 million. The figure compared to the 1966 off-year election vote of 52,902,000. Officials said population growth apparently accounted for the gain.

While the number of voters increased, the total represented only 46.5 per cent of the estimated 124,018,000 Americans eligible to vote. About 46.3 per cent voted in 1966 and 46.7 per cent in 1962. In the 1968 presidential election, 61.8 per cent of the eligible voters cast ballots.

In California, nearly 90,000 fewer persons voted in the 1970 general election than in 1966 although about 365,000 more voters were registered this year, according to the Secretary of State's office.

Despite winning the governorship and most of the constitutional offices, the Republican Party lost control of the Legislature in Tuesday's election. The GOP, ironically, had predicted its candidates would be helped by a low voter turnout.

The Secretary of State's office said Friday that semi-official returns showed 6,390,232, or 74.5 per cent, voted this year as compared to 6,605,866, or 79.19 per cent in 1966—the last gubernatorial election. Officials noted, however, that final returns probably will put the 1970 voter figure closer to 6.5 million.

There were 8,706,347 persons registered to vote in Tuesday's election while 8,340,868 had been registered in 1966.

The final returns, due to be completed within a few weeks, are expected to show that about 87,000 fewer persons voted in this year's election than cast ballots in 1966 although there were about 365,000 more persons registered.

Late compilations Friday showed Democrats appeared to have won a Senate race in Indiana, a House contest in Kentucky and the governorship of Oklahoma. But the outcome of governor races in Maine and Rhode Island remained in doubt.

Sen. Vance Hartke claimed re-election to the Indiana Senate seat on the basis of a 4,249 vote margin in complete but unofficial returns. A spokesman for the two-term senator said the actual figure was "over 6,200" but a spokesman for his opponent, Rep. Richard Roudebush, said the Republican had won by at least 10,000 votes. Election officials are expected to certify the results Wednesday.

Republican Gov. Dewey Bartlett asked for a recount of votes cast in the Oklahoma race. He was the apparent loser by 2,819 votes to Democrat David Hall. It was expected to take from two to three weeks to complete the recount.

In Kentucky, a count of absentee ballots apparently gave victory in the state's 3rd congressional district to Democratic State Sen. Romano L. Mazzoli. Mazzoli led GOP incumbent Rep. William O. Cowger by 211 votes, and a recount was ordered.

In Rhode Island, a recount already was under way. Incumbent Democratic Gov. Frank Licht led Republican Herbert F. Desimone by about 2,500 votes. About 7,500 absentee ballots remain to be tabulated.

Incumbent Democratic Gov. Kenneth M. Curtis led Republican James S. Erwin by about 700 votes in Maine. State officials scheduled a recount starting Nov. 23.

In balloting for state legislators, Democrats had gained control of the legislatures in 23 states and Republicans in 17. In the other states, control was split or the houses were evenly divided.

Political leaders continued to assess the results of the election, and the White House's chief political strategist for the South said Friday Democratic claims that President Nixon's "Southern strategy" had been repudiated were "a bunch of Hooey."

Harry S. Dent, former aide to Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said the administration made ideological gains in the South Tuesday, if not by party. Dent conceded, however, that given a choice of two opposing conservatives, southerners tend to vote for the Democrat.

Murder Charged Against Militants

DETROIT (UPI) — Fifteen young black militants who barricaded themselves in a Black Panther headquarters after the fatal shooting of a Detroit policeman Oct. 24 will stand trial on charges of first-degree murder and conspiracy to commit first-degree murder.

The 15 had been held without bond after their arrests following a nine-hour siege of the home on Detroit's near West Side.

They were to have undergone a preliminary examination Thursday to determine whether thy must stand trial, but a 17-member Wayne County citizens grand jury Thursday handed down indictments on the two charges.

Professors Urged To Keep Dissent Out Of Classrooms

BERKELEY (UPI) —The nation's leading orgainzation of university professors has urged its 90,000 members to keep disruptive political and social dissent out of the classroom.

Dr. Sanford Kadish of the University of California, president of the Council of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP), released a Council statement Friday on "freedom and responsibility."

The policy statement, unanimously approved by the elected AAUP Council, warned that the freedom to dissent 'may not be carried out in ways which injure individuals or damage institutional facilities or disrupt the classes of one's teachers or colleagues."

The statement encouraged college and university faculty "to assume a more positive role as guardian of academic values against unjustified assaults from its own members."

The statement condemned teachers who misuse their classroom authority and who award credits on any basis other than academic performance.

"It is a teacher's mastery of his subject and his own scholarship which entitle him to his classroom and to freedom in the presentation of his subject," the statement said. "Thus, it is improper for an instructor persistently to intrude material which has no relation to his subject, or to fail to present the subject matter of his course as announced to his students and as approved by the faculty in their collective responsibility for the curriculum."

Any professor who feels his duty as a "moral agent" requires him to use his classroom for political or social purposes outside the scope of his academic duties should either request a leave of absence or resign, the statement said.

The AAUP Council also called on college and university teachers to "join with other members of the academic community in the development of procedures to be used in the event of serious disruption" and to insure faculty "consultation in major decisions, particularly those related to the calling of external security forces to the campus."

A preliminary hearing has been set for Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court for Terrence D. Maguire, 24, of San Francisco, accused of having a tear gas weapon when arrested by the California Highway Patrol last Saturday.

Wildcat Strike Keeps Cable Cars In The Barn Despite Long Talks

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A wildcat strike with racial overtones kept the city's cable cars off the streets again today.

Despite hours of negotiations Friday involving Mayor Joseph Alioto and Police Chief Alfred J. Nelder, the famous hill-climbing cars stayed in the barn.

The cable cars came to a halt Thursday night in the aftermath of a brawl with police in which two operators and a conductor were arrested. The striking drivers have demanded that charges be dropped and that an unbiased group not in the police department investigate the arresting officers' conduct.

The fight erupted after an inbound Powell-Mason car collided with a truck in the North Beach Area. Descriptions of what followed vary widely, but in the course of it, more than 30 police officers were at the scene, cable car traffic came to a full halt and three men were arrested.

Charged with battery and resisting arrest were Robert L. Coats, 29, and LeRoy Hagler, 29, operators of the car involved in the crash and Phillip Alberto, 25, gripman on an outbound cable car that was held up by the collision.

Alioto first met with gripmen in a noisy confrontation that got nowhere, but then met with union representatives, whom he termed "responsible" in his office.

He said that Police Chief Nelder would investigate the incident but said "the charges will not be dismissed. I don't care what happens. We will not compromise on that. If we have to take a strike by people who can't be controlled by their union, that's OK by me."

Alioto said that the walkout was part of an internal union problem involving the Black Caucus, which appeared to be heading the shutdown movement.

For some time the group, with strong support in the 100-man cable car division, has been challenging the local Transport Workers Union representing the whole 1800-member Municipal Railway System and demanding it become more militant on social issues.

Patrolman Arthur Orrante, who is white, said he decided to arrest Coats after truck driver Louis Knight, 29, of Gate 5, Sausalito, said Coats tried to assault him. The conductor "gave me a bad time," Orrante said, and Alberto stepped in. Orrante said Hagler and patrolman George Zube later scuffled.

THURBER TRIAL

Six Prospective Jurors Dismissed

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Six prospective jurors were dismissed yesterday as selection of a jury continued in the trial of Frank J. Thurber in San Francisco Superior Court.

Thurber, 45, of San Bruno, is charged with murdering Independent-Journal employee Allan W. Daly last July.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Pierre Merle dismissed one prospective juror, Dorothy Martini, with a peremptory challenge after she said her husband was a member of San Francisco Typographical Union 21.

Thurber, indicted Aug. 3 by a San Francisco Grand Jury on charges of murder, conspiracy, burglary and robbery, is a member of San Francisco Mailer's Union 18, affiliated with San Francisco Typographical Union 21, which has been on strike against the I-J since Jan. 7.

Daly was fatally shot at his San Francisco home July 4 when two young men entered, slugged him with a metal pipe and shot him while his wife was searching the kitchen for money the men had demanded.

Thurber was arrested July 6 along with two San Bruno teen-agers. He was freed on bail and rearrested July 16 when Daly died. He has been held since in San Francisco City Prison in lieu of $250,000 bail.

The two youths, who told police Thurber was the man who took them to Daly's home, have been sentenced to long-term commitment with the California Youth Authority. Merle indicated yesterday that they would be called to testify against Thurber.

Mrs. Martini's presence on the jury was challenged by Merle after she said her husband was a printer with Sorenson's Advertising Typographers in San Francisco.

She said her husband had been required to do picket at the I-J, but added she didn't think the fact that Thurber was a member of an affiliated union or that Daly was an I-J employee would influence her as a juror.

Thurber's attorney, Nathan Cohn, challenged another prospective juror, Margaret thom-Wohrden, when she said her boy friend was a San Francisco policeman.

Visiting Judge Edmund M. Moor of Alpine County Superior Court dismissed two prospective jurors who said they would not be able to vote for a death sentence and two others who said, the trial, estimated to last three weeks, would interfere with vacation plans.

Planners To Study Novato Rezoning Plan

Proposed rezoning of West and South Novato to half-acre and acre minimum lots will get a public hearing Monday afternoon before the Marin County Planning Commission.

The hearing is set for 2 p.m. in the commission chambers on the third floor of the Civic Center.

This will be followed by another hearing on Waldo Giacomini's proposal to dike 132 acres of marshland in South Tomales Bay for dairying.

At the Oct. 27 hearing, conservationists protested in force, and the planning commissioners asked Giacomini to get an engineer's report on what effect the dikes would have on flooding in the area between Shoreline Highway and White House Pool.

The county planning commission's all-day meeting starts at 9 a.m.

The morning agenda includes a report on the county's proposed septic tank ordinance that would tighten requirements, rezoning of a strip of Marin Municipal Water District land (abandoned railroad right-of-way) along Fern Canyon Road outside Mill Valley from residential to open area, and Oliver Mauch's tentative map for a 12-lot subdivision at the corner of Vineyard Road and Wild Horse Valley Drive, Novato.

No Approval For Lot Split Request

A lot split application by A.A. Raymond for property at 625 Locust Road was not approved by the Sausalito Planning Commission Wednesday, as reported in Thursday's Independent-Journal.

Commissioners continued the matter to Nov. 18 to allow them to make a field inspection of the land.

Mechanical Press Reduces Pollutants

NEENAH, Wis. (UPI)—A mechanical press, normally used to make beer, wine and apple cider, has a significant new role here processing a less palatable liquid—paper mill waste water. Kimberly-Clark Corp. uses the press to squeeze solid materials from 5 million gallons of effluent a day, thus reducing the pollution of local waterways. As much as six tons of broken wood fibers and other solids are separated daily for use as land fill.

Tiburon Learns Funds For Park, Open Space Available

Federal and state monies are available to help Tiburon acquire park and open space land, the city's parks and recreation commission has been told.

Vernon E. Perry of Belvedere, financial consultant to the Golden Gate Bridge District, told commissioners Thursday that several government programs offer matching funds to cities for recreation expansion.

First, a master plan showing what areas are desired must be prepared. Then a cost estimate must be drawn up. Finally, the city council must confirm the master plan and land acquisition policy.

That's where Perry comes in, Kleinert said. His job is to take the plan to the Marin County Board of Supervisors, the state or the federal government.

"There's a wealth of matching funds available," Kleinert said, "including money for ecology programs and wild life preservation." He said Perry reported that sometimes federal teams will conduct studies for cities embarking on such programs.

Perry suggested that Tiburon join Belvedere in developing a parks master plan for the entire Peninsula and then apply jointly to the government. "This greatly improves the chances of success," Kleinert said.

The commission voted to ask Tiburon Planning Director Wayne E. Moody to combine all reports on park and open space acquisition and aid the commission in preparing the master plan as the first step in seeking government grants.

Also approved was a motion asking Mayor Denis T. Rice to invite the City of Belvedere to participate in the formation of the plan and the application for the grants.

The commission also was told that Rice wants it to prepare an interim plan for the use of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way, which the city wants to condemn and turn into a bicycle-pedestrian pathway.

A master plan for the path will be prepared when the land is acquired by the city, Kleinert said, but the interim plan will fill the gap until the permanent plan is finished.

At the Wednesday meeting, Woodcock said the council members would discuss the current state of the negotiations and, if necessary, make plans to "meet the situation created when strike benefits are no longer available."

UAW workers on strike, or laid off because of lack of work, have been drawing between $30 and $40 a week in strike benefits, but UAW secretary-treasurer Emil Mazey has warned that the original $120 million strike fund will be exhausted if the strike does not end by Dec. 1.

Leaders Picked For World Bank

BONN, GERMANY — Two German finance leaders have been picked to take the reins of the World Bank and Interational Monetary Fund (I.M.F.) for 12-month terms.

Bonn's progressive Economics Minister Karl Schiller will preside over the World Bank, founded in 1944 with the primary aim of providing credit for significant projects in developing countries.

The I.M.F., designed to deal with tensions on the global money market by extending credit to countries with payment problems, will be headed by West German Federal Bank President Karl Klasen.

During their tenures, Schiller and Klasen will have to make preparations for and preside over the annual assemblies of the two organizations. The meetings are slated to be held in Washington, D.C., in September 1971.

Marin's Lucky Stores Plan To Remain Open

Despite a strike which is halting deliveries to 22 Lucky Stores in the Bay Area, managers of two Marin stores said today they have no plans to close their doors.

The managers have rented trucks and today brought in enough produce, milk and bread to last the weekend, according to Eugene Toulouse, assistant manager of Lucky's in Fairfax.

"We may have to close down our butcher shop tomorrow because we are nearly out of meat," Toulouse said, "but I hope we can rent some more trucks and bring some in on Monday."

Lucky stores in Fairfax and Northgate Shopping Center are being picketed by supporters of the striking Office and Professional Workers Local 9, which has a woman president and largely female membership.

Jean Maddox, president of Local 29, said Lucky has granted a cost-of-living escalator clause and improved fringe benefits to its male-dominated unions and is discriminating against her union, 90 per cent female.

Approximately 10 male pickets were at the Northgate store this morning and six or seven were picketing the Fairfax Market.

The union is asking an 80-cent hourly raise over three years and agreement was near on the salary demands, according to Mrs. Maddox. But she said there was still wide disagreement over fringe benefits, cost-of-living clauses and other demands.

"We don't intend to close; we'll sell what we have," said Harold Davis of the Northgate store. "We have the same amount of people in here as usual and they are pretty understanding."

Davis said the store has enough meat, bread, milk products and other goods for its weekend customers.

Yesterday, $300,000 worth of perishable items trapped in the Lucky Stores Inc. warehouse in San Leandro by the strike were given away to charitable organizations.

Trucks, autos and people formed a two-mile long line outside the supermarket chain's warehouse. Many individuals and families who arrived after the giveaway was announced were also given food.

"This looks like China in the middle of a famine," said one Lucky supervisor who stood in the rain and surveyed the crowd of hundreds of persons.

Union leaders labelled the giveaway a propaganda move, but pickets stood aside as trucks from the Salvation Army and dozens of other organizations responded to the invitation to pick up the foodstuffs.

The giveaway began at 8 a.m. By 11:30 a.m. all the food was distributed, but hopeful people continued arriving at the warehouse until late in the afternoon.

The United States has maintained that the aircraft strayed accidentally into Soviet terriory.

Car Theft Charge Dismissed By Judge

A charge of car theft against Leonard Woodall, former Marin County man charged with disappearing with his employer's car about a year ago, was dismissed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court by Judge Peter Allen Smith.

Judge Smith ruled that there had not been sufficinet evidence to show that the car had been stolen. Woodall had said that he had left the car with a note on it that it was to be returned to Richard C. Kenney, who owns an auto body shop. The car has never been found.

Man Pleads Guilty To Billy Club Charge

James Harold Dineen, 23, of Anaconda, Mont., pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a reduced misdemeanor charge of possessing a billy club in Sausalito last Saturday.

Dineen, who had earlier been charged with a felony count of the same offense, was sentenced to the time he has spent in jail by Judge Peter Allen Smith. It was reported that Dineen was to be turned over to other jurisdictions as he had holds on him for offenses from other states and counties.

Tarantino said the man, holding a plastic catsup bottle wrapped in newspaper, came in the door about 5 p.m., sprayed the nauseous substance, and walked out.

Deadline For Fall Semester

Applications for admission to any of the 19 California State Colleges for the fall semester must be submitted by Nov. 30.

Applicants will file a single application at the college of their first choice and list as many as three other colleges in order of preference. Applications are available at all high schools, community colleges and state colleges.

Harold Soeters, dean of admissions at Sonoma State College, said all applications submitted this month will receive equal consideration within quotas set at each campus. Priorities will be given to veterans and community college transfers.

Soeters said that all applications submitted in November will be given the same consideration regardless of the date of receipt.

Dr. David Kagan, coordinator of admission services, said it is unlikely the college system can accomodate all qualified applicants at college of first choice. In such cases, applications will be automatically forwarded to alternate college choices in order of preference listed by the applicants.

By HELEN BOTTEL

Mother's Noise Is Invading Her Daughter's Private Air Space

DEAR HELEN:

I left home once because of it, then came back as I felt guilty —also broke. But Helen, I'm up to my ears in noise.

It's my mother. She slam-bangs around the house — doors, drawers, etc. She plays television way up to here. When we have donnybrooks about it, she says she can do what she damn well pleases in her own house. I tell her noise is invading my air space, thus she invades my privacy.

Her hearing is normal — it's been tested — but I wonder if all this loudness will affect her later. They say kids who listen to rock music tend to go deaf, and my mother's noise really ROCKS you! After I came home, she tried holding it down for a while, but now it's high level again.

Before I leave for good, maybe you could tell an introverted child how to cope with an extroverted parent. — BLASTED OUT BY A CLATTERFAMILIAS

DEAR BLASTED:

Just as certain people need more heat than others, so too does your mother need a slam-bang, noisy life to keep her perking. You can't change her basic drives any more than she can change your aversion to "clatterfamilias," but you can both hit the consideration button a little harder. Perhaps she'll tune down television if you ignore a few door slams: Things like that . . . but don't expect a total switch on either side. Introverts and extroverts can help each other up to a point, but they'll never really understand what makes the other tick. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I read about a survey that says only three out of 20 married couples really get along and like each other, maybe even to the extent of love. Seven out of 20 figure marriage is okay but nothing great. And about 10 out of 20 only stay together out of necessity because they're trapped by family, finances or lethargy.

If this is true — and it was a government sponsored national survey — how come marriage is still the most popular game around? — NON-GAMBLING BACHELOR

DEAR NGB:

Because nobody thinks the bad stuff will happen to him. Besides, up until recently, it's been the only game in town. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I am sitting at my desk, after hearing a chorus of "Oinks!" (as in pig.) It started when we were out in the school yard and Jane said, "Carol wears that vest because she isn't wearing a bra." Next day, being curious, I wrote Carol a note asking her if she was bra-less.

Well, some boys got hold of the note and started teasing Carol who now hates me. At least, somehow, everybody's calling me a pig, especially boys.

Am I ruined for the rest of the year just because of a stupid note? — EIGHTH GRADE OINK

DEAR EGO:

Junior Hi feuds burn out fast, maybe because there's always a new hassle to take their place. Call (don't write) Carol and talk it over. Meanwhile, ignore the "Oinks" until they go away. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I thought I would do something keen like a teen and send you my oodles of niceness. SO!!! Here is my poetic contribution on "What is Nauseating Drivel?"

Nauseating drivel is when your heart strings are tugged, your eyes fill with tears and your throat with lumps. It is the feeling I get when I read things in your column (like "What is a Service Girl?") with a full stomach. Let a swallow cry or a bluebird fly or a housefly die and I think I, not you, but I, will surely swallow the lump in my throat and bravely force my way through your blankety blank "What Is A" column — A TEENY BOPPER WHO KNOWS

DEAR BOP:

Thanks chum. May the Bluebird of Happiness drop an egg on your typewriter. — H.

THE PRETTY dress dominated most of the more than 24 fashion openings previewed during the last three weeks by UPI fashion writers in the nation's garment district, New York's Seventh Avenue. Adele Simpson Brings Back Shawls In Ladylike Fashions

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Designer Adele Simpson, considered peerless as a designer of ladylike clothes, brings back the huge fringed shawl for spring. Triangular-shaped shawl, that is.

The prettiest in her collection, seen Thursday, matched a nearly ankle-length silk dress printed in what she described as a rose festival pattern. The shawl was so huge its back point fell to the hem of the dress.

Mrs. Simpson, whose customers include Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, endorsed the jumper and the jumper look—the latter being a dress with sleeves set in to look like a blouse, She also favored the coat and shirtwaist dress, in neutrals, navy and paintbox colors. None of these was midi length.

Designer Simpson, sticking with the formula that has made her successful, served up only ladylike clothes. There wasn't a peek-a-boo or transparent top look in the collection.

THE PANTS outfits that opened the collection were four parters, meant for those who want to be comfortable while gaing from here to there by plane.

The pants had matching wrap-around skirt and midi-length, trench coat, plus dotted or printed blouses self-bowed at the neck. These came in red and navy versions. Worn with huge-brimmed hats they were, indeed, ladylike.

Her daytime costumes featured slightly gathered skirts, skirts given movement via pleating and easy bodices with long sleeves much of the time. The latter always were self-belted.

For after five, Mrs. Simpson liked pastels nearly to the ankle dresses, some with skirts decked in flouncing. The fabrics she favored were crepe, silk and chiffon.

SOFT DRESSING was how she described the evening silhouette, featuring many chiffon cages in pale ice cream colors. To emphasize the softness some dresses were shaped to the body by elasticized sheering.

Business at Adele Simpson's is moving along very well. As the designer, herself in a black velvet jumper with white satin, long-sleeved blouse, put it:

"In a season when many apparel enterprises are in a depressed state (mainly over the midi) our business has been sensational—North, South, East and West. Mainly because we don't stand still.

Glad To Return To Novato's Fresh Air

By MOLLY MARIN

Returning to Novato from a trip to the Orient are Mrs. Harold Avery and Mrs. William Pratt. Mrs. Avery is supervisor of nurses at Novato General Hospital, and Mrs. Pratt is a nurse there.

They went by plane, leaving on Oct. 10, and their first stop was Taiwan, where Mrs. Avery said the country was beautiful. She was impressed by the National Museum, shops and the abundance of fresh fruits and vegetables.

They stopped in Hong Kong before going on to Kyoto and Tokyo riding the Bullet Train. Mrs. Avery said that she had never run into a smog problem compared to that in Tokyo. She said she enjoyed the trip but was glad to return to Novato to get a fresh breath of air.

MR. AND MRS. Ronald Frank Antonioli entertained 200 guests at their hill top home in Black Point Oct. 24.

Mr. Antonioli introduced his Marin friends to his bride, the former Pamela Cameron Foulds. The couple were married in South Lake Tahoe on Aug. 8.

Zipper Foot Should Only Be Used For Zippers Or Cording

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

I am a beginner when it comes to sewing and have just learned the virtues of using a zipper foot to insert the lapped type zipper. Now I'm wondering why I can't use the zipper foot for all of my sewing.

MRS. R. E. W.

DEAR MRS. R.E.W.:

The zipper foot is only half of the regular presser foot width so that it can be used very close to the zipper or cording, whereas the regular presser foot would prevent this close stitching. However, the regular presser foot controls the fabric much better since there is a part of the metal foot riding on each side of your actual machine stitching. I would only use the zipper or cording foot in the specific techniques for which it was designed.

While we're on the subject of zippers, I would like to go into the nylon invisible zippers a little more thoroughly since I have received so very many letters asking for more information about them.

Many women resist them naturally, remembering when they weren't heat resistant and they had to replace many of the old zippers that were used in cottons that needed a hot iron. Today, nylon has been perfected to the point that it will withstand the same heat that is used for pressing on cottons without any disastrous effects. If the length of the zipper is not the length you prefer, whip-stitch over the closed coil one half inch below the desired zipper length. Cut off the excess zipper about one half inch below your whip-stitching.

The nylon zippers can be machine washed, or dry cleaned and tumble dried. They won't rust or corrode. It's best to close the zipper before washing, dry cleaning or pressing. Use a press cloth when ironing or pressing at temperatures higher than the ordinary cotton setting. Should the zipper become curled after washing and drying, simply steam press the zipper flat again.

Some fabrics such as polyesters have less than a 1 per cent shrinkage. It is recommended that you preshrink your zipper before applying. This is done by immersing the zipper in hot tap water for a few minutes. Roll in a towel to absorb moisture. Air dry and press lightly, ease zipper tape slightly when applying.

Should zipper become hard running after washing or dry cleanings, lubricate the coil edges by rubbing with beeswax, soap or with a commercial zipper ease product.

If you don't care for the metal tab of the zipper, you may cover it with your fabric or remove the tab and add your own decorative drop or jewel for a fashion accent.

MRS. JOHN E. POSTMA, Troy, Mich. is this week's Tailor Trix winner for her following sewing suggestion:

"I have learned to love to sew, but have better success if I follow the pattern and instructions carefully. The tracing wheel is a must for marking darts, seam allowances, tucks, and pleats. Since this creates havoc with the pattern and I do enjoy going back and reusing my patterns, I have tried something that has worked beautifully for me.

"Before using a pattern, press it and then on the lines indicating darts, seamlines, or other important matching points, I press a piece of paper surgical adhesive tape on my pattern. Buy it in the 1 and 1½ inch width rolls. You'll find your patterns will last indefinitely and that favorite styles may be used over and over again."

DEAR EUNICE,

You have often mentioned putting in a zipper by hand to give a more custom finish to a garment. Would you please repeat these instructions?

MRS. J. W. B.

DEAR MRS. J. W. B.:

Hand sewn zipper application will not only give a more custom finish to your garment in both lapped and centered application, but the hand sewing will result in a softer, more fluid line. You may prefer the hand stitching for the last step only.

It is best to use silk buttonhole twist because of the extra strength and soft sheen which adds to its appearance. This is done from the right side of the garment. Bring your needle through the surface from underneath. Take a very small stitch back, perhaps only one or two yarns of the fabric, bring your needle forward and up through your fabric. Continue, a stitch back and then forward keeping stitches about ¼ inch apart. Be sure not to pull the thread tight after each stitch, the thread should almost form a small French knot appearance that will work back into your fabric slightly.

If your fabric is very thick, it would force the distance between each stitch to be longer. To give the appearance of closer stitching and to provide additional strength, repeat back-stitching between the first stitches. Final step to hand-stitching is to reinforce by machine stitching zipper tape to seam allowance from wrong sides.

Any handwork on a garment adds to its value, because it is handwork. Don't fret yourself into a tizzy if each stitch isn't quite as even as machine stitching. Handwork is never that perfect. If you are working with sheer fabrics, the zipper will be much softer and more flexible if you hand sew every step instead of just the finish or top stitching.

Wall hangings, a caftan, bikini cover are all gifts you can make from the instructions given in the booklet "Boutique Gifts." For your copy send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

Photographer Dick Reddy, who will narrate the film in person, made the film, which includes footage from Lappland in the far north, during a four-month swing through the Scandinavian country.

The movie also includes views of Stockholm, a midsummer celebration, Gotlard, Gota Canal, Gothenburg, and Dalarna, according to Explorama.

Reserved seat tickets may be purchased at Redwood Travel Advisors, 1344 Fourth Street, San Rafael, and at Macy's stores.

Kentfield Request Due Before Board

The Kentfield School District board will consider a request by the Kentfield Parent-teacher Association for $2,000 for the 1971 summer school program.

The fund request will be acted on after a 20-minute film presentation of this year's program, according to Supt. Anthony G. Bacich.

Chicano Session Scheduled Friday

Marin County Economic Opportunity Council leaders will meet with spokesmen for Marin's Chicano community next Friday to see if agreement can be reached on a program to meet needs of the Spanish-speaking.

The meeting grew out of the appearance of some 30 Chicanos at Wednesday's EOC board meeting in San Anselmo. The visitors stressed their language problems and outlined needs.

The meeting will be in the office of Robert Lomax, EOC director. He said no hour has been set for the talks.

DRAMA REVIEW

Collegians Excel In Night Of Bard

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

James Dunn, the miracle man of the College of Marin's drama department, has done it again. Or when hasn't he stopped?

Last night's opening of William Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" was like a banquet with each entree outdoing the preceding one. To put it mildly, it was one of the most enjoyable evenings of theater I have experienced in several seasons.

Puck's closing lines begin, "If we shadows have offended, Think but this, and all is mended — That you have but slumb'red here . . ." Offend? The audience could have stayed for another hour.

In his program notes he says, "we hope to bridge the gap of 375 years and take you to London of 1595 where the Lord Chamberlain's men, led by Richard Burbage, Will Shakespeare and Company, attempt to show you that 'the lunatic, the lover, and the poet are imagination all compact'.''

Indeed he has done just that. From the ticket taking Beefeater guards, intermission 16th Century dancers, fire eater, Punch and Judy show to the Elizabethan stage, Dunn draws you into Shakespeare's time.

The stage is set in a leisurely fashion with the cast members strolling down to the stage, stopping here and there for a friendly hello.

The story of "Midsummer" is so familiar it's needless to discuss the plot, but let's say only it was probably written for an aristocratic wedding where merrymaking was the order of the day.

With the use of the superb reproduction of tme Elizabethan stage under Alonso D. Gonzalez, who also had the task of creating the costumes and deft lighting touch of Ronald Krempetz and special songs by Thomas W. Buckner, the actors were charged with bringing Shakespeare's words alive. Dunn's sixth sense of fitting a youthful actor into a certain character is almost uncanny.

To maintain the pace, which was almost electrifying at times, Dunn had to have sterling performances from the spirit world — at least in the two major roles of Oberon, the king, and Puck, his conjure boy.

Mark Rasmussen, whom I have observed turn into a versatile young actor, was excellent as Oberon. His abilities were equally matched, however, by Joel Blum as Puck, who spun magic in delivery as well as in his rhythmic movements.

And, too, the young lovers were freshly acted by David Brown as Lysander; Howard McMaster as Demetrius; Roxane Wilkinson as Hermia, and Alice Rorvik as Helena.

Balanced with the principals were the delightful artisans who nearly walked off with all the honors. Cuteness in these roles sometime spoils the effect of the Bard's hilarious words, but not last night. The artisans' concluding play of Pyramus and Thisbe was a shrewd bit of theatrics. Cast in these are John Evans as Peter Quince; J.W. Harper as Nick Bottom; Shelly Lipkin as Francis Flute; John Chapot as Tom Snout; Robert Cooper as Snug; Rick Casorla as Robin, and the hound Grover, a distinguished little fellow named Grover James Finney.

Carla Sarvis as Titania, Oberon's queen, had a sure feel of her part, and had able assistance from her court: Karen Meadows as Peaseblossom; Stephanie Saunders as Cobweb; Kathy Rainey as Moth, and Linda Apple as Mustardseed.

While their roles were limited to squeals and mumblings, Jess Jestrab, Elwood Markham and Ernie Shelton as the Trolls (part of Oberon's entrouage) added just the right touch in the forest scenes.

Todd Norris as Theseus, Duke of Athens, was fashionable in his limited role, as was Pamela Contos as Hippolyta, his queen. Leonard Roy Stevens as Egeus was convincing, and Alan Kernan, as Philostrate, the master of the revels, had just the right amount of prissiness.

"Midsummer" will be performed again at 8 p.m. today and tomorrow in the college's Fine Arts Theater. It will also run Nov. 12 through 15 and Nov. 19 through 22.

If the SRO sign is out by next Friday, hit yourself for being late to the ticket office.

Health Panel Cancels Meeting For Tuesday

The regular meeting of directors of the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Marin County scheduled for Tuesday has been cancelled.

The next meeting of the board is set for Nov. 18 at 7:30 a.m. at the Manzanita Center in Marin City.

1970 BUICK SKYLARKS

Air Conditioned

$3495

Brand new '70 Skylark coupes with comparable equipment such as air conditioning, power steering, V-8 engine, radio, heater, tinted glass, deluxe wheel covers, white wall tires and vinyl interiors that sold new for over $4300.

These three cars — each with slightly over 5,000 miles — are absolutely spotless inside and out. If they didn't have our license plates on these cars — you couldn't tell them from new.

The purchaser of any of these '70 Buicks picks up 4-years and 44,000 miles of the GM new car warranty. Two of these cars are gold and one is chocolate brown and all have contrasting light beige vinyl interiors. 0Z107183, 0Z107173, 0Z107182.

Eastwood School Sale On Agenda

The Mill Valley School District Board will meet Monday at 8 p.m. at Tamalpais Valley School, 350 Bell Lane, to discuss with members of that community the sale of the Alice Eastwood School site at Eastwood Way and Glenwood Avenue.

Sale of the 5.11-acre site has been recommended to help pay for construction of the district's Middle School, now being built at Sycamore Avenue and Camino Alto.

Also on the agenda is the setting of salaries for the current school year for teachers and classified employees.

Fairfax Council To Eye Housing

The Fairfax City Council is scheduled to meet with the county chief of advanced planning at 8 p.m. Monday at city hall to discuss the requirement for a housing element in the city's master plan.

In addition to the discussion with Albert W. Solnit, the council is scheduled to hold public hearings on abating a old store at 85 Bolinas Road and debris in a creek.

Also set for discussion is a proposed ordinance to cover amending cable television franchises and customer rates.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Thinning Of Bone Mass In Elderly Women Major Cause Of Fractures

Van Dellen

About four million older women in the United States have osteoporosis, a loss (or thinning) of bone mass. It is one of the common causes of backache and spontaneous fractures, especially of the hip. One pessimistic physician listed the sequence of the disorder as follows: osteoporosis, broken hip, pneumonia from prolonged bed rest, nursing home and finally, death.

The disease is less common in males and is called idiopathic osteoporosis when it develops in younger men and women. No one knows why the bones of these individuals become porous, lose too much calcium or have too little bone formation or both.

ORIGINALLY, lack of female sex hormones (estrogens) was suspected because osteoporosis often developed following the menopause. Furthermore, bone loss is delayed or fails to occur when these hormones are given continuously from the time of the 'change'. But the results were not too good when estrogens were given to elderly women long after bone changes took place.

Other glandular products that may play a role are parathyroid hormones that dissolve bone and release calcium into the blood. This is counteracted by thyrocalcitonin, a hormone that prevents calcium loss. Some researchers believe that osteoporosis is due to a hormonal metabolic imbalance. This avenue is presently being pursued. Human growth hormone also leads to improvement, but the product is so scarce that its use is impractical at this time.

INCREASING the intake of calcium and vitamin D also may help. Milk and cheese are high in the former; calcium tablets and powders also are available. An objection to this remedy is that calcium is poorly absorbed by the intestine. Furthermore, it diminishes the rate of bone destruction for too short a time. The phosphates increase calcium retention and may be effective.

Residents living in areas where the water supply has a high fluoride content have less osteoporosis. This explains the rationale of oral sodium fluoride as a remedy.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent Jurnal.)

GENES FOR BLONDNESS

Miss N. writes: Someone told me that the offspring of two natural blonds are not perfect because of the genes they have inherited. Is there any truth to this statement?

REPLY

Not to my knowledge. In some countries, blonds are in the majority and intermarriage is inevitable. Their offspring live as long as anyone else and do not suffer from inherited imperfections because of the color of their hair.

ALLERGIC DISEASES

Mrs. K. L. writes: My son was born with eczema, which cleared up after his second birthday. Then he developed asthma. Last year he got hay fever. Are all these ailments connected?

REPLY

Yes, all are allergies. If possible, you should take your son to an allergist. He has a life-long disease and it is none too soon to start him on the right path.

COFFEE SIDE EFFECT

P. C. writes: Could 6 to 8 cups of coffee a day cause loss of equilibrium? During the day, I have spells where I momentarily lose my sense of balance.

REPLY

Perhaps, but other possibilities must be considered, such as ear trouble, anemia, hypoglycemia, or low blood pressure. Abstain from coffee for two days, and if the dizziness disappears, you have your answer.

Statistics Show Smokers' Tastes Run To Tar Brands

John C. Maxwell Jr., an analyst for a New York brokerage firm, predicted cigarette consumption would rise despite government health warnings and elimination of broadcast commercials.

Maxwell said in an article in Barron's, a financial newspaper, that following a dip in sales in 1969, "the cigarette industry is on the eve of new growth in this decade."

"While the reason for the upward strength in consumption is certainly nebulous, it may be laid to continued governmental programs on everything we eat or drink," he said. "Thus the populace possibily has a credibility gap."

Maxwell compiled the sales rankings of the various cigarette brands. His figures combined with the latest government tests of the tar and nicotine content of cigarettes show that only one of the 10 best sellers — Kent — is also rated lowest in tar and nicotine.

The largest selling cigarette —Winston —had 10 times more tar than Carltons and 13 times more nicotine than Marvels, the two brands ranked lowest in the substances.

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) Friday released the results of its October tests which show that 34 brands were decreased in tar content since May and 20 were reduced in nicotine.

However, 15 were increased in tar content and 18 increased nicotine content while there was no change in the tar content of 66 brands and in the nicotine content of 77.

The FTC tests each of a brand's variety —king size and 100's, with and without menthol, soft pack and hard pack, etc.

The FTC said Carlton was lowest in tar followed by Marvels, King Sano, Frappe, Kent, Duke, Life, Multifilter, Tempo, True, Montclair, and Doral. Brands lowest in nicotine were, in order, Marvels, Carlton, King Sano, Frappe, Duke, Kent, Vogue, True, Life, Stratford, Multifilter and Gauloises Disques Bleu.

This year's best sellers, according to Maxwell, were Winston, Pall Mall, Marlboro, Salem, Kool, Camel, Kent, Tareyton, Viceroy and L&M. The only change from last year's sales rankings was in 10th place where L&M supplanted Lucky Strike.

The U.S. Public Health Service and a number of private health agencies have tried to discourage cigarette smoking since a 1964 Surgeon General's report linked cigarettes with lung cancer. Subsequent may also contribute to heart disease and other ailments, and that low tar brands may be less hazardous.

Congress passed a bill last year outlawing broadcast cigarette commercials effective next an. 2, and strengthening the warning on cigarette packages. In addition, the FTC has announced its intention to require that all cigarette ads include the brand's tar and nicotine content.

Nixon Calls Closest Aides To Map Plans

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) —President Nixon summoned his closest advisers to the winter White House today for a post-election session on domestic programs, and probably political strategy.

Seeking relaxation after a rigorous campaign schedule, Nixon arrived here Friday night for a 10-day working vacation at his Bayside villa.

He was expected to fly to Grand Cay, a tiny green isle in the Bahamas later today as a weekend guest of multimillionaire pal Robert H. Abplanalp of Bronxville, N.Y.

TOP AIDES

Flying in from Washington for an 11 a.m. EST gathering were Attorney General John N. Mitchell, Nixon's campaign manager in the 1968 presidential election, presidential assistants John D. Ehrlichman, H. R. Haldeman and Donald Rumsfeld, counselors Robert H. Finch and Bryce Harlow and special counsel Charles Colson.

Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler billed the meeting, as a "long range planning session," with no set agenda.

"We'll be looking ahead for the next two years" and mapping homefront programs to be submitted to the next Congress, he added.

Ziegler said Nixon's lieutenants on Capitol Hill will push for passage of the revolutionary welfare program proposal during the lame duck session.

LOW INCOME

The House-passed measure, which guarantees a minimum income to poor families, is presently stalemated in the Senate Finance Committee and the bulwark of his domestic program.

Although the today's gathering of Nixon tacticians appeared to have political overtones, Ziegler insisted that its purpose was not an election post mortem.

Nevertheless, although the White House called the election a "tremendous success" there were indications that Nixon is less than satisfied with the overall GOP showing, particularly in the state houses, and has decided to revise campaign tactics for the 1972 presidential tilt.

MONEY ISSUE

In their soul searching, some Republican advisers feel that the pocketbook issues won out over "law and order" with middle America when it went to the polls.

He will be joined here early next week by his wife Pat, who will spend the weekend in Washington to catch up on White House chores.

Prosecution Concludes Thoresen Death Case

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI)—The prosecution has concluded its case against Mrs. Louise Thoresen, accused of killing her millionaire husband in their home full of machine guns, other weapons and explosives.

District Attorney Frank Wells called nine witnesses as he attempted to establish that the victim was shot in the back while lying in bed and that Mrs. Thoresen had had an extramarital affair.

Defense attorneys will offer opening arguments Monday. They have indicated that they will seek to establish that Mrs. Thoresen shot her husband in self-defense.

The most damaging prosecution testimony against the long-haired 34-year old widow came from Mrs. William McDermott, who lived near the Thoresen home. Mrs. McDermott testified that the defendant ran to her home after the shooting, admitted she killed her husband and said he was "asleep" when she shot him.

Dr. John Miller, a pathologist who performed the autopsy on Thoresen's nude, bullet-riddled body, said he was shot five times in the back while lying in bed "in a rather comfortable position with his chin against his chest."

Dr Donald Hessel, a chemist, said traces of LSD were found in Thoresens' blood. Earlier testimony by a laboratory expert indicated the presence of barbiturates as well.

Investigating officers found 50 pounds of marijuana in the house, along with $20,000 worth of military-type weapons and explosives.

Friday the prosecution introduced six apparent suicide notes written by Mrs. Thoresen, two of which indicated that she had had an affair with a man identified only as "joe."

The notes to her husband said she intended to "take the pills and go to sleep."

Mrs. Thoresen, who broke down in sobs earlier in the trial, turned away Friday when bloodstained bedclothes were introduced in evidence, with bullet holes identified by a ballistics expert.

Kennedys Lead Mourners At Cardinal Cushing's Services

BOSTON (UPI)-A joyous Mass of Resurrection consecrated the soul of Cardinal Richard Cushing to God Saturday before a congregation of the rich and famous, the humble and the poor who were his parishioners.

Cardinal John Wright, delivering the eulogy, recalled that Cushing's theme "was always the same: new worlds to conquer for Christ, new hope to bring to man, . . . all things made new."

Holy Cross Cathedral was jammed to capacity with mourners, including Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Mrs. Jacqueline Onassis and other members of the family. Hundreds more stood outside.

The cardinal's casket, opened since Tuesday when his body was placed in the lofty cathedral to lie in state, was closed as the dignitaries filed in. The cardinal's galleta, his hat of office with its thirty tassles, rested on top of the casket.

Following the mass, Cushing's body was removed for the procession to the Portiuncula Chapel at St. Coletta School for Retarded Children in Hanover, where he was buried in a crypt that is a replica of the tomb of St. Francis of Assisi in Assisi, Italy.

Special Meeting Called On Design

The Tiburon Design Review Board will hold a special meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. at city hall to review plans for a 24-unit townhouse development on Red Hill.

The plans were sent to the board by the city planning commission Monday with the request it work with the project's architects to vary the appearance of the structures.

Planning Director Wayne E. Moody said the commission, asked to approve the plans, objected to the "linearity" and "monotony" of the buildings.

Will Leaves Old Arch To University

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI)—There have been many unusual beneficiaries of wills but the University of Georgia lays claim to one of the oddest—a 114-year-old arch on the northern boundary of the campus.

The late Dan H. Redfearn., Coral Gables, Fla., a Georgia alumnus, left a $1,000 bequest to keep the gate in repair and the university began collecting on it this year.

The arch is modeled after the Georgia state seal and Redfearn directed interest from the bequest be used "in perpetuity" to keep it in good shape.

A 30-year-old Petaluma man escaped injury last night when his pickup truck ran into a ditch at Corona Road and McDowell Boulevard in Petaluma.

They said Prince Alexander, who grew up in Britain, is a British subject and wants to remain one. He currently is stationed in West Germany as a lieutenant with the 16th-5th Queen's Royal Lancers.

North Carolina Guard Called In Racial Uprising

HENDERSON, N. C.. (UPI)—National Guardsmen today were ordered into Henderson, where a dispute over school desegregation policies erupted into a night of sniping and burning.

Gov. Bob Scott officially ordered in the troops to enforce a 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew imposed on the city and surrounding Vance County.

The move came after about 100 black youths gathered in the smouldering ruins of a burned out tobacco warehouse and began hurling bricks and pieces of pipe at passing cars.

About 40 arrests were made during the night-long disturbance, concentrated in a four block area of a black neighborhood.

Rafferty Offers Riles Some Help

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Max Rafferty has offered to help Wilson C. Riles take over the job of State Superintendent of Public Instruction "with as little friction as possible."

In a letter Friday to the man who defeated him for the state's top education post, Rafferty told Riles, "I hope 'o work with you as closely as possible to make the next two months of transition easy ones." Rafferty had sought a third term in Tuesday's election.

It was the first public word by Rafferty since his election loss. He repeatedly refused press inquiries — through Fitzpatrick — to comment on the outcome of the race.

HEW Cuts Four Schools On Bias

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Health, Education and Welfare Department (HEW) said yesterday it has withheld approval of new federal contracts for at least four colleges and universities because of alleged sex discrimination.

HEW civil rightfs officials declined to identify the schools but confirmed that the University of Michigan is one of them after a news report from Ann Arbor, Mich., identified that school.

The sex discrimination allegations deal with the hiring, upgrading and promotion of women by the schools, according to Owen P. Kiely, director of HEW's contract compliance division.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Regardless Where Heart Queen, Ace Located, South Is Victor

It was almost 200 years ago that the Queen of Hearts made some tarts, only to have them stolen clean away by the Knave of Hearts. To this day threre's a little bad blood between them, and nothing gives the pasteboard queen of hearts greater satisfaction than to show the jack (as the knave is now called) how worthless he is. If you don't remember the old nursery rhyme, maybe you can see how the queen got her revenge in today's hand — thanks to South's careless play.

HIGH CARD ACTION

South won the first trick with the ace of diamonds, led the ace of trumps and then gave up a trump trick to the king. East returned a club to dummy's king, and declarer returned the five of hearts from dummy.

East played the ten, and South hopefully put up the king of hearts. West won with the ace of hearts and led the queen of hearts to capture dummy's unguarded jack. "That'll teach him," the queen said as she won the trick.

South had to give up a club trick, losing in all one trump, two hearts and one club. Down one.

PROPER VALUE

South should make his contract by seeing the proper value of the knave of hearts. After taking the ace of trumps at the second trick, South should lead a low heart toward dummy's jack.

If West has the queen of hearts, he must play it to prevent dummy's jack from winning the trick (or from driving out the ace). And if West does put up the queen of hearts, dummy's jack can be used next to drive out the ace.

ACTUAL HAND

In the actual hand, West would shift to a club (best), and dummy's king would win. Declarer would lead the jack of hearts to force out the ace. Now South would win the next club in his hand with the ace, and would cash the king of hearts to discard dummy's losing club. The contract would then be safe.

If West didn't happen to have the queen of hearts, dummy's jack would have no value. But then declarer could later lead a heart from dummy toward his king. He would make his contract if West had the queen or if East had both the ace and queen.

You hold:
♠ - K Q
♦ - 10 9 8 4
♥ - K 8 7 4
♣ - Q J 10.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds. The hand is a bit too strong for a response of 1 no-trump, which would promise only six to 10 points in high cards. You plan to bid 2 no-trump at your next turn if partner rebids his spades.

A Step Toward Solving Drunken Driver Problem

WE ARE KILLING PEOPLE at the rate of about 55,000 per year on U.S. highways.

Over the years, engineers have improved highway design to make driving safer. Freeways, for instance, are demonstrably safer than earlier designs.

Of late, auto manufacturers have given more attention to safety in design. Some notable achievements already have been recorded.

Were it not for these and such things as more rigid license examinations, the human slaughter on our highways would be even worse.

The American Automobile Association's Foundation for Traffic Safety is among groups demonstrating concern and making an effort to find solutions.

AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety is headed by Edwin S. Moore, who is no stranger to Marin. Although he is not a resident here, he has spent his lifetime in the San Francisco Bay area and long has been as familiar a figure on Marin golf courses as he is at the speakers' rostrum before service clubs and the like.

Since retiring as executive vice president of the California State Automobile Association a couple of years ago, Ed Moore has been able to devote more time to his duties as president of the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety.

ACCIDENT INVESTIGATION statistics show that alcohol is involved in more than half of the 55,000 annual traffic deaths.

Approximately 44 per cent of those who die on our highways each year through no fault of their own are the victims of drinking drivers.

More startling to the uninitiated is the fact that "acute alcoholism is present in the majority of persons responsible for fatal automobile crashes."

Ponder all this and you come to the conclusion that we can never make any significant headway against the shocking highway death toll until we figure out how to deal with the drinking driver.

ABOUT FIVE YEARS AGO a judge in Phoenix, Ariz. — Eugene K. Mangum, by name — saw this problem in perspective and groped for ways to deal with it.

At the same time a professor at Arizona State University — Dr. Ernest I. Stewart — was developing some ideas for dealing with drinking drivers through educational techniques which resemble group counseling.

Fortuitously, the judge and the professor got together. Another educator, Dr. James L. Malfetti of Columbia University, joined the effort, as did the Phoenix Police Department.

Later, the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety lent financial support.

Judge Mangum began to require convicted drunken drivers to take the course as a part of their sentence.

The results have been dramatic.

Many drinking drivers became aware apparently for the first time of the full weight of the problem. Many have been motivated either not to drink at all or not to drive while drinking. It is as simple as that, in final result.

THE AAA FOUNDATION for Traffic Safety refers to the program as "DWI Phoenix." DWI is the old fashioned police blotter symbol for driving while intoxicated.

Now the foundation is preparing to encourage all jurisdictions everywhere to adopt a program. "DWI Counterattack" is the label which the AAA Foundation applies to its own efforts.

One of these days Ed Moore will see that the California State Automobile Association advocates the DWI Counterattack program for Marin County.

It may even be that Ed Moore himself will be on hand to preside as his AAA Foundation's movie, "DWI Phoenix," is presented.

If you have the opportunity to see it for yourself, you are certain to be a strong supporter of this suggested new approach to bringing the highway slaughter under control.

Education and rehabilitation shows great promise.

INCIDENTALLY, nearly every person sentenced by Judge Mangum to take the Stewart-Malfetti course in Phoenix has resented the sentence and turned up for the first class "with a chip on his shoulder."

Ed Moore has said of DWI Counterattack that its "intensely humanistic approach to the rehabilitation of drunk drivers holds out new promise for reducing the awful toll of highway deaths that has become a national tragedy."

At the very least, DWI Counterattack is worth trying in Marin. The sooner the better.

Clean Environment—A Right?

We recently heard a lawyer say that Americans' right to a clean environment may be guaranteed, vaguely and implicitly, in the Ninth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

The Supreme Court derived the "right of privacy" from this long-ignored part of the Bill of Rights. The ninth amendment tells us that the listing of rights, such as freedom of speech and religion, does not eliminate other rights retained by the people.

What more basic right can the people have than to breathe clean air and to live in a clean environment?

It's an intriguing idea.

Falling Leaves

Is anything more symbolic of the season than falling leaves? These delicate bits of brown parchment carry a message of the ephemeral quality of life.

Just yesterday, these leaves were gay reds and yellows — the legacy of a long, dry summer. The day before, they were green, robust living things. And the day before that they were tightly folded in small, hard buds.

Leaves crowd the life cycle of all living things into a single year. Yet, they fall, mold, provide sustanance for the rebirth next spring.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS to all the candidates, both successful and unsuccessful, who conducted decent campaigns, appealing to voters on the basis of qualifications and issues. And BRICKBATS to those who resorted to smear campaigns.

BRICKBAT — an especially big one — to the fiend who telephoned Katherine M. Trau of Corte Madera with the false report that her 18-year-old son was missing in action in Vietnam. The depravity of a person who could get his "kicks" from such cruel imposture is beneath contempt.

BOUQUETS to the Novato Jaycees for their bicycle safety clinics for youngsters to be given tomorrow.

BRICKBAT to the Novato Teachers Association for threatening "sanctions" (boycott) of Novato Unified School District in a dispute over how much pay raise they receive. Haven't we heard the teachers associations proclaiming loudly that they are "dedicated professionals"?

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Halloween Visitors Ladies, Gentlemen

We read so often these days of the unfortunate incidents among our youth, that we felt a story from the other side of the coin might be of interest. We were visited by 113 boys and girls on Halloween. Each one was dressed in an attractive costume, with a "trick or treat" bag —some of the tiny ones accompanied by their mother or father.

The point we want to bring out is —everyone of these 113 children was a little lady or gentleman. Each one said a happy "thank you" or "gee, thanks" or "thank you SO much" and —many wished us a "happy holiday."

It was a joy to have 226 little feet come trotting up to our door. Their happy greetings and smiling faces gave much more pleasure to Mr. Johnson and me, than did the "treat" they received from us, I am sure.

We hope all citizens were as fortunate as we in San Anselmo!

Earlier Catholic Priest In Congress

This evening (Nov. 4) as I was reading the I-J, I noticed on page 10 an article on the election of the first Catholic priest to Congress. The article was titled "Boston College Jesuit Becomes First Catholic Priest Elected To Congress." I was under the impression that Father Gabiel Richards was the first. Even though he was only a territorial delegate from the area around Detroit, he was elected to Congress.

Tragedy Needed To Force Fish Inspection Law?

By MARGUERITE DAVIS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A dramatic, well-publicized tragedy is needed to prod Congress into approving a fish inspection bill, according to Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich.

Hart, who helped win enactment in recent years of laws that require federal inspection of meat and poultry plants, found adamant opposition in the industry to his proposal for a similar requirement for fish and fish products.

"Regrettably, history tells us that this sort of legislation usually is enacted only in response to some dramatic and well-publicized tragedy," he said.

Until then, he said, inspection likely will be limited to the occasional checks by the Interior Department of the nation's 2,200 fish processing plants—a voluntary program which a department spokesman estimated provides inspection of any single plant no more than once in three years.

A REPORT by Consumers Union, an independent testing organization, said a survey of 20 brands of fish sticks sold nationally were in poor condition: Indications of fecal contamination were found in more than half the products sampled, and seven of 20 brands contained less than 60 per cent fish, the minimum standard required for any kind of federal grade, the report said.

Fish bones found in three brands made these foods potentially dangerous, Consumers Union said, and the average shopper found it impossible to read the codes that indicate the date on which the perishable fish were frozen and packaged. The fish sticks deteriorate in quality within three months of storage, even at zero fahrenheit, the report said.

Lee Weddig, executive director of the National Fisheries Institute, said it is the taste of the sticks, not the measured amount of fish they contain, that interests shoppers. Manufacturers now are trying to determine the most popular recipe, he said.

MRS. VIRGINIA H. Knauer, special assistant to the President for consumer affairs, disagreed.

"When people buy fish sticks they want fish, not something else," she said. "Consumers are entitled to know what they are getting for their money.

"I think the percentage of fish in fish sticks should be right on the package so there can be no mistake about it. But I am even more concerned about the contamination in fish sticks reported by CU . . ."

The contamination, according to Deputy Commissioner Winton B. Rankin of the Food & Drug Administration in testimony last year on the Hart bill, was bad enough to require instant federal inspection.

"The fish were hung on wooden sticks which were encrusted with rotten fish scales and particles from previous batches," he said. "Debris from previous batches was trapped in the nicked top of the processing table since no attempt was made to clean the table between operations."

In another plant, Rankin said, an employe scrubbed the stainless steel table used for cleaning and preparing fish.

"After scrubbing it, he took a filthy rag from his pocket and carefully shined the table top. It was then ready to inoculate the next batch of fish with a heavy load of bacteria from the rag . . ."

WEDDIG SAID Hant's proposal for continuous inspection of fish and fish products was an obsolete solution. Fish, unlike meat and poultry, are not warm-blooded, and fish plants should be subjected to flexible, spot-check inspections, he said. Less than 3 per cent of fish and fish products sold in the United States are inspected by the Interior Department under its voluntary plan, CU said. The department said, however, that figure apparently did not include fish used to manufacture meal for animal foods. With that, the total would rise to 24 per cent, it said.

Nixon-Agnew Strategy Plays Into Hands Of Southerners

WASHINGTON — A large question mark out of the election concerns President Nixon's high rating as political operator. Zeal, yes, ardor, passion, no one could fault him on that score. But whether the Nixon-Agnew strategy serves the long-term objectives of the administration and the Republican party for 1972 and beyond is the doubt.

The degree to which he wollows the score and calls the plays is part of the doubt. That is pointed up by an incident that occurred as the White House was shaping up the game plan for Florida which proved on Tuesday night to be a Republican disaster area.

The extent to which Harry S. Dent, Sen. Strom Thurmond's man in the White House, had helped to rig this strategy was apparently a closely held secret. The fierce attacks on school busing from Republicans high and low throughout the South carried the Thurmond brand. In South Carolina, the senator's home state, a segregationist Republican, Albert S. Watson, who ran a more or less openly racist campaign, was defeated by Democrat John C. West, a moderate Democrat.

THE ADMINISTRATION deliberately rejected the straightforward road to a two-party south that had been proved out by Linwood Holton's election as the first Republican governor of Virginia since Reconstruction. Having played the game of the Old South, the White House is now confronted with the familiar domination of key congressional committees by southerners who have ridden the escalator of seniority to power.

Fundamentally, it is a veto-power producing stagnation. That is shown most dramatically in the Senate Finance Committee. That committee, with Sen. Russell B. long of Louisiana as chairman, is carefully stacked with conservative Democrats and Republicans. The administration's family assistance plan — its showpiece in the social legislation field — was rejected by the committe by a vote of 14 to 1. It had been passed by the House.

Not only that but the committee voted 9 to 3 to tack the trade quotas bill onto the measure providing increases in Social Security payments. If this trick is sustained on the Senate floor when the Congress returns, the President will be confronted with a painful choice. To veto the Social Security bill because the protectionist trade measure is an appendage will anger millions trying to get by on Social Security payments.

THE 9-TO-3 VOTE in the committee is highly indicative. Besides Long, the Democrats who voted to tack on the trade bill were Anderson of New Mexico, Gore of Tennessee, Talmadge of Georgia and Byrd of Virginia. Republicans voting for the trade maneuver were Bennett of Utah, Curtis of Nebraska, Fannin of Arizona and Hansen of Wyoming. Opposing were Ribicoff of Connecticut and Harris of Oklahoma, Democrats, and Williams of Delaware, Republican.

The threat of a protectionist trade bill, which would touch off a disastrous trade war, has been met by evasion and double-talk.

The latest move is reopening of talks with Japan, with the administration applying pressure for voluntary quotas. That could be a way to squirm out of the trap laid by the protectionists in the finance committee.

Textile quotas were part of the promise made by candidate Nixon to Thurmond in return for Thurmond's help in swinging southern delegates to Nixon. It was a costly promose.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Nov. 7, 1960

County Clerk George S. Jones predicted a turnout of more than 80 per cent of the 71,905 registered in Marin to vote in the Nov. 8 election.

The first teacher strike in New York history crippled the school system of the nation's biggest city, although most of its 837 public schools attempted to conduct classes.

20 YEARS AGO

Nov. 7, 1950

John F. McCarthy, at 28 one of California's youngest candidates for state Senate, won election by a slim margin in a four-candidate race to succeed former Sen. Thomas F. Keating. Richard M. Nixon was elected to the U. S. Senate. Hubert B. Scudder was re-elected to Congress.

Sausalito and Marin City voters approved formation of a sewer district by a vote of 2,217 to 241.

How Nixon Strategy Went Awry At Halftime Of Football Games

WASHINGTON — The question that everyone is trying to figure out is where the Nixon strategy went wrong. Heinrich Applebaum, elite professor of political science at Moribund University, believes he can pinpoint the exact moment when President Nixon lost his chance to gain control of the U. S. Senate and House of Representatives.

Applebaum told me, "My surveys indicated that up until the Sunday morning before Election Day, President Nixon had it made. The violence issue, thanks to San Jose, had taken hold and an indignant nation was waiting to go to the polls and vote out those candidates whom both Nixon and Agnew indicated were permissivists who condoned student unrest. I have never seen a better orchestrated campaign, and I was willing to cede the Senate and House to the Republicans."

"The pro football games. That's what happened."

"I don't understand."

"The Republicans bought time on both NBC and CBS for a special political appeal by President Nixon to be aired between halftimes of all the pro football games in the country. It was a blunder of colossal proportions."

"I DON'T understand."

"Who watches football on Sunday in the United States?"

"The Silent Majority," I said.

"Exactly. The very backbone of this country. Now the Silent Majority is willing to listen to anything the President of the United States has to say six days a week. But Sunday they set aside to watch football. They don't want to hear about the Vietnamese war, the economy, law and order or violence in the streets. All they want to do is drink their cans of beer and watch two football teams try to kill each other on the gridiron."

"That isn't asking much," I said.

"UP UNTIL halftime, the Silent Majority was willing to vote the straight Nixon-Agnew slate," Applebaum said.

"But, suddenly, President Nixon appeared on millions of screens all over the country. The Silent Majority couldn't believe it. They were expecting to see a halftime show with a marching band, drum majorettes, baton twirlers and all the things that make pro football worth watching.

"In fury, they changed to the other channel only to discover President Nixon had also bought time between the half of that game. And, instead of talking about football, Nixon was discussing politics.

"It takes a lot to get the Silent Majority angry," Applebaum said. "But this was too much. When you mess around with their football games on Sunday, you're hitting them where it hurts.

"All over the country people started throwing beer cans at their television set. Husbands began screaming at their wives. Kids began to cry. By the time the President finished making his appeal, he lost all the good will he had picked up in his three weeks of arduous campaigning. The Silent Majority decided anyone who was that insensitive to pro-football-watching on Sunday afternoon could just go whistle 'Dixie.'"

"BUT, WAIT a minute, professor. The Democrats also bought spots at halftime and actor E. G. Marshall and Democratic Chairman Lawrence O'Brien made a pitch for their party."

"No one knew who they were," Applebaum said. "The Silent Majority thought they were doing a meatball commercial for Alka Seltzer."

CHURCH CRASH PAD

Typical Weekly Rap Session

By GEORGE NEVIN
(Second of two articles)

It is a cold and blowy Wednesday night. It's pouring rain outside, but inside a conference room at the Mill Valley Methodist Church it's warm and dry.

About 15 persons sit in a circle talking about issues that divide young and old. The topic tonight — drugs.

This is the regular Wednesday rap session between members of the church congregation and the youths who spend the night at the crash pad there.

Tonight's rap is led by Harold Richter, who once ran the crash pad and still works on the staff of the Street Ministry of Southern Marin, which is in charge of the crash pad program.

Three church members, all women, join the discussion. They are Louise Waschow, a member of the church committee which oversees the pad, Barbara Schrier and Sonia Lamoreaux.

Richter asks for a show of hands from the "freaks," as they often call themselves, on how many have dropped acid (taken LSD). All but one raises his hand.

Then he asks the church women what they think of drugs. There is a silence, and then Mrs. Schrier speaks.

"I have a strong reaction to that question," she prefaces her remarks, "and it may shake some of you up, but we've been talking about getting things into the open, so that's what I'll do."

She takes a breath and continues. "I think drug users are being cowardly. Drugs are an escape. There must be better ways to accomplish the things that drugs accomplish."

Mrs. Schrier asks just what it is that drugs do accomplish. One youth says he thinks LSD helped him to "see through phoniness and games." But he is unable to tell her how.

He and several others say they used to use acid but have stopped because they had gotten everything out of it they could. "I've just outgrown it," was how one put it.

A girl asks Mrs. Schrier what her reaction will be when her son starts using drugs. "Not if he starts, but when he starts," she emphasizes.

"I separate the user from the use," Mrs. Schrier replies. "I would explain to him why I disapprove, give him the facts, and then hope he agrees with me.

"Obviously, I can't stop him from smoking grass. But I'll let him know that I'll continue to love him even though I disapprove of what he does."

"Hey, that's beautiful," smiles Charles Cox, Street Ministry staffer who runs the pad.

Back to the benefits derived from drugs. Mrs. Vaschow asks how it is possible to be sure a change in a user's life is brought on by drugs. "Couldn't it be just a natural result of maturation?" she asks.

There is no way to be sure, the youths assert. "It's impossible to tell," one says, "since I can't go back and unuse the acid."

In that case, Mrs. Schrier says, "Why not hold off on drugs and see if these desirable changes might happen anyway, drug or no drug? Just think the risk involved is not worth the benefit that might result."

The freaks hold firm, though. "I know that acid opened my mind to many different realities," one maintains. "I just don't need it anymore, but it did me a lot of good."

It is the consensus of the youths that drug use will be part of what they feel is an alternate culture springing up, but drugs will not dominate that culture. Many think the media has blown the drug issue out of proportion.

"Drugs never were the be-all and end-all. They're part of our life, but not the biggest part," one says.

Near the end of the rap session, Dr. Robert W. Schrier, Mrs. Schrier's husband, comes in.

He speaks against drug use from his experience as a physician. "Whenever a doctor prescribes a drug, he weighs the possible bad against the benefits. With hallucinogenic drugs the risk far outweighs the benefit."

"But don't you prescribe drugs, doctor?" he is asked.

"As seldom as possible," he answers.

"He's so cautious with drugs that it infuriates me sometimes," Mrs. Schrier adds with a laugh. "He'd much rather let the body's natural defenses fight disease."

It's getting late, and Richter, who has let the conversation flow, reminds everyone. "We'll be back next week. Think about what we've said and come back. Bring someone else with you."

The session breaks up, and the people drift off. Cox and James Sonju, his fellow crash pad staffer, express satisfaction with tonight's rap. "People seem to be opening up more," Cox says. "We didn't solve anything, but I think both groups are starting to trust each other."

They walk back to the small room that serves as the crash pad. Half a dozen youths already lie on the floor asleep. A light burns in one corner of the room near a table, where several others sit and smoke cigarettes and talk softly.

One youth holds his stomach and doubles over in pain. "He hadn't eaten for a long time and just ate everything he could get his hands on," someone explains. "He'll be OK."

A box of first aid supplies appears, and someone fills a cup with hot water from the tiny kitchen and adds several spoonsful of epsom salts. "Here, drink this," he says, thrusting the cup at the sick mouth.

He drinks it, although he makes faces at the foul-tasting potion. But it helps.

More and more of the youths drift off to bed. They roll their sleeping bags out on the carpeted floor and stretch out, oblivious to the others who stay up. Soon, the youth with the stomach ache turns in, the others follow and the lights go out.

In the morning, a girl goes around and wakes everyone up. "Rise and shine," she calls. "Remember, we have to be out of here by 8:30. That's the rule.

Sleeping bags are quickly folded and tucked into packs. Brooms are produced and the floor is swept. Doors are thrown open and the crisp air of after-rain fills the room. The sun is shining.

One by one, the youths shoulder packs and head off. Some will move on; others will return to the crash pad tonight. Cox and Sonju watch them go, and then head back to the Street Ministry staff pad at Saint Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Marin City.

As Rev. George D. Carter says, "It isn't easy to play house mother to 15 transients," but Cox and Sonju know that if no one did, the youths would have no where to go at night in Marin County.

2 Themes Emerge From Convocation

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

Jewish and Christian scholars from several nations met a few days ago at Seton Hall University, South Orange, N.J., to discuss how things stand between these two faiths which history has placed in a close but often strained relationship.

Since no votes were taken, it would be improper to say that any consensus emerged from the four-day convocation sponsored by the American Jewish Committee and Seton Hall's Institute of Judeo-Christian Studies.

But two themes did stand out in papers presented by 50 prominent theologians and historians.

The military-diplomatic crisis in the Middle East is a serious and continuing source of tension between Jews and Christians. Jews feel that Christians should give Israel strong and unqualified support in her hour of peril, and they resent what they perceive as neutralist or even pro-Arab sentiments on the part of some Christians.

The resentment is reciprocated by some Christians, who feel that Jews have no right to pressure Christians, in the name of interfaith amity, to take a particular position on an international political question.

Few if any participants in the Seton Hall dialogue saw much hope of early solution of this difficulty. But many were inclined to view it as a temporary setback to a long-term development that is exceedingly hopeful.

The long-term development was described by Rabbi Marc H. Tanenbaum, director of interreligious affairs for the American Jewish Committee. Reviewing progress of recent years, Rabbi Tanenbaum said:

"Meaningful first steps have been taken to create an emergent new Christian culture within which antisemitism can no longer find official church sanction, and in which Judaism is beginning to be appreciated as a permanent source of truth and value for the Jewish people."

The last part of that statement is loaded with significance. For centuries, Catholic and Protestant teaching has depicted Judaism as a fossil religion, of interest only because it was the context in which the Christian revelation took place. Jews have been treated as potential converts to Christianity rather than adherents of a living faith which may have much to teach, as well as something to learn, in dialogue with Christianity.

Within the past five years, partly as a result of the work of the Catholic Vatican Council and partly as a result of initiatives by the Protestant and Orthodox communions affiliated with the World Council of Churches, this patronizing Christian view of Judaism has been radically modified.

"The Jewish people are now being perceived in their own terms, rather than as candidates for conversion," Rabbi Tanenbaum said, "and that constitutes a significant breakthrough which makes it increasingly possible to have authentic communication between Judaism and Christianity as religious peers."

Essentially the same point was made by the Rev. Cornelius Rajk, director of the Vatican's Office of Cattolic-Jewish Relations. In the past, he said, Christian teaching virtually ignored Judaism after the coming of Christ. But the savage persecution endured by Jews in Nazi Germany and creation of the state of Israel have opened the eyes of many Christians to the fact that "Judaism today exists as a strong, living, religious reality."

This new awareness of Judaism has been accompanied by a growing willingness on the part of Christians to acknowledge that God's spirit may be at work, His truth glimpsed and His will manifested in more than one religion.

This is not a "new" Christian viewpoint. It was the standard teaching of the early Church, all the way back to the time of St. Paul. Until recently, however, it was in grave danger of getting lost beneath the accumulated misunderstandings and bigotries of many centuries.

New Pastor For Church In Larkspur

Selection of Johnson, to succeed Rev. Frank Hamilton who resigned in May, came Oct. 18 at the congregational meeting. The new pastor will assume regular duties Nov. 22. Formal installation will be on Dec. 13.

A graduate of the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, the 36-year-old pastor has been associated with the Davis Community Presbyterian Church for the past two and one-half years in the church's campus ministry. Prior to that he had been an associate pastor of the Calvary Presbyterian Church in San Francisco.

Fumbles Ruin San Rafael, 19-7

By DAVID EINSTEIN

The record book will duly note that the Terra Linda High School Trojans won their fifth consecutive Marin County Athletic League football championship last night. If history fails to record that the San Rafael High School Bulldogs used their mud-soaked field like a silver platter to give the game away, it's just as well.

Using two fumble recoveries and an intercepted pass to set up all their touchdowns, the Trojans romped joyfully to a 19 - 7 win, thus completing their second perfect 6 - 0 MCAL season in a row.

FIVE FUMBLES

The Bulldogs, who also came into the game undefeated in league action this year and are now 4-1 with one game remaining, played as though they were allergic to the ball. More likely, it was the condition of the field, drenched by three straight days of rain, that caused San Rafael runners to fumble five times.

Terra Linda, on the other hand, turned the ball over only once, and wound up making a prophet of Don Lucas, the winningest coach in MCAL history, who said before the game the outcome would be decided by who got the brakes.

INTERCEPTION

Terra Linda safety Rick Trono, the smallest man on the field, made the biggest break late in the third quarter, with the rain just starting to fall, when he intercepted a pass by San Rafael quarterback Dirk Gansloser on the dead run at midfield and galloped to the two-yard line before being bounced out of bounds. Two plays later, tailback Matt Bowman slid over for the winning touchdown.

In the third period prior to Trono's interception, the Bulldogs seemed to have regained the poise that had carried them to four convincing league victories — poise they obviously didn't have in the first half.

Speedburning halfback Scott Duncan, previouspy contained by the Trojans and unable to get outside on the slippery turf, ripped off 42 yards on the first play following the second half kickoff, and Gansloser completed the 69 - yard drive by bootlegging the last 11 yards to score. John Morehouse added the extra point that gave San Rafael a 7 - 6 lead.

INSURANCE

But the Bulldogs' prosperity was shortlived, and they hastened their own demise after Bowman's touchdown by fumbling at their own 27-yard line on the final play of the third quarter. It took Trojan quarterback Larry Kerr and compnay six plays to score, with reserve halfback Mike Sabel slanting off

Rancho Cotate In Rout

The Cougars of Rohnert Park sparkled in their season-ending game as they rolled to a 22-0 halftime lead. Wlodarczyk, who ranks in the top 10 among Northern California passers, threw two touchdown passes in the first half and set up two second half scores with long bombs.

Cooper scored twice in the second quarter, on a 15-yard strike from Wlodarczyk and an 85-yard interception return. His other touchdown came on a dive in the third quarter after Wlodarcyzk hit him on a 40-yard pass to the Dragon one yard line.

Wlodarczyk, who opened the scoring with a nine-yard toss to Rod Logue in the first period, completed his night's work in the fourth quarter by setting up the Cougars' second to final touchdown with a 46-yard shot to Don Ostrand.

Mike Wlodarczyk, Steve's brother, scored the Cougar's last two touchdowns, on a five yard run and a 23-yard interception runback.

Marin Tars Lose Game By Inches

By STEVEN DREYER

Although the final score was 14-12, the College of Marin football team lost to host Contra Costa College last night by exactly six inches.

Led by emergency quarterback Pete Carroll, the Tars marched 83 yards in 12 plays midway through the second period before being stopped on the six-inch line by an inspired Comet defensive line. Carroll kept the ball twice, both times trying over right guard, but to no avail.

INEFFECTIVE

Carroll replaced back-up signal caller Kevin Peak after one quarter, when Peak proved ineffective against a strong Comet pass defense. Regular quarterback Jim Peters is out for the remainder of the season with a severely sprained ankle.

Key penalties, a muddy field, and a weak defensive right side hurt the Tars all night. Comet offensive backs collected 292 yards in 65 carries. Marin managed only 70 yards rushing, but an impressive 199 in the air mainly due to Carroll's outstanding performance. The sophomore starting defensive back, playing his first game ever as a quarterback, completed 11 of 23 passes for 196 yards without an interception, while running with the ball seven times for an additional 21 yards.

TWO SCORES

Contra Costa led at halftime 8-0 on a one-yard run by halfback George Minnifield early in the opening period. Minnifield scored again, in the third quarter, before Marin could get in the ball game. Tar end Larry Blackwell ran the ensuing kick off to Marin's 24 yard line where Carroll ran for 16 yards, then handed off three times for 14 yards. Carroll then unloaded a second-and-twelve bomb to end Ron Price for 46 yards and the score.

BLACKWELL

With momentum in its favor, the Marin defense held Contra Costa scoreless throughout the final period. The Tars struck for the second time late in the fourth with another Carroll completion, this time to Blackwell for 30 yards. The two-point conversion pass was incomplete, and then Contra Costa ran out the clock for the win.

The loss gives Marin a dismal 0-4 Camino Norte Conference mark, with only one game left,

A Phone Call From Russell And Nate Is Back To Form

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Bill Russell is retired, but he still brings a winning touch to the National Basketball Association.

The great Boston center this week called Nate Thurmond, the 6-11 San Francisco pivotman. Thurmond had undergone off-season surgery, threatened to retire, and then arrived late to training camp after a lengthy salary hassle. He had been ineffective in early-season games.

Thurmond, who termed Russell's call "a hell of a fine gesture," responded to the urging of the all-time NBA great with one of his stronger performances Friday at Portland.

The 6-11 Thurmond hit 18 points and grabbed 25 rebounds to lead the Warriors to a 110-103 win over the Trail Blazers. San Francisco, now 5-6, hosts San Diego tonight.

Jeff Mullins and Jerry Lucas continued their fine play with 32 and 26 points, respectively, while rookie Geeoff Petrie led Portland with 23, Stan McKenzie added 17 and Jim Barnett 16.

Raiders Host Browns In Battle Of Leaders

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Oakland Raiders, who got a few breaks at the right times against Kansas City last week, hope the ball bounces their way again this Sunday as they play the Cleveland Browns for the first time ever in a game involving division leaders.

The Raiders came on to gain a 17-17 tie against the Chiefs on a 48-yard field goal by George Blanda in a game fans thought was lost. The tie, coming as the Denver Broncos were losing, boosted Oakland into first place in the AFC's West Division.

The Browns lost 27-10 to San Diego last Sunday but lead the AFC Central race by two games. The Oakland West lead is strictly a percentage one, mostly because of two ties. - Many of the Cleveland players admit they played "awful" last week in losing to San Diego and they hope to rebound at the expense of the Raiders.

"We know we are in for a tough afternoon," said Cleveland quarterback Bill Nelsen. "The Raiders do so many things well, offensively and defensively, that to beat them you just have to guess right all the time."

The Browns, six point underdogs, feel maybe the best way to move the ball on Oakland is to run it the way the Chiefs did last week—three yards at a clip.

"That is a possibility," said Nelsen.

"That is a solid club," Madden said. "We aren't going to fool them with any razzle-dazzle plays. They have exceptional linebacking and do a good job of disguising their defensive alignments until after the ball is snapped."

The game, naturally, is a sellout while Bay Area fans continue discussing last week's Kansas City tussle in which defensive end Ben Davidson was accused of spearing Chiefs quarterback Len Dawson and thereby precipitating a fight with Otis Taylor.

Both the Browns and Raiders have ailing running backs. Leroy Kelly, with a tender ankle, is listed as a probable starter for the Browns while Hewritt Dixon (bruised ribs) has been switched from doubtful to probable.

Wide receiver Warren Wells and running back Charlie Smith also came out of the Kansas City "war" with aches but chances are both will play against Cleveland. If they can't go, Rod Sherman will move in for Wells and Larry Todd for Smith.

Petaluma Ends Win Famine

Petaluma High School's football team avoided finishing the 1970 season in the North Bay I League cellar last night by defeating the only team in the league worse than themselves. The Trojans shut out the lowly Ukiah Wildcats, 20 - 0 on mud-soaked Durst Field in Petaluma.

The victory for the Trojans was only their second of the year — their first in league play, while the Wildcats did not win a game. Petaluma led for most of the contest, 6 - 0, but added two fourth quarter touchdowns to add a convincing touch to the victory.

The first touchdown came in the first quarter after Al Bettman intercepted a Ukiah pass and rambled 40 40 yards to the two-yard line. Trojan running back Mike Swallow scored two plays later from one yard out.

Quarterback Dan Hart and halfback Mike Ringstad added the fourth quarter touchdowns on runs of four and two yards.

Trojan coach Howard Caden head said he was happy to see his team win, and to see high morale despite the team's 2-5-1 record.

By DAVID DIETZ

Hextall, a redheaded centerman acquired by the California Golden Seals during the summer after being discarded by the Los Angeles Kings, helped set up three goals last night as the Seals routed the Toronto Maple Leafs, 8-4.

The goal outburst was the highest in the Seals' brief National Hockey League history and the win was their third straight — also a first. After losing their first five and seven of their first nine, the Seals are now one point from leaving the cellar in the NHL West Division.

The listless fashion with which California opened the season was no fault of Hextall's. Showing aggressive play from the opening of training camp, the 27-year-old Hextall now has five goals and six assists in 12 games to share the club lead.

In the dressing room last night, Hextall noted no difference in his play from last season, despite being sent to the minors by the Kings after playing only sporadically.

"I guess they didn't like me in Los Angeles," Hextall said,

49ers To Go Bear Hunting

CHICAGO (UPI)— For the first time this year the San Francisco 49ers will go into a regular season game with the entire 40-man squad in near perfect health.

Sunday, the 49ers, who lead the NFC's West Division race by a half game with a 5-1-1 record, tangle with the Chicago Bears, who are struggling along with a 3-4 record and no Gayle Sayers.

Sayers, in past years, has run wild against San Francisco, so the 49ers go into this game a little relieved they don't have to face the star Chicago running back.

"Their linebackers are quick and smart," Nolan said of the Chicago defenders. "We all know what a great player Dick Butkus is but we consider Leroy Caffey only a step behind."

Nolan also thinks the Chicago front four of Bill Staley, Willie Holman, George Seals and Ed Obradovich is the equal of any in the game.

"They're good ,"Nolan said. "They hang in tough and they could give us trouble."

The key to success Sunday as Nolan sees it is for his team to establish a running game.

"We have to do that and early so that our passing can be more effective," said the San Francisco coach.

Gene Washington, the fleet Forty Niner wide receiver who sat out last week's 26-10 victory over Green Bay, is ready to go again at full tilt. No one was more pleased to hear that news than quarterback John Brodie, who likes to throw to Washington every chance he gets.

Washington, of course, figures to give the Chicago defense problems. He is a tough man to defense one-on-one and yet if they put double coverage on him tight end Bob Windsor and running backs Ken Willard and Doug Cunningham become free targets for Brodie.

Brodie goes into Sunday's game with a career total of 1,979 completions. Only three other quarterbacks in pro history have completed more passes—Johnny Unitas, Y. A. Tittle and Sonny Jurgensen.

With Sayers out for the year, Ron Bull and Don Shy handle the Chicago running attack. Dick Gordon is the team's leading pass receiver with 30 catches.

Sunday's game is the 37th between the 49ers and Bears and the Bears lead the series 19-16-1. San Francisco, though, is favored by 6½ points.

DALLAS HAS IT TOUGH, TOO

Close Race In Pro Football

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

There are almost more theories on why the Dallas Cowboys don't win in the playoffs than there are people in Dallas.

Almost everyone in town has his own theory why the Cowboys have been beaten for four consecutive years in key post-season games, in cluding 38-14 and 31-20 losses to Cleveland the past two years.

One of the many theories — which may or may not have any more validity than any of the others —is that the club has had it too easy in the regular season in recent years.

"If you've never been in a fight, you're not ready for one when it comes along," is the way one team spokesman put it.

Not since 1966, when the Cowboys were 10-3-1 and Cleveland was 9-5, has any team come even remotely close to the Cowboys in their division during the regular season. In 1967, Dallas was 9-5 and Philadelphia was second at 6-7-1; in 1968, Dallas was 12-2 and New York was 7-7; last year Dallas was 11-2-1 and Washington was 7-5-2.

But this year, things have changed. The Cowboys are in a fight —and they know it. The club is currently engaged in a four-way battle for the NFC Eastern Crown. The Cowboys are tied at 5-2 with St. Louis while both the New York Giants and Washington Redskins are 4 3.

The Cowboys are also about to enter the phase of the schedule that wi ll make or break their bid for a fifth straight division crown this year. The Cowboys will invade New York Sunday —and then will play three tough games in a 10-day open.

Coach Tom Landry's club will host St. Louis in the Monday night TV game on Nov. 16, travel to Washington on Sunday, Nov. 22 and host old nemesis Green Bay on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 26.

Dallas is a three-point favorite to turn back a New York team it beat by a 28-10 margin in the second game of the season. But the Cowboys trailed 10-0 at halftime in that game and the Giants now have reeled off four straight victories and are shooting for an upset.

In the other games, Minnesota is at Washington, Cleveland is at Oakland, San Francisco is at Chicago, Denver is at San Diego, Atlanta is at Los Angeles, Detroit at New Orleans, Boston is at St. Louis, Houston is at Kansas City, Miami is at Philadelphia, the New York Jets are at Pittsburgh and Cincinnati is at Buffalo. In the Monday night TV game, Baltimore meets Green Bay at Milwaukee.

If St. Louis beats Boston (and the Cards are heavy favorites to do that), Dallas must beat the Giants to remain tied for first place in the NFC Eastern Division.

Except in the AFC Eastern Division where Baltimore has a two-game lead over Miami, the leaders in the other divisions could be caught this weekend.

The Western Division races in each conference are the closest. Oakland, which has a 3-2-2 record, must beat Cleveland because Kansas City (3-3-1) is a heavy favorite over Houston. Denver (4-3) is an underdog against San Diego (2-3-2).

Should Cleveland upset Oakland and Kansas City and San Diego win, the race in the AFC West would look this way: Kansas City 4-3-1; Oakland 3-3-2; San Diego 3-3-2 and Denver 4-4. You can't get things much closer than that.

Meanwhile, San Francisco must beat Chicago to stay ahead of Los Angeles, which is expected to beat Atlanta, in the NFC West.

If Cleveland loses to Atlanta, it can be tied in the AFC Central by Pittsburgh, which is meeting a crippled New York Jet team.

Minnesota has to beat Washington to stay ahead of Detroit, which is figured to beat New Orleans, in the NFC Central.

Detroit's Basketball Problem

DETROIT (UPI)--University of Detroit officials have yet to take the drastic action of recruiting an entire new basketball team following the suspension of 25 varsity and freshmen players after they called for the ouster of Coach Jim Harding.

Most of the action since the players listed their demands Thursday has been behind the scenes in an attempt to salvage the Titans' varsity basketball program.

NO PRACTICE

The Titans are scheduled to open the 1970-71 season Dec. 1, but there have been no complete practice sessions since last Monday when 13 players boycotted practice. The boycott spread until Thursday when the entire squad demanded Harding's resignation and he retaliated by suspending them.

Detroit officials Friday said they had received hints that several players are interested in rejoining the team, but they consider themselves too deeply involved to simply abandon the players' coalition.

NOT OFFICIAL

While there was no official activity, interested alumni and university administrators were busy trying to arrange a peaceful solution to the impasse.

Should reconciliation talks fail, school officials have indicated they would begin recruiting a new team from the school's student body.

Jock Liberation Front's Jog-In

BERKELEY (UPI)—A disruption intended to disrupt the Big Game between Stanford and California Nov. 19 is being planned by the Jock Liberation Front (JLF).

It will take the form of a Jog-In, according to Randy Smyth, a former University of California quartermiler and football bench-warmer.

He said Friday the JLF would number several thousand and jog up to the stadium.

A similar adventure at Kansas University drew a few dozen joggers to the stadium, who quickly withdrew when police arrived.

"But we believe we succeeded in educating the people to the jock problems there," Smyth said.

He said the JLF has two goals: Liberate jocks (athletes) and bring athletics to the people.

"We want people to know where sports is at," said Smyth. "Sports in America is a microcosmic form of the evils in our society as a whole. Football is an exhibition of sexism, of elitism by separating the athletes from other students, of racism, of militarism—as shown by the techniques of the game and the military music of the band, and of authoritarianism among coaches and administration.

"It is no accident that sports, the way they are, breed people like Richard Nixon."

He said future targets would include Syracuse, the University of Washington and Detroit University.

The Seals took advantage of sloppy Toronto passing throughout, and coach Fred Glover attributed the deciding three-goal barrage in the second period to aggressive play.

Benvenuti Is Shooting For Knockout

"I don't like making predictions and I don't believe in them," Benvenuti said. "But I can say it's my intention to finish this bout within the limit."

After meeting Monzon for the first time Friday, Benvenuti commented: "He's got good muscles, but otherwise he doesn't impress me."

Asked if he were worried about the outcome of the fight, Benvenuti said, "When you are old like me (he is 32), you have to worry about everything. But it's going to be Monzon who will do the worrying."

The 28-year-old Argentine shunned the ritual pre-fight boasting and spoke of Benvenuti only as "a great champion." However, he said he was speaking from hearsay since he never had seen Benvenuti in action.

Monzon has never before fought outside Latin American, but all the same he comes with an impressive professional record of 68 wins, 45 of them on knockouts, three losses and nine draws.

Lakers' Jerry West Thrives On Pressure

By United Press International

Jerry West has this thing about pressure.

"I thrive on pressure," says West. "I welcome it. I'm at my best in a tough situation."

West took advantage of a pressure situation Friday night, sinking a 20-foot jump shot with 41 seconds remaining to give the Los Angeles Lakers a 106-104 victory over the New York Knickerbockers.

New York had drawn to within two points at 104-102 with 55 seconds left before West scored his crucial basket for the deciding points. West had 32 points and backcourt mate Gail Goodrich had 33 to pace the Lakers' attack. Willis Reed led the Knicks with 24.

In other National Basketball Association action Friday night, Philadelphia downed Atlanta, 118-112, Phoenix edged Chicago, 105-102, Boston ripped Seattle, 116-94, Baltimore beat San Diego, 125-118 and San Francisco defeated Portland, 110-103.

Billy Cunningham, Hal Greer and Jim Washington combined for 87 points to lead the 76ers over the Hawks. Cunningham had 38 points, Greer 25 and Washington 24 to highlight the Philadelphia attack. Bill Bridges and Pete Maravich led Atlanta with 20 points each.

Dick Van Arsdale scored 14 of his 23 points in the second half to lift the Suns over the Bulls. Chet Walker led Chicago with 29.

John Havlicek's 30-point performance paced the Celtics over the SuperSonics, Boston's fourth victory in a row. Dick Snyder's 28 points were high for Seattle.

Earl Monroe had 27 points and Gus Johnson scored 25 while taking down 20 rebounds as the Bullets beat the Rockets. Baltimore ripped off eight straight points at the start of the fourth quarter to break open a close game. Elvin Hayes' 35 points led the San Diego attack.

tackle the last 10 yards for the insurance touchdown.

Terra Linda's first touchdown, which happened to be the first against the Bulldogs in league play this season, also was the product of a fumble, one of four San Rafael committed in the first half. Midway through the second quarter, Kerr, the league's best linebacker, pounced on a loose ball at the Bulldog 12-yard line, and then the same Kerr got up to direct his team into the end zone in three plays. He hit Bill LaHaye on an eight-yard swing pass, and gave twice to fullback John Scozzafava, the second time for three yards and the touchdown.

Both teams showed surprisingly effective rushing games, considering the mud, but it was the churning power of Scozzafava and Bowman deep in San Rafael territory that allowed the Trojans to cash in on the breaks.

San Rafael	0	0	7	0	-7
Terra Linda	0	6	6	7	-19

TL - Scozzafava, 3 run (Kick failed).
SR - Gansloser, 11 run (Morehouse kick).
TL - Biwman, 2 run (Run failed).
TL - Sabel, 10 run (Corbett kick).

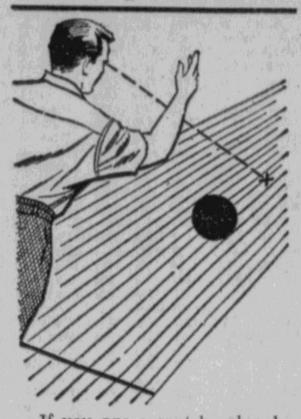
BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER



If you are a spot bowler, be one. It does you little good to carefully calculate which board or arrow you should be throwing the ball over, then take your eyes off the spot before the ball gets there. How will you know whether the ball hit the target or not? The secret is concentration. Know exactly where your ball rolled.

Ski Resorts Are Opening

SQUAW VALLEY (UPI)— Squaw Valley and Mt. Rose open for the 1970-71 ski season today, joining Mammoth Mountain, which started going Thursday.

With snow due to continue falling in the High Sierra, there is also a chance that the Sierra Ski Ranch will start at least a portion of its lifts this weekend.

After hovering near 7,000 feet most of the week, the snow level has dropped to around 5,000 feet and is getting lower.

Several other areas, including Bear Valley, Boreal Ridge and Heavenly Valley, are tentatively planning to open Nov. 14. Sugar Bowl is aiming at Nov. 21.

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce United States Coast Geodetic Survey. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depts are always additive to the chart depts unless preceded by a (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. MARIN'S GLENN CAMPBELL — John L. Pulsipher, 18, of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Wollborg of Terra Linda, says he's been singing songs since he was three. He's just launched his professional career.

Folk Singer Begins Career At The Dock

A young Terra Linda singer, a look-alike of country-western singer Glenn Cambell but with a sound all his own, has finally begun his career after years of motherly encouragement.

Eighteen-year-old John L. Pulsipher, who last night started his second week as a professional singer at The Dock in Tiburon, said yesterday his destiny as a singer began at age 3.

"My mother used to sit me in a highchair and make me sing 'Way Down Upon a Swanee River,'" laughed young Pulsipher, his guitar clutched under one arm.

A garduate of Terra Linda High School, he now studies music at the College of Marin when not singing at the Tiburon restaurant on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

Pulsipher began seriously to consider a future in singing four years ago while under the tutorage of Byron Jones, San Rafael High School music teacher.

Later came engagements at private parties and the United Service Organization shows in San Francisco where he teamed with the wife of his manager, Allan Hurwitz.

Now he's awaiting that "first break" into show business, said Pulsipher, hoping soon to be propelled into records, nightclub contracts and possibly television.

"We're hoping some record company people from Los Angeles will come to listen to me," he said. "You have to be working somewhere before they will show any interest."

Pulsipher, who sings about 40 songs a night, is also a composer. His program of four sets — 10 songs each — includes about 10 numbers he has composed in the last year.

His compositions are usually spontaneous affairs, the young singer said, sometimes taking only five minutes to write. Other times, however, a week's labor is involved.

They range from "Go Gentle Love" to "Jamaica Bay," and typify the types of songs he likes best — folk and popular.

But his future is in singing ("Because I do it best") not composing. He said then it doesn't matter if he becomes a name singer.

"You don't sing for getting some place," he said, "but rather for the beauty of the song."

Pulsipher, who lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Wollborg of 479 Hibiscus Way, last year played the leading role in Terra Linda High School's production of "Carnival."

He will be appearing weekends through the middle of December at The Dock, but after that the future is uncertain. One thing's for sure, however, it will be a future of singing, he says. "Ever since I was a child I have never really thought of doing anything else."

Captain Of Gun-Laden Subchaser Disappears

The captain of a gun-laden subchaser raided in the Tiburon Harbor on July 15 has disappeared although his attorney said yesterday he thinks the boat is still in the Bay Area.

After attorney Marvin Cahn of Berkeley reported in Marin Municipal Court yesterday that he cannot locate Jerald Noel McDonald, 30-year-old Salt Lake City Navy veteran, nor his boat, a bench warrant was issued for McDonald.

Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. set bail on the bench warrant at $5,000 and ordered McDonald's earlier bail forfeited.

Earlier the court had issued a bench warrant for the first mate of ship Makaira, George William Lawson, 28, also a Navy veteran.

A preliminary hearing for the remaining crew members, Robert Allen Drake, 19, and James Lee Harris, 25, is set for next Tuesday. They are accused of furnishing marijuana and possessing stolen property.

Drug agens who raided the converted subchaser theorized that the boat had been used to smuggle both arms and narcotics between Mexico and the United States. The agents found no narcotics on the day of the arrest but confiscated about 60 handguns and rifles, many of them loaded.

Gasoline Price War Continues

The price war reportedly was sparked by the start of a self-service Mobil station in San Rafael and price cuts in San Francisco.

Arthur W. Mortensen, an officila of the Texaco distribution center in Petaluma, described the price cuts as "part of the general price depression" in the area, noting that gasoline prices have been cut in San Francisco, Santa Rosa and Napa.

"I'm at 32 cents a gallon on regular. It's a gas war," reported the proprietor of George's Texaco station, Fourth and Irwin Streets.

San Rafael Union Service, Second Street and Lincoln Avenue, reported its prices were dropped 3 cents a gallon on regular and 2 cents on premium.

Gilmore's Shell Service at Third and Irwin Streets dropped its prices, citing the start of a self-service Mobil station across the street as a key factor.

The Marin Independent Service Stations Association had strongly protested conversion of the Mobil station at 575 Second Street to self-service.

Don's Phillips, 396 Irwin Street, is holding the line, but the proprietor said he was opposed to the self-service operation.

Civic Center Security To Be Studied

The Civic Center Security program, including frisking people who enter, will be discussed by the Marin County Human Rights Commission next Thursday at San Rafael High School.

The commission will meet at 8 p.m. in Room CA-1 (Cafeteria building) at the high school.

Commissioners will discuss the constitutionality of the stop-and-search program at the entrances to the Hall of Justice and Civic Center Administration Building and whether or not the inconvenience to the public is justified.

Commissioners will also seek more information on the "secret witness" program started this week by the Independent-Journal to make sure it protects persons who might be wrongfully accused of crimes.

The "secret witness" program permits anonymous tips by citizens who have information on major crimes but do not want their identities known.

Snyder Lane Plan Due At Council

Plans for the widening and improvement of Snyder Lane will be considered Monday at 7:30 p.m. at an adjourned meeting of the Rohnert Park city council.

Details of the assessment district proceedings will be discussed as well as the possible awarding of a construction contract. In the bid opening Thursday, the apparent low bidder was Arthur B. Siri Inc. of Santa Rosa at $318,100.

Second lowest of the six bidders was Argonaut Constructors of Santa Rosa at $327,826.

Sentencing Date Set in Pot Case

Donald William Rodriguez, 19, of Corte Madera, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a felony charge of possessing marijuana. He is to appear in Superior Court Nov. 16 for setting of a sentencing date.

Rodriguez, who had earlier been accused of cultivating pot, was arrested Sept. 13 by Sheriff's deputies who said they saw him and another youth watering four plants off Tiburon Paradise Drive. The other youth's case was transferred to juvenile court, where proceedings are not public.

Transfer Case

The case of Michael Gordon Mosier, 18, of Corte Madera, yesterday was transferred to juvenile court from Marin Municipal Court.

Mosier is charged with an auto burglary Oct. 10.

Violence Trial Jury Goes Home While Attorneys Argue

I-J Special Report

FAIRFIELD — The jury in the trial of seven men arrested outside the Independent-Journal Valentine's Day was sent home yesterday when attorneys continued arguments over the admissability of evidence.

Judge William E. Jensen dismissed the panel until Monday when it became clear no further testimony would be heard.

Marin Deputy Dist. Atty. Joshua W. Thomas wants to introduce photographs taken of debris-throwing pickets during a pro-labor demonstration outside the newspaper plant, but the defense contends the pictures were snapped after the arrest of the seven defendants.

Judge Jensen has ruled inadmissable testimony and evidence of post-arrest violence.

Whether the judge will allow Thomas to introduce any of his pictures will not be known until Monday.

The trial, switched here when the defense said it couldn't get a fair trial in Marin, will begin its fourth week Monday.

Marin Planners To Meet In Mill Valley

The Mill Valley City Council will meet with its planning commission and the Marin County Planning Department Tuesday at 8 p.m. at city hall to discuss housing requirements in the city.

The county planners are meeting with each city in Marin to explain new state and federal requirements that cities must adopt a housing element as part of their general plans.

Innocent Plea To Felony Charge

Carl Ove Smith, 21, of Novato, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to a felony charge of battery on a police officer. A preliminary hearing was set for Tuesday.

Smith was arrested Oct. 29 when he allegedly hit a policeman investigating an auto accident in which he had been involved.

Elderly Housing Plan On Agenda

Plans for a nonprofit housing development for the elderly will be considered Monday at 8 p.m. by the Mill Valley Planning Commission. The meeting will be at city hall.

The Mill Valley Community Church wants to build the project, which ultimately would house 400 retirees, on 9.78 acres at Camino Alto and Miller Avenue.

Also before the commission will be a tentative subdivision map for a 45-unit townhouse project on 2.5 acres near La Goma Street and Miller Avenue.

Butcher Talks Set To Continue

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — Negotiations on a three-year contract between 10,000 Northern California butchers and their employers were to resume today, according to federal mediator Roger Randall.

The butchers are working in Marin County markets and elsewhere in Northern California only on a day-to-day basis, so long as negotiations continue.

Randall said yesterday that this weekend's talks could be "the critical stage" in agreeing to a new contract or starting wide-scale walkouts.

Technicality Halts Plan

A technicality has temporarily held up plans by the Sleepy Hollow Homeowners Association to form a community services district, according to Assist. County Administrator John F. Barrows.

Barrows said the petitions the association submitted to him Wednesday lacked the required dates beside each petitioner's signature.

For the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission to act on the petition, it must bear the signatures of 5 per cent of the assessed valuation of the proposed district, Barrows said. He said he would not determine the validity of the signatures until the date formality is completed.

The Sleepy Hollow homeowners indicated they intend to have the proposed district take over functions of their fire district, and also to acquire the Sleepy Hollow Stables property for recreation use, Barrows said.

The dollar is derived from the thaler, first minted in Bohemia in the 15th century.

Poetry Reading Among Events On College Calendar

Poetry reading, a batik demonstration and films are planned next week at Sonoma State College.

Clarence F. Burr, poet, author, inventor and songwriter, will recite poetry from memory Tuesday from noon to 2 p.m. in the quiet lounge. Burr, 85, says many of his viewpoints coincide with those of contemporary students.

A batik and tie-dye demonstration will be given Wednesday at 1 p.m. in Darwin Hall by Sheri Brautigam of Forestville. A lecture and slide presentation are also planned.

Two films will be shown Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Stevenson Hall. Richard Tuck, graduate student from Petaluma, will present "Hell's Hinges" (1916) with William S. Hart and "Of Mice and Men" with Lon Chaney Jr. and Betty Field.

Student Exhibit

Art work by students of Elizabeth Holland McDaniel of Bolinas will be on exhibit at the Redwood Bank, 1447 Fourth Street, San Rafael, through this month. Exhibit hours are 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Fridays.

A Salute to Marin's Flying Ace

Marin Native Air Ace In World War I

Downed Eight Aircraft In Flying Dog Fights

The late Clinton Jones Jr. was the kind of guy that Snoopy wants to be . . . a World War I flying ace, maneuvering his Spad over the French landscape, shooting down the enemy.

Jones, born and reared in Ross, became one of this nation's first air aces by downing eight enemy planes in dogfights, and was twice awarded the Distinguished Service Cross.

He was a member of the 22nd Pursuit Squadron, which in 61 flying days accounted for 46 victories over German planes, a feat, Capt. A. R. Brooks, squadron commander described as a "remarkable record for the small length of time to do it in."

WHAT WAS it like in the skies over France in those days? The official records dwindle down to a set of dry statistics, and memories of old fliers tend to fade, or in the other extreme to embellish the exploits beyond the facts.

Undoubtedly the most authentic account came from the fliers themselves, shortly after the events, and Lieutenant Jones left behind such a record.

After the armistice, he sent to Capt. Brooks, an account of several of his battles, which has been made available to the Marin Magazine.

One of Jones' noted feats was downing three enemy planes in a dog fight in the Mont Fauson region between Very and Ivoiry as the enemy planes were attacking an Allied observation balloon.

OF THIS episode, he wrote: "Our patrol of seven met nine Huns. Gentle reader it grieves me to state that two of the enterprising fellows made good their escape. I had four combats in said flight and as far as known camped two. No pilots lost."

"During said fight it was my good fortune to find myself on one Hun's tail. He dived, followed by yours truly, at a distance of 50 meters, 30 shots. He continued his nose dive right into the ground.

"COMING up a bird jumped me from above and in front. He peaked firing. There being little choice in the matter for me I pulled up and fired with apparent success. He went down in a normal glide. I followed to put the finishing touches on him.

"Some one jumped me from behind. . . . Mr. Swaab (Lt. Jacques M. Swaab) kindly shot this baby off my tail. Still later another of these persistent pilots endeavored to do his bit. LaForce (Lt. W. W. LaForce) attended to this last in most up to date manner."

"The first Fokker I attacked had grey wings. He crashed, going down in vertical nose dive, pulling out and crashing on edge of a wood. I saw my bullets about 30 going into his plane about the pilot seat."

OF THE second downing, he reported: "When coming up a Fokker peaked on me from in front. His shots went over me. I pulled up and fired about 25 rounds directly into his machine, turned and got on his tail. He was far below and while shooting I could see pieces of his ship floating down as he went down out of control."

On the third success, he said; "Saw a Fokker diving after a Spad. I fired no more than 20 shots and he left with three Spads on his tail. My shots entered near the pilot's seat and he also appeared to be out of control."

Not all of Jones' missions were as spectacular and he told in his memorandum to his commanding officer, of a flight near Verdun on Oct. 18, 1918. At that time, he tried to signal down an enemy plane outnumbered by seven Spads.

"SEEING the odds against this plane I endeavored to play the good samaritan, went up to signal to this baby," he wrote. "My efforts in this direction evidently were not appreciated for he turned his gun on me and tried to demonstrate his ability as a marksman.

"This so enraged me that I was forced to set his plane on fire but not before shooting the pilot in the eye and some big holes in the gas tank. In the meantime a fire having started in my ship I was forced to land, which landing took place in some wire entanglements. No. 18 washed out."

Lieutenant Jones' hairiest adventure came just before the armistice, when he became separated from his patrol near St. Georges and his plane was riddled, but he escaped uninjured.

In an excerpt from his diary, he described the events as follows:

"Lost my patrol over Aincreville, joined a formation of eight Spads. We encountered four Fokkers one of which detached himself from his formation and dived under us.

"FEELING particularly ambitious that day I went down after him. I got on his tail and fired about 100 shots. My position was excellent and shots seemed to be going right into the pilot's seat.

"He pulled up in front of me affording me the best shot I ever had in the air. While he was in this position, I got in another hundred shots and finished him.

"While still doing the right thing by this Hun, one of his compatriots jumped me from behind in a most disconcerting manner. From his method of attack this bird was at least Baron Richthoffen's first cousin for he rode me from 4,000 meters right to the ground.

"The old maneuver failed, that of nose down, for after a 1,500 meter nose dive I pulled out only to be greeted by a burst of incendiary bullets very near my head, in fact had I not pulled that organ in, the usual 'Well, it was too bad, he was a nice fellow,' might have followed.

"WHEN HE had put six bullets in my nourrice tank and three through my windshield, I dived 1,000 meters more and pulled out. He still continued his unwelcome attentions. Inside slipping the remaining distance, he was on my tail and still firing. Result — 27 bullets in my plane; washout. . . . Also my last appearance."

On that flight, Jones was flying Spad No. 20, which is stored at the Smithsonian Institution, a plane also flown by Capt. Brooks.

In writing a history of the plane, Capt. Brooks reported seven victories were accounted for in Spad No. 20. On its landing after Lieutenant Jones' Oct. 30 flight it had 27 bullet holes, six in the nourrice tank, three in the windshield and the remainder in the wings and fuselage.

He noted that on Oct. 27, Lieutenant Jones, flying Spad No.

Fokkers Knocked Out

ALTHOUGH his record was excellent, Jones didn't get off to a fast start in combat, according to the following account in a book of "Experience of Capt. A. R. Brooks."

The captain wrote: "Speaking of the manner in which a novice is absolutely 'lost' during his early patrols, I might tell you that on September second, while showing Tyndell and Jones, then two new pilots, the region from Luneville to Metz, I attacked and shot down in flames a Boche biplane machine, with Jonesie half unstrapped in his seat, unable to join the fray, while 'Tyn' searched in vain for the target I was apparently shooting at, and failed to see any signs of the camouflaged Hun below."

But two days later on Sept. 4, 1918, Capt. Brooks noted that any "lack" in the early mission was compensated "when the same three of us attacked and shot down out of control a Boche who had spectacularly shot down one of our balloons."

CAPT. BROOKS also recalled another flight in which Jones participated, this one on Oct. 9 on a patrol to Brieulles-sur-Meuse . . . "with Beane, Clapp, Jones, Crissey, Vernam, Gibson, Le Force and Lovell, we saw Huns all around.

"Arriving at the lines we chased a Fokker from above one of our balloons; he was joined by six others, then six more. We ran into two more biplanes and a group of five Fokkers. Then a group of 14 Fokkers intermingled with this other patrol. Observation planes, Brequet bombing planes or other Spads, and what-not. We managed to get into a decent amount of questionable positions in the sky, and we were fortunate in shooting down a few, without losing any of our men."

In general, the captain reported, "Such things as alerts, protective missions, bomb dropping (we carried two small 20-pound bombs on our small planes) road strafing, patrols were all in one or another day's work.

Capt. Brooks has described Jones as "one of the finest fighter pilots as well as one of the finest gentlemen I ever knew," and his record outstanding.

IN RECOUNTING his experiences, the captain praised the squadron, pointed out that "Clint Jones accomplished several brilliant exploits that won him eight official credits."

After the war Jones returned to the Bay Area, but then settled in Sacramento, where he was owner and manager of a grain business for 40 years before he died in 1965 after a brief illness.

New Service For The Sick

Three Hospital Orderlies Launch Home Aid Program

By GIL PEARSON

Something both unique and necessary for house-bound invalids is the brand new Sick Room Service of Marin — the brain-child of three enterprising hospital-trained orderlies.

Reginald Butler, the prime mover who conceived this SRS, says, "We provide emergency medical aid by experienced orderlies and nurses' aides on a 24-hour, seven days a week basis, for patients in their own homes.

"Our activities are greatly varied according to demand and include catheter change, bowl care, bath assistance, feeding, bedding change, dressing changes when authorized, and assistance to doctors and nurses as are required.

"We do not administer drugs or injections, nor do we provide ambulance-type service or do housework."

SRS STAFF members are fully qualified as hospital orderlies and nurses' aids. They are dispatched on telephone call from the house-bound to any location in the county from Point Reyes to Fort Cronkite.

The staff is available for emergency calls of comparatively short duration. The service cannot, accordingly, furnish full-time assistance. The fee is a nominal fixed rate ranging from $3.50 to $8.50 a hour plus mileage and materials.

Orderlies and nurses aids who want to join the SRS for additional part time work are invited to phone and register.

Hospitals and medical facilities in Marin and San Francisco counties which have a continuing demand for emergency home sick room orderlies and nurses aids can be serviced by SRS via telephone request.

PRINCIPAL MEMBERS of the Sick Room Service of Marin are Thomas McNaught with two years hospital orderly experience in Texas plus four years in charge of Marin General Hospital Central Service night orderlies.

Alfred Misa, who has three years as an orderly in a Long Island, N.Y., hospital and a year with Marin General. And, Butler with five years as an orderly with St. Joseph Hospital, Chicago, and Marin General.

Phylis Berdanier and Mary McNaught lend organizational and administrative effort to establishing the SRS as a vigorous business.

IN DEVELOPING this statement for the benefit of countless patients in dire need of such services, the writer asked for an appraisal of this new project by a medical authority. Five doctors responded as follows,

"To Whom It May Concern: Reginald Butler, Thomas McNaught, and Alfred Misa — all of Marin General Hospital, have come up with something both unique and necessary. They call it SRS, Sick Room Service. Its 24-hour emergency nature makes it of service to the sudden requirements of home-bound patients. We can only wish them well. Signed, Drs. John R. Manis, J. Gavin Southerland, Theodore D. Hiatt, Charles E. Calza, and Harper J. Buck."

ORGANIZERS OF Sick Room Service are, from the left, Tom McNaught, Alfred Misa and Reggie Butler, experienced orderlies at Marin General Hospital. (Photos by Gil Pearson)

Realtors Note

Fifty Years

A poster reads:

"$150 buys a house and lot. Of course, there are other requirements. But they are easy for the right kind of a man. He must be a family man; a home loving man; a man with good moral character; enough ability to hold his job; and pay on the house and lot what he now pays in rent."

The poster went on:

"If you are that kind of man, you can get a home in Sequoia Park in San Anselmo."

Other signs and advertising notices included such phrases as "the balance can be paid over a period of five years; this means you can pay as little as three dollars per month. Can anything be fairer?" Or "we insure the residents of Laurel Dells immunity from saloons, manufacturing establishments, and everything else detrimental to a highly organized community. Lots are from $250 up."

OR THE poster that reads: "Santa Venetia . . . the still water marvel of the 20th Century, most stupendous project ever conceived in the west; four miles of canals, 100 feet wide, bulkheads of concrete, artistic staircases; $1,000,000 to be spent in improvements . . . mountains, still water, and sea, all in one."

That was a sampling of the real estate picture in the early days of the Marin County Real Estate Board back in the 1920's, 1930's, and even before.

This month, the Board, now called the Marin County Board of Realtors, celebrates its 50th anniversary.

A 50th anniversary dinner was held a few weeks ago at Domenic's in San Rafael. In attendance were many of the past presidents and the officers and members of those early boards that were formed when the industry was a far cry from the important factor it is in Marin County in 1970.

TODAY, the Marin County Board of Realtors has 225 member offices with a total of more than 800 employees. It is one of the largest employers in the county, probably exceeded only by the school district and county employees.

With headquarters in an expansive, one-level commercial building at 255 West End Avenue off the Miracle Mile, it now has nine employees headed by executive manager Dan Deedy.

The Marin County Board of Realtors has played, for many years, an important role in the growth and prosperity of Marin County, says 1970 president W. Bruce Shafer.

The board was very active in the campaign for the introduction of the Golden Gate Bridge. Members campaigned for the first bridge bond issue in the early 1930's; they voted for it; they advertised for it, put stickers on their cars, placards in their windows; they talked it up. No bonds, no bridge.

The board was active, too, in urging the location of what is now Hamilton Field Air Base in our county.

OVER THE years, the board has contributed financially to high school graduates with their Archie Culpepper Award, to the College of Marin, to scores of fine causes; they have a blood bank; they have worked hard in an effort to keep Marin "green and clean" with litter bag campaigns.

Fifty years ago, though, the board had an estimated 14 members, as compared with its more than 800 today. "We could count the number of brokers in Marin County on both hands," said Thomas Minto, one of the first members and now an 81-year-old Kentfield resident.

"We felt an organization of real estate people would be beneficial, both to ourselves and to the residents of the county," said Minto. "Our first meeting was held in our own office, Kent and Minto, then at 210-216 Sir Francis Drake in San Anselmo. Dues were $1 per month; we needed a few dollars for correspondence, stamps, etc. We met once a month, most of the time alternating holding the meetings in members' offices. Sometimes we had five or six people present. We had no secretary, no salaried help, all volunteer work done by members We occasionally put on a dutch treat meeting-party. James Leach, Tom Kent (Kentfield was named after his father), Bob Carey and myself were among the organizers in those days.

"From 1922 to 1934, the records of the Board are sketchy. It was somewhat inactive."

"IN THESE depression years, the real estate field, as did everything else, reached its low peak. Many real estate offices just closed," Minto said.

"People had no money, they had no confidence, they didn't know when they would get a job. Quite a number of real estate contracts were in escrow, and were cancelled. Sometimes real estate brokers also had an insurance business tied in, and this kept them somewhat solvent," said Minto.

Talk of the Golden Gate Bridge started in the early 1930's. Engineer Joseph Strauss attended a meeting in Santa Rosa, at which a number of Marin County real estate leaders were in attendance. From that meeting, some historians say, came the first "push" for a study of the feasibility of the Golden Gate Bridge, and realtors played a big role.

IN 1934, the board was reorganized, and a man with the unusual initials of U.S. Turley became its next president. In 1935, Farrington L. Jones was president, and the Board had approximately 20 members.

Succeeding presidents were C. R. DeWitt, who established, in 1936, the first Multiple Listing Service, which was to collapse during World War II; Maynard Redmond in 1937; Lloyd Grandi in 1938; then George Schleicher, Bill Nock, Tom Irvine, W. Robert Miller, Columbus Pierce, Redmond again, then Frank Healion in 1945 — to cover the World War II years when the Board continued to function, though in a limited way.

After the war ended, however, the Marin County board really started to grow along with the county. Many veterans stationed here during the war liked Marin County, and they returned here. Population began to increase.

In 1948, while William G. Rutherford was president, the Board adopted the slogan: "On the Golden Side of the Golden Gate," a slogan still used today.

IN 1949, president Archie Culpepper re-established the Multiple Listing Service as a separate organization of the board. In 1950, president Bill Hamilton initiated studies that combined the Board and the Multiple Listing Service.

The year 1951 marked a historic milestone in the Board's history. The first office was established in the Cheda Bldg., in San Rafael, a tiny 10x12 office. Dan Deedy was hired as execu-

Other highlights in the years ahead included establishment of the Marin County "Man of the Year" award, since discontinued for a number of reasons. Among the winners were Ada Fusselman, for her work with education (a woman actually became the first "man" of the year); Manny Charnow, for his work with senior citizens; Joseph Brusatori, now San Rafael Chief of Police, for his work with juveniles, and others.

The Marin County board won the "outstanding achievement" award presented by the California Real Estate Association in 1954; the Board built and moved into its present home at 255 West End Avenue in 1956; the $500 Archie Culpepper Award to be presented to an outstanding high school senior each year was created in 1957, and awarded for the first time in 1958; films were purchased for the juvenile hall in 1959; the Board took over complete occupancy of the 255 West End address in 1962.

Some comments about the past:

FARRINGTON L. JONES, 1935 president: "I remember when we felt lucky to make a $250 commission, when I used to drive an old three-door Hupmobile, and my wife a tiny Dodge, when I sold a touse right after the war to war correspondent Marguerite Higgins in Fairfax, a little Marin County retreat for her.

The Board used to meet there once in a while, until it burned down in 1928. Hillside lots in San Rafael were selling for $250-$300 then; level lots, up to $1,000. You could build a home for $4 a square foot; buy a nice home for $3,000-$5,000, and I used to sell many homes over and over again."

FRANK HEALION, 1945 president: "I was a member from 1920 when we first organized, but I was not one of the officers. Sometimes we met in the old Tamalpais Hotel because some of our members owned it. We just met; not much organization, no money, just meet and

FORMER WINSHIP HOME NOW BEING REMODELLED BY ITS NEW OWNER

THE climate of Ross Valley is acknowledged by all to be the most perfect all the year round of any within less than an hour's ride of San Francisco.

There is absolutely no fog and no wind.

A sleeping porch should go with all homes in Winship Park, as this means rest and strength for you and your wife, and good health and happiness for the little ones.

It is an ideal place for the family. Good schools and churches, and daily deliveries by the nearby produce merchants—in fact a country home with all city advantages.

THE COUNTRY ATMOSPHERE of Ross was a selling point stressed by a San Francisco real estate agent, who praised the climate and claimed it was an ideal place for the family to live.

As for the future of the Marin County Board of Realtors and the real estate industry in Marin county, Donald Beacock, vice-president elect of the Board, and chairman of the Long-Range Planning Committee, says:

"My hope for the future is that we maintain our progressive position as leaders. Our industry and our Board are on the threshold of a new beginning. It is true we are faced with many challenging problems both from inside and outside our industry, but our task must be to turn these problems into opportunities for ouselves, our Board, and our communities.

"We must enter this new era with the knowledge that the past fifty years must be considered so that we may effectively plan for the next fifty years. Our future objectives should be to increase even more our professional standards, to promote and protect real property ownership, to help find constructive solutions to the problems of our communities, and to improve the efficiency and effectiveness with which we serve the public."

A TYPICAL JAMAICAN villa, such as the one above at Ocho Rios, are available for short and long term rentals by tourists.

Jamaica Has Treasures

By MURRAY J. BROWN

'CHO RIOS, Jamaica (UPI) 'he first foreign visitor to Ja-ica was Christopher Colum-, back in 1494. He was disap-nted because he didn't find gold and silver he was look-for and soon sailed away.

'ut this tropical island in the 'ibbean held other treasures ich were discovered by ndreds of thousands of other rists in more recent years, cluding fine beaches and utiful mountains.

The town, a few miles from Discovery Bay where Columbus is said to have landed, is on the site of the first Spanish settlement in 1509 on the island.

IT WAS in this same area that Columbus and his men were marooned for a year on his fourth and final expedition to the New World about 10 years after his first visit.

It was here, too, that the last of the Spanish forces hid out in caves for years before fleeing to Cuba from British troops who captured Jamaica in 1655.

The caves at Runaway Bay later served as hideouts for gun and rum runners and other smugglers. Now there are guided tours into the subterranean chambers with their stalactites and stalagmites and other weird rock formations, capped by a ride in a glass-bottomed boat across a lake in the Green Grotto about 120 feet below the surface.

A GOOD two-lane road skirts the shore of the Caribbean between Montego Bay and Ocho Rios. It passes through, or by, small towns and fishing villages, mangrove swamps, pimento groves, sugar cane and other plantations and long stretches of pristine beaches.

Scattered along the road are numerous stands with carvings, bowls, and other handicrafts of mahogany, mahoe and other local wood. Statues of bulls predominated, but I bought a graceful carving of a heron in flight for $5 Jamaican.

Incidentally, since Jamaica switched over to the decimal system of currency, the U. S. dollar is equivalent to 83 cents Jamaican. Generally major hotels and other enterprises catering to American tourists will quote prices in U. S. as well as Jamaican dollars.

But there are some that do not, so check first or you may find yourself paying more than you expected.

ANOTHER highlight on the drive was the visit to Dunn's River Falls, on the coastal road a few miles west of Ocho Rios, one of the most scenic sights in the West Indies. Here a mountain stream cascades 600 feet over a flight of natural rock steps to a perfect beach on the Caribbean.

Experienced guides are available, for a small renumeration, to assist climbers up and down the falls. The rushing waters have carved pools in the steps where climbers can cool off on the way up or down.

Moviegoers should recognize the falls — it was in a James Bond film. The late Ian Fleming, author of the Bond novels, had a home at Oracabessa, about 10 miles on the other side of Ocho Rios.

There is another unusual natural attraction about 10 miles south of Ocho Rios, on the main road to Kingston — Fern Gully, a three-mile-long dry river bed through a rocky gorge where giant ferns form a thick canopy which blots out the sky.

THE TOWN of Ocho Rios, which dates back to the early days of Spanish rule, is about 70 miles east of Montego Bay and nearly 60 miles north of Kingston. It is linked to both by good roads and air services.

Development of tourist facilities in the Ocho Rios region did not begin until after World War II but the resort area now stretches across 40 miles, from Discovery Bay on the west to Port Maria on the east.

There are about a score of top-rated hotels strung out along the beaches or in the nearby hills, as well as more than 100 villas, cottages and apartments available for short and long-term rentals.

Most major hotels are self-contained resorts with private beaches and pools, tennis courts and golf privileges, dining, dancing and entertainment.

Magnificent Trip Through Redwoods

A drive through the main redwood groves of California that lie just south and north of Eureka is one of the most magnificent journeys to be had anywhere in the West.

It matters not whether you have made the trip before. Passing along the highway beneath awesome stands of timber or walking quietly through a cathedral-like grove is an unforgettable experience.

SOME OF California's most impressive redwood forests lie along the Redwood Highway, U.S. 101 between Garberville and Rio Dell, says the California State Automobile Association.

Just north of Garberville you leave Highway 101 to visit the first grove of trees in Humboldt Redwoods State Park, the Holbrook Grove. Then a few miles further north along 101 you again leave the freeway and take the Avenue of the Giants which proceeds through the heart of all the groves that are strung out between Phillipsville and Scotia.

HUMBOLDT Redwoods State Park comprises almost 40,000 acres. Two of the tallest trees in the world are here — the Rockefeller Tree and the Founders' Tree. Both are situated just a short drive north of Weott.

Some of the finest state campgrounds are in the redwoods. One is Richardson Grove just south of Garberville. Three others, Burlington, Hidden Springs and Albee Creek, are further north near Myers Flat and Weott.

At Scotia you can visit the Pacific Lumber Company and one of the few remaining company towns left in America. The entire town is devoted to the huge drying yards, sawmills and plants of the lumber company which has been in continuous operation since 1869.

THERE IS a museum here where you can see old photographs and historical mementos of the lumbering activity in the redwood region. Next to the museum is an old Heisler locomotive originally built for the excursion run on Mount Tamalpais in Marin County. Later it was used as a logging locomotive until it was retired some years ago.

Visitors can also avail themselves of a free self-guided tour of the lumbering operations through one of the sawmills and the factory. The route is marked by yellow arrows and at each place of interest you will find a card describing the process at that point.

And one thing nice about a drive along the Redwood Highway is that you can make the trip any time. The camping area and groves are open all year and the mild coastal climate is just as appealing in winter as it is in summer.

Some Baggage Tips For The Holidays

Holiday travelers can help assure themselves of a happier trip by following a few basic tips about handling their baggage.

"During the holidays," said William E. Hastings, vice president for package express of Greyhound Lines, transportation subsidiary of diversified Greyhound Corporation, "we will handle hundreds of thousands of additional pieces of baggage."

"By following a few basic steps, travelers can help move this huge volume without problems —and help us give them better service."

Here are Greyhound's tips:

MARK baggage clearly — always put identification stickers or tags both inside and outside your bags. A brightly colored or unusual tag will eliminate the problem of look-alike luggage and will help you readily identify your own luggage.

Remove all old destination tags so they don't mislead baggage handlers.

Check your luggage at least half an hour before your bus departs. Always look at the destination shown on your baggage claim checks — as soon as you receive them — to make sure your baggage has been checked to the correct destination.

Travel as lightly as possible. Most professional travelers manage with one suitcase which they either check or carry aboard. Or check your main bag and bring aboard a small bag containing your personal items, reading materials or camera. Greyhound allows you to carry aboard most suitcases up to medium size.

NEVER store valuables, breakable or fragile items in your luggage. Keep them in your personal bag.

Lock your luggage.

Check baggage rack before leaving bus to be sure you have all your personal luggage.

Since more people travel during the holidays, give yourself more time to reach terminals, buy your ticket and check your baggage.

"Many travelers like to carry their bags on board," said Hastings, "and Greyhound encourages them to do so. The reason is simple — the bag you take with you travels with you and arrives when you arrive."

New Zealand Swinging And Economica

By TOM TALAMINI

If you're young . . . or young at heart . . . and enjoy the out-of-doors, then New Zealand should be high on your priority list of "places in the world to visit."

With a population of almost three million, of whom more than half are under 26 years of age, you'll find this small South Pacific country is made to order for the traveler on a limited budget.

Because of the country's compactness — only two-thirds the size of California — distances between one point of interest and the next are short. And don't let New Zealand's smallness fool you, for crammed into those two green islands is some of the most varied and spectacular scenery offered any place else in the world.

ADD TO these scenic attractions some of the best trout fishing and deep sea fishing found anywhere, good hunting, countless trails for hiking and mountain climbing (New Zealander Sir Edmund Hillary warmed up in the New Zealand alps for his eventual conquest of Mt. Everest), skin diving, swimming and surfing, excellent skiing in the winter (North America's summer) and a fine selection of golf courses.

New Zealand is ideal for exploring on foot or perhaps bicycling. The roads are good . . . and uncrowded. There's an excellent system of public transportation. Buses and trains are especially inexpensive. In fact, everything in New Zealand is inexpensive by American standards. You can rent a car for as little as $12.90 a week, plus 7 cents a mile.

GASOLINE is about 42 cents a gallon but the smaller cars in New Zealand get 30 to 40 miles on a gallon, and because of the country's compactness, mileage doesn't add up very fast.

Even cabs are cheap . . . about 15 to 18 cents a mile . . . and tips are not generally expected.

As for accommodation, guest houses and private hotels (those that do not serve liquor) vary from $2.25 to $4 a night, including breakfast . . . not the Continental type served in Europe but a hearty breakfast that includes eggs and meat and potatoes. Some of these small hotels offer full board for less than $5 a day.

IF YOU really want to trim expenses, you can rent a camper suitable for two to six persons for as little as $25.20 a week, including insurance, plus 8 cents a mile.

You can furnish your own gear or rent blankets, sheets, sleeping bags and cutlery for $2 per person. There are numerous camp grounds on both islands.

Of course, the best deal for the individual student traveler is to follow the youth hostel trail where he can get bed and breakfast for about 50 cents a night. New Zealand has some 50 youth hostels, mostly in the smaller communities. However, House Hostel (accommodation in private homes) is available in Auckland, New Zealand's largest city, at the popular thermal resort center of Rotorua on the North Island and at the South Island's three principal cities, Christchurch, Dunedin and Invercargill. There is a Youth Hostel in the capital city of Wellington.

New Zealand is a member of the Youth Hostel Association, and young hostelers from North America can obtain further information on New Zealand hostels by writing to P. O. Box 436, Christchurch, New Zealand. Ask for a copy of the current New Zealand handbook, which is free to all hostel members.

GETTING back to the low costs in New Zealand, a haircut will run 55 cents; a shampoo and set about $1.50. Admission to a movie is about a dollar. And if you happen to be of the legal drinking age (21 or over), a glass of beer will set you back about 11 cents, a scotch about a quarter.

Meals, too, are ample, tasty and inexpensive. For example, steak and eggs in a nice downtown cafe is about $1.75. And if you're doing your own cooking you'll save a bundle . . . about 38 cents a pound for a leg of lamb; less than 50 cents a pound for sirloin or prime rib.

As for swinging, any country with such a large population of young people is bound to swing. However, with the exception of Auckland and a few spots in some of the other larger cities, it's not the type of swinging associated with night spots and discotheques. It's for those who love the out-of-doors singing around a campfire, informal get-togethers at cafes, in a hotel room or at the hostel.

THE WEATHER is generally mild and almost sub-tropical in the far north. There is a great deal of rain with a fair amount even in the summer, but that's what makes the country so green and attractive. However, it's advisable to carry rain gear at any time of the year.

There is one drawback to a visit "down under." New Zealand is almost 7,000 miles from the West Coast of the United States, and consequently it's expensive to get there. By taking advantage of excursion flights this cost can be trimmed considerably . . . and once there you'll be able to live comfortably on just a few dollars a day.

Story Of Loneliness

"Islands in the Stream," Hemingway's posthumously published novel, is essentially a story about loneliness.

In a cottage set on an isolated wind-swept beach of Bimini, lives a self-exiled artist, who is a survivor of two broken marriages. His three sons are visiting him, and although there are gay escapades of deep-sea fishing trips and beach picnics, the theme of loneliness pervades as he sadly anticipates the time when they must leave him at summer's end. Soon after their departure, he learns that two of his sons have been killed in an automobile accident.

The second part of the novel finds the artist some years later in Cuba during World War II. Still alone, he soliloquizes with his cats, and engages in long barroom philosophies with the town prostitute. His presentiment of death culminates with the news that his third son has been killed in action.

Part III centers around the activities of a small patrol boat whose crew must hunt down the survivors of a Nazi submarine. The artist is the skipper of the craft, and although there is great comraderie amongst the crew, he prefers to remain isolated in his grief.

It is true, as many critics have pointed out, that the novel needs considerable editing. Some think it isn't even finished. There are some long tedious conversations, and some irrelevant reminiscences. But it is running across an old acquaintance. You know what he is like, and it is like old times to hear what he has to say again.

The unmistakable Hemingway characteristics are all there. As in many of his other novels, he uses himself as the protaganist. At the time he wrote this book, he had been through at least two marriages, had three sons, and he also chased around Cuban water during the war.

Familiar too, are the mouth-watering descriptions of long drinking bouts. Hemingway can make a simple gin and tonic sound utterly delicious. He is also at his best writing about the he-man occupations that he loved so much during his lifetime. In this case, a deep sea fishing expedition is so vividly described that your own arms practically ache from pulling in the monster fish.

And, running through this novel too, is Hemingway's preoccupation with the death cult. It is strange that this man who revealed in an active, exurerant life, should have this dark theme permeating so much of his writings. With the exception of 'The Old Man and the Sea," Hemingway seems to squelch the dignity of man by his great emphasis on death.

As pleasant as it is to read "Islands in the Stream," the reader abruptly realizes at its conclusion, that he has been left with nothing. Hemingway doesn't give him anything to keep. He talks about his virility, his good times, his drinking, and his loneliness, but nothing is given that might add to the understanding of life's experience. Nothing is given that might expose a new facet of the human spirit. And that is what is disappointing, not the poor editing, but the fact that nothing is left upon which to ponder.

Shaw In His Writing Days

SHAW: AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY, 1898-1950, THE PLAYWRIGHT YEARS by Stanley Weintraub; Weybright and Talley, 295 pages, $10. Reviewed by Anne G. Stine.

A few years ago Stanley Weintraub gave us "Shaw: An Autobiography, 1856-1898" — a scholarly selection of his writings covering his boyhood and early years in London.

In his second volume "Shaw: An Autobiography, 1898-1950, The Playwright Years" Weintraub uses the same method as before: piecing together reminiscences, lectures, articles, interviews — every form of his writing and journalism. Although Shaw never wrote a formal autobiography (claiming he was "about as real as a pantomime ostrich"), this second volume is completely successful in rounding out the picture of Shaw the writer and the critic.

The period covered is the time when Shaw was most prolific as a playwright and a journalist. In the latter category he gives us his thoughts on everything from jury duty to immortality. In the former we are treated to unlimited anecdotes on theatrical life and the people who made it fascinating, such as Beerhohm Tree who was Higgins in the original production of "Pygmalion" in 1914.

Shaw always felt that his personal life was a private matter and therefore wrote almost nothing about such subjects as his marriage. It is a tribute to Weintraub that his selection and presentation of Shaw's works enables the reader to understand the inner man and to interpret his feelings and growth, without intentional help from Shaw himself.

The mask which he maintained in public slips aside occasionally in his writings to reveal the many contradictions in his make-up. He could be at once considerate and heartless, broad-minded and prudish, gentle and unrelenting. As he grew in years, so he developed in mind and changed in outlook — as evidenced in his political views and his appraisal of world events.

The illustrations are excellent. To the average reader this is a fascinating revelation of a grand old man whose mind was forever probing and stimulating until his death in 1950 at the age of 94. To the Shavian student it is a gem. That illuminates and puts into perspective, much of G.B.S. which henceforth was either misunderstood or distorted.

Some Good Advice

The chapter on the true cost of interest should be worth the price of the book to many people. He explains, for example, the difference between true annual interest and a discount, add-on, or monthly rate on unpaid balance.

Also discussed is the rule of the 78ths as applied to prepayment of loans. This allows the lender to recover a high percentage of the interest during the early months of the loan. Amazing how gullible the consumer is, isn't it?

There are excellent chapters on sources of credit, what to do when you can't make a payment, taxes, and family investment programs. There is a minor error in the chapter on taxes under the discussion of investment losses. The law was changed this year and quite possibly the book went to print too soon to pick it up. The change affects married couples filing individual returns for tax savings. Under the old law (loophole) each individual could deduct up to $1,000 in losses. The new law specifies a maximum tax loss of $500 for each individual although if they file a joint return they can write off up to $1,000 as can be unmarried individual.

Reviews Of New Reading

On the subject of investing, the author emphasizes the absolute necessity for saving and investing in order to accumulate sufficient assets to retire comfortably. He quotes a recent projection which indicates that by 1980 half of all retired couples will be struggling to live on $3,000 from Social Security and pension plan benefits.

If present rates of inflation continue that $3,000 will be worth far less in 1980 in purchasing power. This is the squeeze that makes it imperative for each of us to plan now for future income.

For those who are planning the purchase of a house for the first time, the book discusses in detail what to look for in the house, contract, and escrow arrangements. The legal differences between a mortgage, trust deed, and sales contract are defined and the advantages and disadvantages made clear. The selling side of the transaction is also discussed along with advice on how to deal with a contractor if you should build.

If you have been through all this you may know what to avoid and what to insist upon to get the most out of your money. If not, the $6.95 you will pay for this book will be money well spent.

ORCHID GROWING

MENLO PARK, Calif. (UPI) — If you have always felt that growing your own orchids is in the same category as doing your own brain surgery, Sunset has a book to disabuse you.

The book deplores the fact that the mystery surrounding the exotic orchid has also discouraged many gardeners from its cultivation. And, it maintains, orchids are not that hard to raise.

The book, entitled "How to Grow Orchids," was published recently by Lane Magazine & Book Co., Menlo Park, Calif. $1.95 and was put together by the Sunset editorial staff.

There is information on all aspects for orchid-raising.

Black Man's Views Of Pro Football

Johnny Sample, defensive back for two championship professional football teams, was a militant in shoulder pads who battled discrimination as fiercely as he did opposing players.

He conceded that he has been labeled a "dirty player," and a "troublemaker," and charged that he was blackballed by the National Football League.

"Despite some improvement in recent years, the black man in professional football is still mistreated and underpaid. The team owners, general managers and coaches take advantage of the black athlete because they think he'll grab at practically any offer or take any treatment they dish out. . . . By and large the black man ends up making less money than the white player of equal ability."

While making his points, Sample includes many episodes which entertain football buffs; clashes on the field, inside anecdotes that may come only from players willing to tell them, an account of his feud with famed Coach Otto Graham, his relationship with Coach Weeb Ewbank and the attitude of Coach Buddy Parker.

As a bonus for fans, Sample offers his evaluation of receivers and quarterbacks he has played against, both in the National Football League, where he played with the Baltimore Colts, 1958-60, Pittsburgh Steelers, 1961-62, and Washington Redskins, 1963-65, and the former American Football League, where he played with the New York Jets, 1966-68.

He considers John Unitas of the Colts as the greatest quarterback in the history of professional football, and views Joe Namath, apparently out for the rest of this season, as the "bread and butter" of the N.Y. Jets, but handicapped by painful knees.

Followers of the San Francisco 49ers probably won't be thrilled with Sample's opinion that Quarterback John Brodie is easy to intimidate. "When he's knocked down and banged up a little, he starts throwing interceptions because he's afraid to hold the ball. He gets a little rattled after he's been blitzed."

A true sportsman will be dismayed by the on-field tactics of Sample, but it is a brutal game, and apparently hurting the opponent is part of the job.

Sample is not an endearing character, but he is frank, and in the field of sports where so much poppycock is written about the glory of the playing field, he has done a service in laying bare a little of the truth.

IT DOESN'T seem exactly right to label Charles McCabe's writings as a collection of newspaper columns, even though that's what they are, packaged in hard cover under the title of "The Fearless Spectator."

By some strange chemistry putting them all together in a book and grouping them according to general themes gives them the tone of essays.

That is to say, the stuff you may have been reading mornings in the San Francisco Chronicle takes on a new dimension in book form.

When you read McCabe in the newspaper, a day at a time, with all sorts of things happening in your life from one column to the next, it's hard to fully capture the trend of his thinking.

Having his columns all together in a concentrated batch, which can be read at leisure, not on a commuter bus or over a fast breakfast, gives you a better chance to try to get an idea of the man's outlook, and follow the thread of his thinking.

McCabe covers a wide range of human activity with a fair share of comment on women from Irish mothers to the women's liberation movement, which must have been somewhere near the top of its list.

There also is a hefty collection of comment on the subject of booze; straightforward stuff that won't thrill the W.C.T.U.; some sensitive musing on the tender subject of love and a few smatterings about McCabe's experiences at large in the world.

All in all, he proves that the essay isn't dead. It's alive and living in the form of a newspaper column.

FOR US, bullfighting as a sport rates right along side squashing slugs and snails, but there is no denying that it has its many aficionados, not all of them by any means Latins, and a large number of them famous.

Peter Haining, an avid student of the spectacle, has put together an anthology, "A Thousand Afternoons," in which the likes of Ernest Hemingway, James Michener, John Steinbeck, V.S. Pritchett, Robert Ruark, and, of course, Barnaby Conrad, give their views and observations.

The selections include both fiction and fact.

For Norman Mailer the bullfight provides an opportunity to judge a man "in his greatest moment." To Hemingway, the bullfighter was "a champion, a paragon." For Conrad such books recall "afternoons of great emotion, or thrills of the kind that only the fiesta brava can offer."

But we identify more closely with George Bernard Shaw, who asked: "Who would go to see this posturing bully, the matador, if he were dressed in workman's clothes and cap?" And answered his own question: "It is slaughterhouse work and in any decent country the public is denied the sadistic satisfaction of abattoirs."

So "A Thousand Afternoons" will appeal only if, like the Little Old Lady in tennis shoes put it, as quoted in Conrad's introduction, you are "aficionated."

The price is $6.95. Which, with Hemingway, Mailer, Michener, Graves, et al, may be a bigger bargain than a ticket to the fights.

WE SEEM to be experiencing a reawakening of interest in the novels of D.E. Stevenson, perhaps as an antidote to the cynical and often erotic fiction pouring from the presses today.

Miss Stevenson, actually Mrs. J. R. Peploe, descendant of Robert Louis Stevenson and living in Scotland, is a gentle writer, unapologetically romantic. Her more than 40 novels have sold five million copies and more, testifying to her popularity.

Holt, Reinhart and Winston has now reprinted her "The Young Clementina" ($5.95), first issued in the 1930s. It is a love story set in pre-World War II England that anticipates today's preoccupation with the generation gap. And which, like so many of Miss Stevenson's tales, is lightly frosted with mystery. There's an old-fashioned quality to the story, but this is not without its charm.

BALLANTINE Books and The National Audubon Society have joined in publishing a paperback edition of George Laycock's fine book, "The Alien Animals," the story of the importation of foreign wildlife into this country, often with unfortunate consequences for the environment into which they are introduced. "Wildlife roulette," the book calls it. And man, the persistent gambler, insists on trying it again and again. Those who missed The Natural History Press hardcover edition should seize this bargain opportunity — 95 cents — to read a most interesting account of how man risks pitfalls when he insists upon interfering with nature's grand pattern.

ONE OF THE most unusual books of the season has to be "A Family Album, 1850-1970."

Credited to and copyrighted under the name "Gramma" only, the book is the product of a San Rafael woman. And it is exactly what the title indicates, her family album. Reproduced on slick paper and including a number of pages of color prints, it is priced at $17.50 and available at some Marin bookstores and by order from Gramma, Post Office Box 2912, San Rafael.

The woman responsible for the project terms the book "an anonymous offering to nostalgia" in the belief that many will identify with the people, clothing, furniture, houses, etc. shown and derive enjoyment from so doing. Why no name? Because, she says, it is unimportant, and even disturbing to the whole point of the publishing of the book.

So if you want a copy of somebody else's family ablum. . .

IN ITS "Discovering Art Series," McGraw-Hill has published two more lavishly illustrated volumes, "17th & 18th Century Art" by Ariane Ruskin and "Twentieth Century Art" by Michael Batterberry, each priced at $8.95.

Like the other eight books in the series, each contains 200 or more color plates, illustrating art development from the prehistoric to the present.

Miss Ruskin, best known as an author of art books for children and herself a schooled painter, tells how the rigidity of the work of the High Renaissance gave way to a freer, richer Baroque art, highly sensuous that swept through Europe. The contributions of individual artists are enumerated.

Artist and art writer Batterberry details the more fervent and more radical revolution that took place in art in the first half of this century. It is an especially well-done account of a time of great ferment and some confusion in the art world, where the strands of the various schools are not always easily separated and traced.

The books will serve as excellent texts for students wishing not too involved but sufficiently enlightening survey of the trends of the last three centuries. A complete set of the "Discovering Art Series" books would, of course, constitute an excellent library for the art buff.

NIGHTMARE by Russell H. Greenan; Random House, 205 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

This first novel by an American living in France is labeled "A Contemporary Tale of Horror."

Certainly it has its strange and eerie aspects, although those touches seem to come in splotches rather than in the sustained mood of, say, an Edgar Allan Poe.

Steven Pierglass works for a mysterious organization headed by a man known only as John, ruthless and probably paranoic. His missions skirt the law. And his newest one takes him to a rundown, integrated boarding house in search of a black man who has been anonymously blackmailing a nationally prominent politician on behalf of black separatism.

Pierglass alternates between his hunt and a genuine involvement in the lives of the boarding house occupants. He alternates, too, between periods of personal strength and weakness. And this, with the off-and-on eeriness, makes for a bit too much shifting about that is unsettling to the reader. Finally, for us, the ending left something to be desired.

But if Greenan's first novel is not a total success, it is a promising beginning for what might become a bright career.

"Who Tore My Silk Dress?"

Though your silk dress appears torn, it is not. The horizontal opening is what is termed a "silk split." It is a rather common occurance, caused by wear, the repeated bending and flexing of a silk garment in the same area.

A silk fabric is generally a plain weave with the more slender silk yarns used in the vertical direction. The wear caused by repeated bending weakens the silk threads. Eventually these threads break and a split occurs. Usually you find these splits at the elbows, around the waistline or below the sleeve heads where there is strain when the arms are raised.

We have mentioned this damage before. There is no way to overcome it. Just remember that silk is a fragile fabric, subject to a shorter life than other, hardier fabrics.

DEATH

Oh death, why do I fear thee so?
Is it the loneliness that thou wilst bring?
Or is it pain and sadness, fear, and sorrow?
Or coldness, darkness, that then will begin?
Or is it just the fear of the unknown,
That from a tiny seed within my heart has grown?
Dear God, please help conquer all my fears,
That grow and multiply throughout the years.

Wide Choice For Planting In Tubs

Take your favorite shrub, plant it in a tub and place it in a prominent location on your patio, porch, or deck. That's the formula for extra pleasure from from gardening.

Better yet, further increase your pleasure — give the above treatment to several trees and shrubs. There isn't a patio or deck that can't be enhanced by container-grown plants; few porches that haven't room for at least a small shrub or two.

Some plants will grow indefinitely in tubs and others will be happy for a given period of time, according to the California Association of Nurserymen.

IF YOU don't know where to start, rely on your nurseryman's recommendations. He'll have a wide selection of plants — and containers — from which to choose.

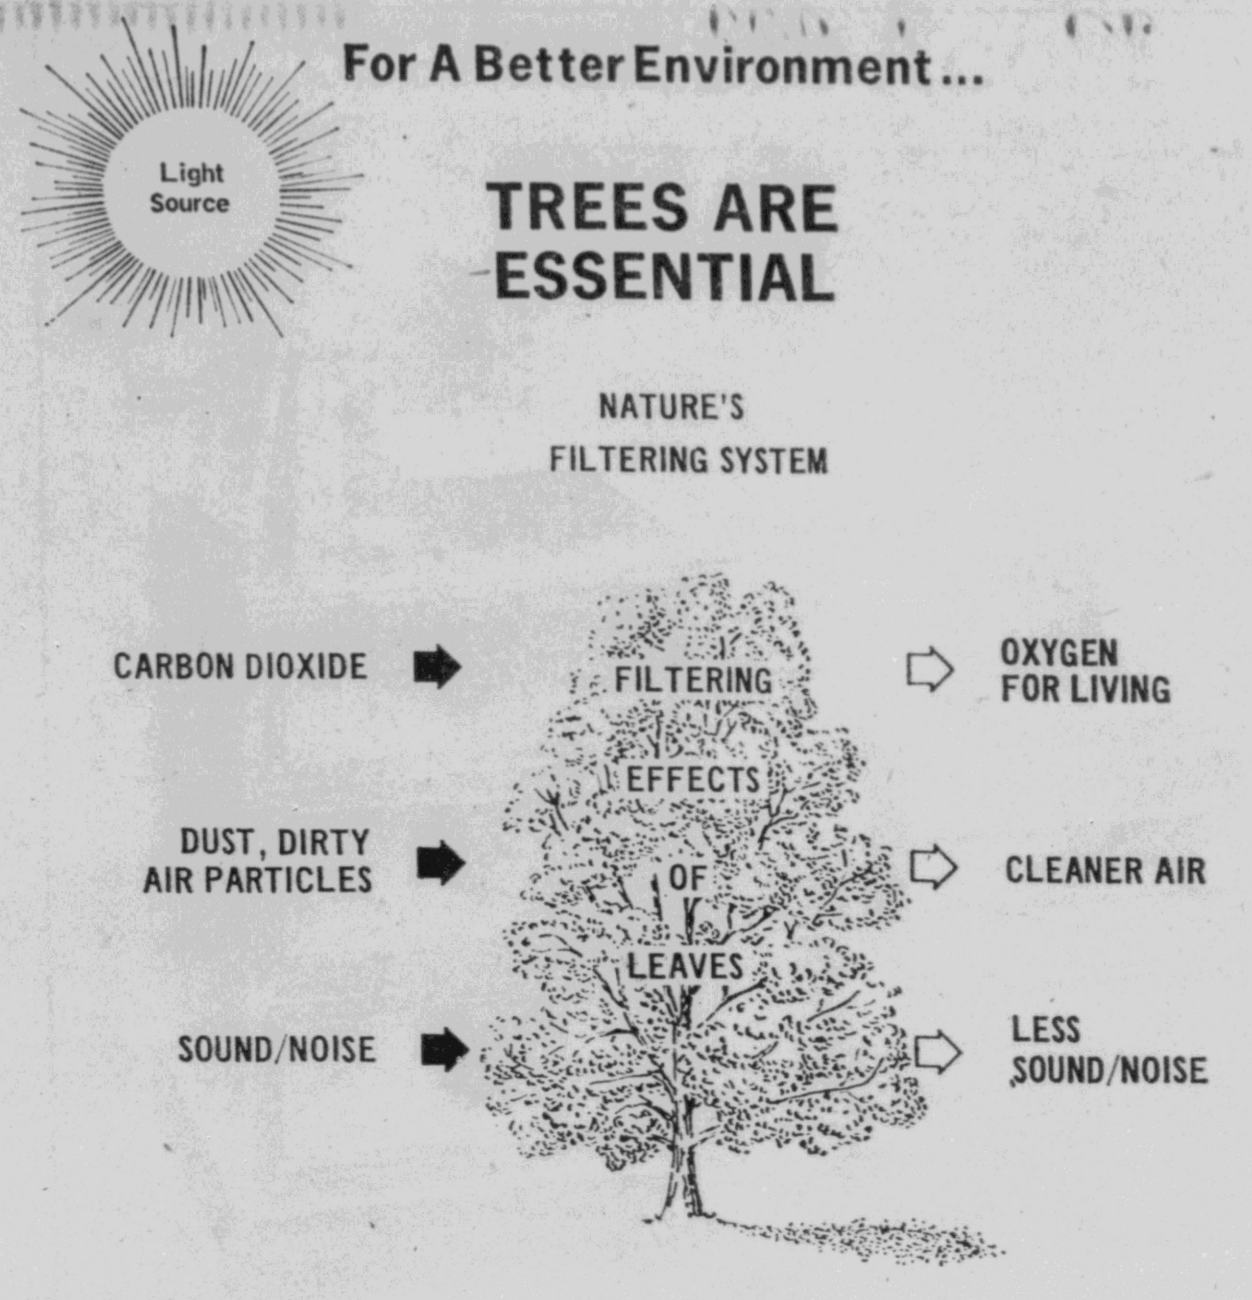
Podocarpus is a good choice for a tub. There are two well-known varieties, popularly called Yew Pine and Fern Pine. Both have finely cut foliage, with the former being more compact and the latter boasting a finer texture. Columnar growers, they make a perfect accent for an entryway or for the wall side of the deck.

The unique radial-growing Norfolk Island Pine and the artistically-shaped Japanese Black Pine are two outstanding candidates for growing in containers. You'll thrill to their beauty.

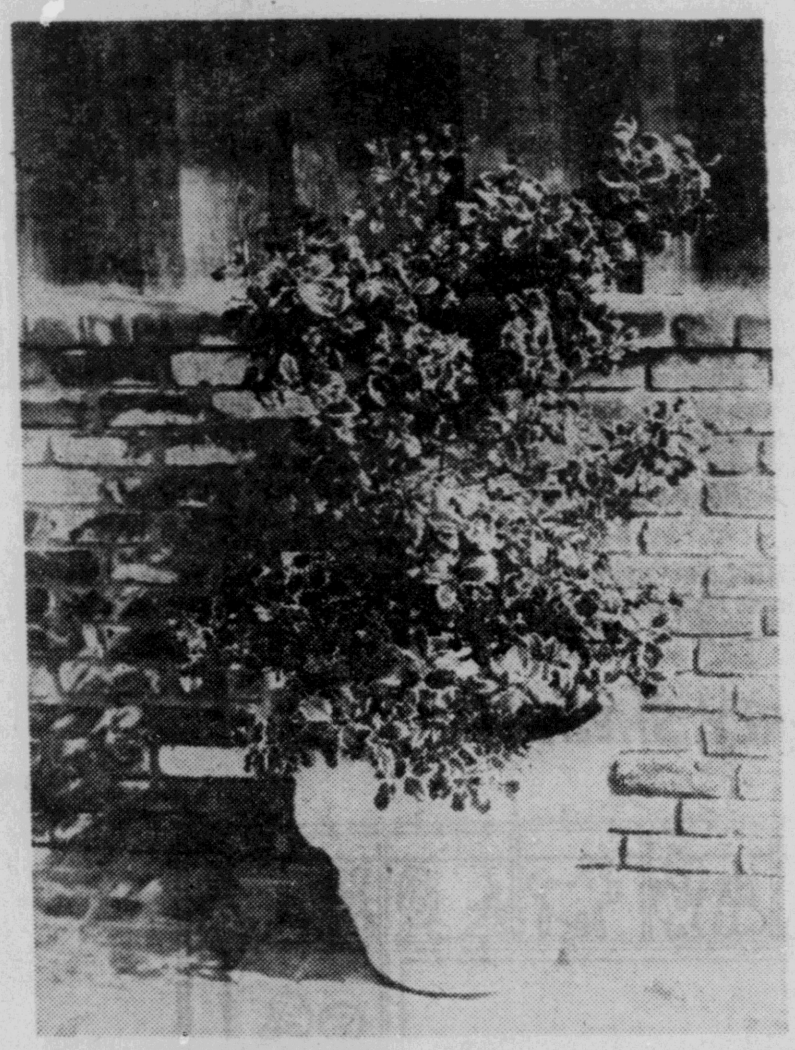
Blooming plants? For winter and spring color rely on camellias, azaleas and rhododendrons. In the warmer months you'll thrill to the beauty of gardenias, fuchsias, and hibiscus. The many choices of dwarf citrus will also tempt you — and they excel in tubs.

HOLLY is a handsome sight year-around in a container and the bold foliage of the glossy aralia, spreckled leaves of the gold dust plant offer 12 month beauty, too.

Lush foliage plants such as boxwood, Carolina Cherry, English Laurel and wax leaf privet can be pruned into interesting shapes such as globes, pryamids and topiaries. They give dramatic impact to the surroundings — and effect that will draw ohs of admiration from all who view them.



TREES AND SHRUBS are essential for a better environment and nurserymen advise that now is an excellent time to plant. The root systems of plant materials set out now will develop early during the winter months enabling the plants to take full surge of spring growth.



FOR EXTRA PLEASURE from gardening, take a favorite shrub and plant it in a tube and place it in a prominent location on your porch or patio. There are many blooming specimens, as well as handsome foliage plants, that can be used, such as the variegated holly shown above.

Indoor Gardening Brings Winter Color Into Home

On days when you can't garden outside this winter, the California Association of Nurserymen suggests that much pleasure can be derived from gardening in your home.

You need only take advantage of a light window (north or east exposure) to grow pots of color that will brighten the darkest day.

The exotic blooms of cyclamen are prominent in nurseries these days and will remain so in your home right through winter. The joy of these gems is their adaptability to garden or sunroom conditions.

AFRICAN VIOLETS are the perennial favorite for year-round fun and enjoyment indoors. The single and double blooms are especially appreciated for their cheerful contributions during the winter season.

The so-called common geranium, believe it or not, can be treated as a house plant and kept blooming right through winter. Give it a sunny south window, though.

The orchid family has its candidates for winter color. They offer the indoor gardener a thrill he won't soon forget — a thrill that often leads to a full-time hobby.

Some narcissus bulbs can be grown in a dish with no more than pebbles and water added. Dutch Hyacinths will grow and bloom in a glass with only water to dip their roots in. Crocus bulbs are also adaptable for early indoor bloom.

A FAVORITE room brightener, whatever the season, is the chrysanthemum in bloom. Nurseries have 'Mums in bloom throughout the year. Use them for indoor decorations, then move the plants into the garden.

Next fall, you'll reap additional color from the plants. Now is the height of the natural blooming season for 'Mums and nurseries will have their largest selection of the year.

This is only the beginning. Visit your nearby nursery and catch up on the news in indoor plants. You will find endless delightful selections — plants with unusual foliage, colored foliage, exotic-looking specimens, plants that trail and others that bloom with unusual flowers.

Molding Gives Decor A Lift

They say a man's home is his castle, but that's hollow glory if it's a carbon copy of every other castle in the block. Individuality is not as difficult or costly as one might think.

If a new door isn't in the cards now, the old one can be dressed up quite dramatically by applying inexpensive decorative moldings in a carefully worked out pattern. Simplest type to use are half-round.

POORLY placed or awkwardly proportioned windows can be camouflaged with moldings. You can replace draperies with shutters to give a room a more tailored look and gain complete privacy and light control.

Fireplace walls and mantels often date a house more than anything else. In post-war housing, the jutting mantel lost out to the plain, flush wall. Recently the mantel has been discreetly on the comeback, in a sleeker, simpler form.

Today's health is flanked with bookshelves and low built-in benches, or sometimes cabinets to store fireplace fuel, and such new-era amenities as hi-fi systems, that older homes are not equipped to store without new built-ins.

AND THEN the walls. Perhaps Gertrude Stein should have said: "A wall is a wall is a wall." Many homeowners lavish attention on carpeting, upholstery and incidentals and of the walls ask only, "What colors?"

Woodwork can make a wall exciting and also improve the visual proportions of a room. A long hall wall is enhanced by a series of "frames" of molding.

Decorating within the frames with contrasting paint, paper, collages or an art collection offers fascinating possibilities.

Create a Spanish effect by installing two or three rows of squares of richly-hued moldings, or add a Colonial accent with a plate rail.

THE POSSIBILITIES with western woodwork are all but limitless. Building suppliers stock hundreds of items and can also fill special orders.

Reroofing? Take Look At The Gutters, Too

When you reroof, it is an ideal time to replace tired and rusted gutters and downspouts, because hangers which support the gutter are usually placed under new shingles. Since a properly maintained gutter should last as long as the new roof, it pays to replace both together.

Noise Enemy Of Good Study

That's why many parents are setting aside a place in a bedroom, basement, attic or porch for the young learner so he can work without the annoyances of chatter, music and noise created by other members of the family.

HOWEVER, other essentials help give the youngster a feeling of "belonging" and ease in his surroundings.

Concord suggests a rug will help establish an atmosphere helpful to effective study. Walls and ceiling should be attractively finished and decorated with pictures, maps and the like.

The window should be draped or curtained to please the boy or girl.

Woodgrained hardboard makes an excellent background, too, for charts, maps, photos, and school exhibits. The boy or girl can keep the walls shipshape by an occasional wipe-down with a damp sponge or cloth.

IN ROOMS occupied by two boys or two girls, beds may be separated by means of Filigree hardboard or Peg-Board dividers, the Masonite consultant adds. Separate desks and study facilities are important in a situation like this.

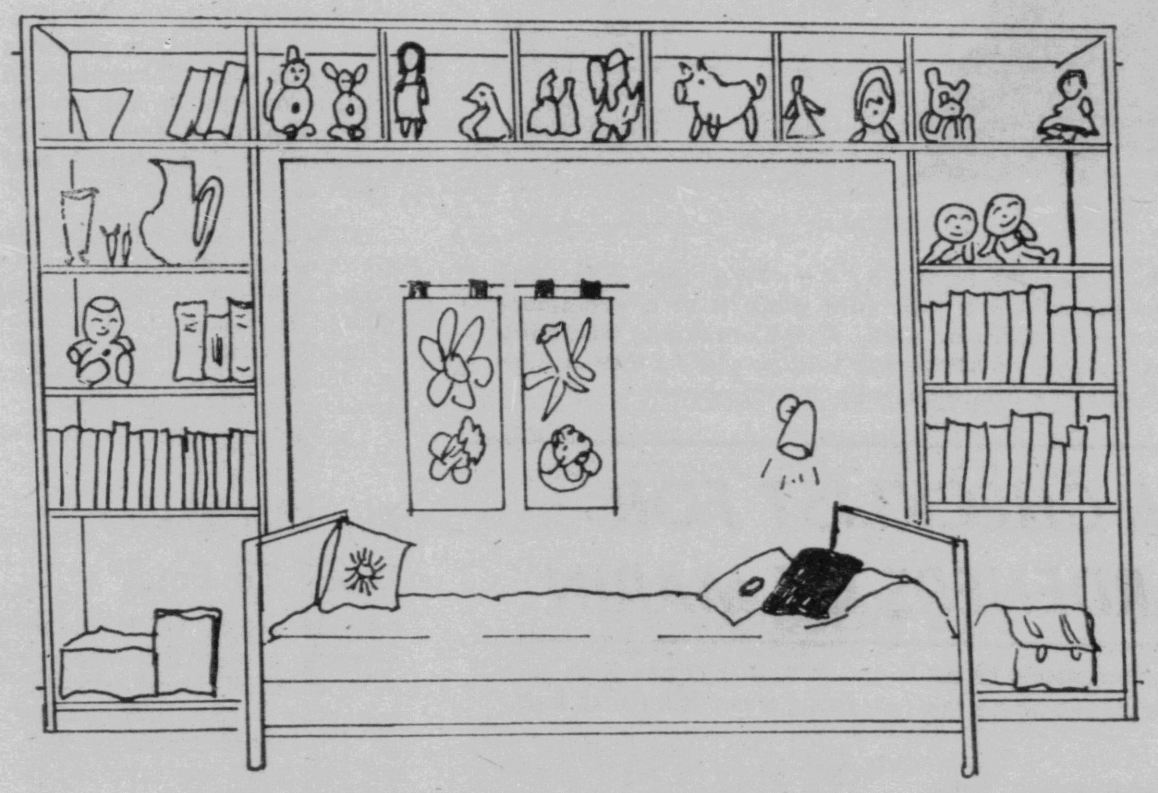
ORDERLY SHELVES



A CHILD'S ROOM will be brighter and more orderly after adding built-in shelves for books, toys or favorite sutffed animals.

Amateur Can Build Recreation Room

A BARE BASEMENT can become a thing of beauty by the application of interior decorating principles, tailored to the family's needs and a suitable selection of room surfaces and home furnishings. The room above has panelled walls, decorative mobiles at the windows, an acoustical ceiling with recessed lighting and carpeted floor.

Modernizing a basement into a recreation room is an activity that occupies thousands of families every year. And while the thought of such a large scale home improvement project might still paralyze a few woudl-be home handymen, others will be cheered by this advice from a national design consultant.

"Ingenuity is not as important as it has been in the past," says John Concord, home improvement consultant for Masonite Corporation. "The amateur can do a first-class job with the modern building materials available today, largely because new techniques for applying these materials have been greatly simplified."

The challenge, Concord believes, is in building a family recreation room that will be a source of pleasure to every member of the family. This is chiefly a matter of planning and good taste in the selection of the room's six sides — floor, ceiling and the four walls.

WHAT WILL separate the outstanding recreation room from the so-so variety is selection of furnishings, wall hangings and what decorators call "eyewash." Carpets, walls and ceiling treatment may be first class, but dressing the room with attic discards normally results in an unsatisfactory arrangement.

For the family that prefers to use its own imagination, rather than rely on professional services, Concord recommends that a good library textbook on home decorating will spell out the fundamentals.

A good starting point for a basement recreation room is selection of an attractive, durable and easy-to-maintain wall covering to go up over stark concrete. Many new textured and woodgrain hardboard wall panels offer owners a better-than-ever selection of materials, he says.

TO AVOID monotony, Concord recommends avoiding use of the same paneling on all four walls.

"Think in terms of accents," he suggests. "A woodgrain paneling is more striking when contrasted with a textured surface on an accent wall: for example, a shale white paneling with rough finish that resembles barnboard."

The remodeling will give the home owner an opportunity to create a dramatic ceiling effect. Basement remodeling projects, in particular, are more successful when finished with an acoustical ceiling, and home owners should investigate advantages to be gained from recessed lighting fixtures.

Sealing Air In Glass Helps

An insulating layer of air sealed between two sheets of glass works miracles. If you've ever put in, taken out, painted and washed storm windows and doors, you'll agree.

It's the air sealed between the window panes that insulates modern double-glazed windows. You can't see it — you can't even tell there are two layers of glass unless you look closely at the edges.

But that thin loyer of dead air works wonders: it keeps heat in the house in winter and out in summer.

IT ELIMINATES the need for storm windows, which did the same job in a most unwieldy way.

There are other big fashioned windows and modern wood window units.

All quality windows of ponderosa pine are weather-stripped at the factory to reduce heat loss and to keep out wind and dust. They are preservative treated to protect against weather abuse.

Precision-made hardware makes the windows easy to close tight and to open easily.

When warm air in a house hits cold glass or metal, the moisture in the air condenses, fogs up the windows, and often drips down onto walls and draperies. When double glazing, with its sealed-in insulating air, is used, the inside surface of the glass remains warm; moisture stays in the room air and helps keep you comfortable.

When double-glazed windows are made of wood, the problem of damaging condensation and dripping is avoided.

IT'S THE WOOD sash in factory-made ponderosa pine windows that provide the final touch in comfort, because wood is an excellent insulating material. It keeps heat in the house and it stays warm to the touch.

Since metal is a fast heat conductor, it does just the opposite. When heat escapes through window panes and sash, it's not only uncomfortable, it's downright expensive. Ponderosa pine windows and doors with insulating glass, now available in all styles and sizes, make it possible to open up a house to the light and beauty of the great outdoors.

Raise Fence For Mowing

You don't have to cope with a hay crop near your fence if you keep the bottom of the fence about a foot or more above ground.

This can easily be done by using horizontal lengths of chain along the bottom row of any type of fencing, including chain link, wood or metal. Your power mower can easily pass beneath the bottom strand of chain and do a clean cutting job along the entire length of your fencing. This saves hand-clipping and trimming.

IN BUILDING a new fence in this manner you actually gain more fencing height by using chain lengths at the bottom. You also achieve greater privacy.

If a simple effective barrier, rather than privacy, is your objective, you'll fine it easy to construct fencing made entirely of strands of chain hung between wooden or metal posts.

Lumber Standards Set For U.S. Builders

For builders and home craftsmen, the new rules promise more efficient sizes of lumber, a uniform grading system across the country and more informative marking.

The new standard for softwood lumber — of which some 34 billion board feet is consumed annually — is the result of two years' development by home builders, architects, engineers, manufacturers and other groups.

The U.S. Bureau of Standards and Forest Products Laboratory reviewed the standard and new grading rules which it requires. Widths and thicknesses of lumber will change slightly in coming months.

"NEW SIZES will be related to moisture content," explained Wendell B. Barnes, executive vice president of Western Wood Products Assn., Portland, Ore., largest lumber grading group with 40 per cent of U.S. output.

"Unseasoned lumber widths were left unchanged, with minor exceptions," he stated.

"Framing lumber thicknesses will coincide with the increasing quantities of one-and-a-half inch dry that has gone into construction in recent years," the lumber official noted. "Dry board thickness was set at three-quarter inch, which builders say is an easier fraction to work with.

"Saving in raw material and shipping costs could run as high as $150 on the average house," Barnes estimated.

FRAMING lumber will end up the same size in use, whether it was dried at the mill or shipped unseasoned. Either way, the mill will have to cut the same size from the log.

Each producer will stamp his lumber "S-DRY" or "S-GRN" to tell the buyer its condition when it was surfaced. Any one grade will look the same, whether the lumber comes from West, South or East, because it will be sorted by the same restrictions, on knots for example.

'70 ELECTION

Ripon Society's Stinging Report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Ripon Society Saturday described 1970 White House campaign tactics as "a bumbling and exclusionary political strategy" that President Nixon must abandon to avoid defeat in 1972.

The society, a liberal GOP organization, released its analysis of the 1970 election at a news conference held by President Josiah kLee Auspitz and Chairman Howard F. Gillette Jr.

It said the Republican performance this year was the worst since 1964 and "a continuation of the strategy on which it is based will make Mr. Nixon a one-term President."

"Some face-saving explanations already have been heard to prove that the election was really a victory," the survey said.

Auspitz said "Republican moderates" need reassurance and may have to disassociate themselves from Nixon to insure their own reelection. He cited Republican tactics that offended the moderates and said:

Auspitz said Nixon had earned unified Republican support with many of his policies. He described Nixon as "the best foreign policy President of the 1960s" and said he has an important but still unfulfilled program of domestic and administrative reform.

"Yet his politics have failed him," the analysis said.

Auspitz dismissed administration claims to an "ideological" majorty in the Senate and said there was little change before and after the election.

He also rejected GOP arguments that the administration had withstood the normal mid-term losses of the party in power and said the averages applied to the House not the Senate.

A table was produced showing that the party electing a President by a landslide in elections going back to 1920 had lost an average of eight or nine Senate seats six years later. Inasmuch as Lyndon B. Johnson won a landslide victory six years ago, Auspitz said the GOP could have expected to gain the seven seats it needed to take control of the Senate.

He said Republicans failed to pick up a single Democratic Senate seat west of the Mississippi in 10 chances.

"In every western vulnerable Democratic seat a similar pattern emerged," he said. "The GOP staked out a firm law and order position; the Democrat moved close to it, insinuating all the while that Republicans were trying to profit from violence."

Auspitz credited Adlai E. Stevenson III with a masterful campaign in this pattern in unseating Sen. Ralph T. Smith, D-Ill. He said Stevenson won 65 per cent of the blue collar vote, 64 per cent of the Catholics and ran well in the Republican suburbs.

"Thus did the Democrats

U.S. Snubs Soviets Twice On Holiday Over Generals

MOSCOW (UPI) — The United States snubbed the Soviet Union twice today on Russia's biggest national holiday. The acting American ambassador boycotted both a Red Square military parade and a Kremlin reception.

The United States was protesting Soviet refusal to free two U.S. Amy generals and a major whose plane strayed into Russian territory three weeks ago.

The Soviets celebrated their 53rd birthday with a parade of military power and a pledge that Communism soon will put a television set in every parlor.

The nation highlighted the 53rd anniversary of the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution with the traditionol parade of military hardward through Red Square, a display ranging from jeeps to intercontinental ballistic missiles that Western military analysts predicted would reveal nothing new.

At precisely 9:58 a.m., Communist party general secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev led the collective Soviet leadership onto the reviewing stand atop V.I. Lenins red marble tomb in a light mist of falling snow. Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and President Nikolai V. Podgorny followed him, their black fur hats powdered with white flakes.

Thousands of Muscovites and foreigh dignitaries jammed the square splashed with red bunting in 20 degree weather while countless thousands of others filed toward the square in tributary parades down Moscow's boulevards.

Top-ranking U.S. diplomats in Moscow stayed away from the Red Square celebration under State Department orders to show American displeasure with Soviet failure to release two U.S. Army generals and a major held captive two and a half weeks in Armenia.

On the eve of the celebrations, the Communist party leadership told the Soviet people they had much more to cheer about than a mighty armed forces — the prospect of a "good life" full of material benefits much like those coveted by bourgeois householders.

Mikhail Suslov, the party's chief ideologist, said in a Kremlin speech a boom in consumer goods production and a swelling of personal incomes were among the strongest points of Russia's economy.

"Every second family has a television set and a washing machine and every third family has a refrigerator," Suslov told the Kremlin palace crowd to heavy applause.

"In a few years, every family will have a television set, a washing machine and a refrigerator."

Western military sources who watched the Soviets rehearse the parade in icy winds and snow said in advance it appeared to be an exact duplicate of last years parade and held "no surprises" for Western intelligence.

Their predictions stripped the show of the suspenseful and ominous "sneak preview" flavor it held in previous years, when the non-Communist world got its first glimpses of Nikita S.Khrushchev's first ballistic missiles, the Surface-to-Air (SAM) rockets now deployed in Egypt and Vietnam and other Soviet armaments.

These items and more, a rough total of about 328 pieces of military equipment including

Denial To Any G.M. Contract

DETROIT (UPI) — The United Auto Workers has asked all members of its General Motors council to come to Detroit Wednesday. But union President Leonard Woodcock denies reports that an end to the 54-day-old strike against G.M. may be at hand.

The council has the power to recommend that union members accept or reject a new contract offer if one is put on the table. Its presence in Detroit could pave the way for speedy action on any tentative settlement UAW bargainers reach in the next few days.

WEEK'S MOVEMENTS

There has been movement on both sides during the past few days on the major, national economic issues, leading to an intensified and more optimistic atmosphere at the main bargaining table.

However, there has been no sign the negotiators are going into marathon sessions. That, together with a news blackout inposed on main table negotiations one week ago, is the traditional sign a settlement is at hand, subject to ratification by the union's membership.

In calling the 350 delegates of the UAW's G.M. council to a meeting in Detroit next Wednesday, UAW President Leonard Woodcock said Friday, "additional local settlements that can be concluded now can help us in our efforts to achieve a national agreement."

DENIES REPORT

He denied reports that an end to the strike, which has idled more than 400,000 G.M. workers, was "imminent."

In a telegram to the G.M. council members — the top officials of the 155 union locals at G.M. plants around the nation and regional officials — Woodcock said, "newspaper and other speculation about the imminent settlement are currently without foundation."

The real import of Woodcock's telegram appeared to be designed to make sure the local officials don't relax, thinking a national settlement is near, and wait for it rather than working on their own local agreements.

By Friday night, 74 of 155 bargaining units in the United States and two of seven in Canada, had come to terms. But G.M. officials have repeatly said they want enough local settlements out of the way before reaching a national contract agreement so the company can resume normal operations once the new contract is ratified.

One industry sources, commenting on the sudden renewed activity in national bargaining Thursday and Friday, said there was movement in all the major areas on both sides. Those areas included a first year wage increase, union demands for unrestricted cost-of-living allowances in the

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Cambodian and South Vietnamese task forces were trying to link up today for a major offensive against Communist troops in the provinces south of Phnom Penh.

Military sources here in Phnom Penh said more than 7,000 South Vietnamese and 3,000 Cambodian troops were involved in the joint operation.

South Vietnamese sources in the Cambodian capital said the campaign was expected to last three weeks.

"It is a very big operation," one South Vietnamese source said. "There are other and smaller ones that we are carrying out in Cambodia at the present time, but this is the big one."

The South Vietnamese task force thrust into Cambodia early Friday in what was described as the largest operation by Saigon units in Cambodia since the drive against border sanctuaries last May.

First reports said "several thousand" South Vietnamese soldiers were involved. The South Vietnamese command in Saigon said today 1,500 men crossed the border in the new push, joining 1,000 South Vietnamese Marines already in Cambodia. But Cambodian intelligence sources said the force was bigger and included four battalions of Rangers, four armored cavalry regiments, two Marine battalions, two militia battalions and elements of the 9th Infantry Division.

The precise location of the offensive was not disclosed for security reasons. The South Vietnamese task force was not disclosed for security reasons. The South Vietnamese task force made its crossing through the Plain of Reeds, an area of flatlands which the Communists have used as an infiltration route iinto the Mekong Delta.

No major contact was reported in the drive south of Phnom Penh but Cambodian headquarters reported a clash 11 miles northeast of the capital this afternoon. It broke out when Cambodian troops drove into Communist occupied areas around the Mekong River town of Prek Tameak. No casualty reports were available.

U.S. spokesmen in Saigon announced the turnover of a major coastal patrol operation in the Gulf of Thailand to the South Vietnamese, and said they also were bringing home about 1,600 more American servicemen from the war theater.

Plans for a new Cambodian drive in January were disclosed by Gen. Do Cao Tri, commander of the South Vietnamese Third Military Region, who also is responsible for Vietnamese operations in Cambodia east of the Mekong River.

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said today he favors resumption of Israeli-Arab talks under U.N. auspices as the only way to peace in the Middle East. Israel broke off the talks in September to protest an alleged Egyptian missile buildup along the Suez Canal.

Dayan spoke in the Israeli port city of Haifa as a prominent Cairo newspaper editor said in an editorial that Egypt reserves the right to revoke the two-day-old extension of the Middle East ceasefire any time it sees fit.

But the truce held today, and Dayan's statement seemed to be conciliatory.

"There is no other way to end the war except by talks and agreement," Dayan said in a reference to the mediation mission of Dr. Gunnar V. Jarring, the Swedish diplomat appointed by U.N. Secretary General Thant to find a way out of the Arab-Israeli dilemma.

"Israel must jump into very cold water, water containing blocks of ice." Dayan said if Israel made the "jump" it would be able to swim.

Dayan said the major "blocks of ice" were the Soviet Union, the U.N. call for Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab lands and "the unwillingness of our (Arab) neighbors to make peace."

It was not clear whether Dayan meant that Israel should drop its demand for a roliback of Soviet-supplied missiles along the Suez Canal as a condition for a resumption of the Jarring talks.

Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir said Friday that Israel's position was not changed. Dayan has disagreed in the past with some government policy.

Ihsan Abdelkoddous, editor of the weekly Akhbar Elyoum, said in an editorial acceptance of the 90-day extension was "not an agreement between us and any quarter but a unilateral decision we took. The same goes for Israel.

"Because this was a unilateral decision on our part, it is our

Bolinas Readies Salvo On Lagoon Quarantine

Bolinas is up in arms because of a critical business slump, which residents blame on the two-month-old county quarantine of Bolinas Lagoon.

Bolinas residents are expected to appear before the Marin County Board of Supervis Tuesday to deliver a blast at the county, particularly health officials.

Jose A. Silva, president of the Bolinas Community Public Utility District, has addressed a blistering letter to the supervisors, charging that transient living caused a hepatitis outbreak in the community, not the sewage discharge into Bolinas Lagoon.

Transients should have been ousted years ago when residents began complaining about cars and vans being used for habitation without water or tiolet facilities, Silva declared.

"The statement has been made that the dumping of sewage in the lagoon waters is the chief factor responsible for the recent outbreak of hepatitis, with the blame put on the Bolinas Community Public Utility District," said Silva.

Since sewage has been dumped at the same location since 1906, without serious consequences, why hasn't this sudden, critical health problem arisen before, asked Silva.

"One of the answers to that question is the living conditions of some of the people in Bolinas. People are permitted to live in cars, trucks, vans and vehicles without any water or toilet facilities."

He listed four specific cases of van-living which were reported to the county health department, and demanded that the county crack down.

He said busienss is suffering and property values dropping at an alarming rate.

In late September owners of most of Bolinas' downtown businesses were interviewed by the Independent-Journal. At that time the merchants expressed serious concern about the economic future of the town.

Jack Pepper, owner of J. R. Pepper General Merchandise, estimated the quarantine is costing him $1,000 a week. Owners of other businesses indicated business was down 25 to 50 per cent.

Have Soviets Resumed Killer Probe Tests?

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Soviet Union apparently has resumed tests of a killer satellite which could destroy orbiting enemy weapons or reconnaissance satellites, U.S. space experts said Saturday.

The tests were detected by experts here during an 11-day Soviet experiment, Oct. 20-Oct. 30, involving the Soviet Cosmos satellites 373, 374 and 375.

During these experiments, Cosmos 373 acted as an intruding enemy satellite and Cosmos 374 and 375 were launched to intercept and inspect it with the capability of destroying it.

The experiments ended with the explosion in orbit of satellites 374 and 375. This scattered numerous fragments in space which U.S. monitors are still tracking.

The experiment, the experts said, seemed to be similar to a 12-day series of experiments carried out Oct. 19, 20 and Nov. 1 in 1968 with Cosmos 248, 249 and 252. In this experiment Cosmos 248 acted as the intruder and Cosmos 249 and 252 played the role of inspector-destroyer satellites.

The experts said this type of military capability has been neglected by the United States.

The magazine Aviation Week and Space Technology will report in its Monday issue, that the explosion could have been conventional chemical blasts used in setting off nuclear weapons.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

'A Long Haul'

HELSINKI (UPI)—The Soviet Union is set for "a long haul" in the negotiations with the United States on nuclear arms limitations, conference sources said today.

The two super powers still are trying to find "a common meeting ground" which could provide the basis for agreement of nuclear weapons curbs, U.S. delegation sources said.

The signs were that such a joint basis is not in sight yet and consequently concrete accords at this session seem unlikely.

Tea Time, Too

LONDON (UPI) — Thieves who cut and burned their way into the vaults of Lloyds Bank, aided by the noise of Guy Fawkes Day fireworks, paused for tea before leaving with loot that could amount to tens of thousands of dollars, police said today.

The thieves opened 95 safe deposit boxes and departed with cash, jewelry, rare coins and stamp collections in a robbery Thursday that may have taken all night to complete, bank manager Guy Piddlocke said.

"They were in there for some time," a police source said. "When the detectives got inside the vault they disocvered the thieves had used some of the staff's tea and milk to make some tea. We're now checking for fingerprints on the two dirty teacups."

'Phoney Revolution'

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—San Francisco State College President S.I. Hayakawa believes militant students are engaged in a "phoney revolution" because society fails to provide enough challenges for them.

Speaking Friday at a convention meeting of the Wisconsin Educational Association here, Hayakawa of Mill Valley said he was referring to "verbally bright kids from the upper middle class who think of themselves as elite, intellectual aristocrats who believe they are entitled to rule."

Still No Verdict

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—There is still no verdict in the Los Siete murder trial.

The seven men and five women who have pondered the case since Monday had the legal instruction relating to "aiding and abetting" read to them for a third time Friday.

The defendants are charged with shooting officer Joseph Brodnik on May 1, 1969, when he and another undercover officer were investigating a burglary.

Strike Continues

HONOLULU (UPI) —A strike affecting 10 resort hotels on three islands is 30 days old today with no end in sight.

Three hotels—the Kaanapali Beach on Maui, King Kamehameha on Hawaii and Hanalei Plantation on Kauai—have been closed because of the strike by the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (ILWU).

Two-thousand workers have picketed those hotels and others which have been operating with limited services.

Many Didn't Vote; Figures For State

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans voted in record numbers in the midterm elections but fewer than 50 per cent of eligible voters cast ballots, estimates showed today.

The estimates, made by state election officials, placed the total voter turnout at about 57.6 million. The figure compared to the 1966 off-year election vote of 52,902,000. Officials said population growth apparently accounted for the gain.

While the number of voters increased, the total represented only 46.5 per cent of the estimated 124,018,000 Americans eligible to vote. About 46.3 per cent voted in 1966 and 46.7 per cent in 1962. In the 1968 presidential election, 61.8 per cent of the eligible voters cast ballots.

In California, nearly 90,000 fewer persons voted in the 1970 general election than in 1966 although about 365,000 more voters were registered this year, according to the Secretary of State's office.

Despite winning the governorship and most of the constitutional offices, the Republican Party lost control of the Legislature in Tuesday's election. The GOP, ironically, had predicted its candidates would be helped by a low voter turnout.

The Secretary of State's office said Friday that semi-official returns showed 6,390,232, or 74.5 per cent, voted this year as compared to 6,605,866, or 79.19 per cent in 1966—the last gubernatorial election. Officials noted, however, that final returns probably will put the 1970 voter figure closer to 6.5 million.

There were 8,706,347 persons registered to vote in Tuesday's election while 8,340,868 had been registered in 1966.

The final returns, due to be completed within a few weeks, are expected to show that about 87,000 fewer persons voted in this year's election than cast ballots in 1966 although there were about 365,000 more persons registered.

Late compilations Friday showed Democrats appeared to have won a Senate race in Indiana, a House contest in Kentucky and the governorship of Oklahoma. But the outcome of governor races in Maine and Rhode Island remained in doubt.

Sen. Vance Hartke claimed re-election to the Indiana Senate seat on the basis of a 4,249 vote margin in complete but unofficial returns. A spokesman for the two-term senator said the actual figure was "over 6,200" but a spokesman for his opponent, Rep. Richard Roudebush, said the Republican had won by at least 10,000 votes. Election officials are expected to certify the results Wednesday.

Republican Gov. Dewey Bartlett asked for a recount of votes cast in the Oklahoma race. He was the apparent loser by 2,819 votes to Democrat David Hall. It was expected to take from two to three weeks to complete the recount.

In Kentucky, a count of absentee ballots apparently gave victory in the state's 3rd congressional district to Democratic State Sen. Romano L. Mazzoli. Mazzoli led GOP incumbent Rep. William O. Cowger by 211 votes, and a recount was ordered.

In Rhode Island, a recount already was under way. Incumbent Democratic Gov. Frank Licht led Republican Herbert F. Desimone by about 2,500 votes. About 7,500 absentee ballots remain to be tabulated.

Incumbent Democratic Gov. Kenneth M. Curtis led Republican James S. Erwin by about 700 votes in Maine. State officials scheduled a recount starting Nov. 23.

In balloting for state legislators, Democrats had gained control of the legislatures in 23 states and Republicans in 17. In the other states, control was split or the houses were evenly divided.

Political leaders continued to assess the results of the election, and the White House's chief political strategist for the South said Friday Democratic claims that President Nixon's "Southern strategy" had been repudiated were "a bunch of Hooey."

Harry S. Dent, former aide to Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said the administration made ideological gains in the South Tuesday, if not by party. Dent conceded, however, that given a choice of two opposing conservatives, southerners tend to vote for the Democrat.

Murder Charged Against Militants

DETROIT (UPI) — Fifteen young black militants who barricaded themselves in a Black Panther headquarters after the fatal shooting of a Detroit policeman Oct. 24 will stand trial on charges of first-degree murder and conspiracy to commit first-degree murder.

The 15 had been held without bond after their arrests following a nine-hour siege of the home on Detroit's near West Side.

They were to have undergone a preliminary examination Thursday to determine whether thy must stand trial, but a 17-member Wayne County citizens grand jury Thursday handed down indictments on the two charges.

Professors Urged To Keep Dissent Out Of Classrooms

BERKELEY (UPI) —The nation's leading orgainzation of university professors has urged its 90,000 members to keep disruptive political and social dissent out of the classroom.

Dr. Sanford Kadish of the University of California, president of the Council of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP), released a Council statement Friday on "freedom and responsibility."

The policy statement, unanimously approved by the elected AAUP Council, warned that the freedom to dissent 'may not be carried out in ways which injure individuals or damage institutional facilities or disrupt the classes of one's teachers or colleagues."

The statement encouraged college and university faculty "to assume a more positive role as guardian of academic values against unjustified assaults from its own members."

The statement condemned teachers who misuse their classroom authority and who award credits on any basis other than academic performance.

"It is a teacher's mastery of his subject and his own scholarship which entitle him to his classroom and to freedom in the presentation of his subject," the statement said. "Thus, it is improper for an instructor persistently to intrude material which has no relation to his subject, or to fail to present the subject matter of his course as announced to his students and as approved by the faculty in their collective responsibility for the curriculum."

Any professor who feels his duty as a "moral agent" requires him to use his classroom for political or social purposes outside the scope of his academic duties should either request a leave of absence or resign, the statement said.

The AAUP Council also called on college and university teachers to "join with other members of the academic community in the development of procedures to be used in the event of serious disruption" and to insure faculty "consultation in major decisions, particularly those related to the calling of external security forces to the campus."

A preliminary hearing has been set for Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court for Terrence D. Maguire, 24, of San Francisco, accused of having a tear gas weapon when arrested by the California Highway Patrol last Saturday.

Wildcat Strike Keeps Cable Cars In The Barn Despite Long Talks

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A wildcat strike with racial overtones kept the city's cable cars off the streets again today.

Despite hours of negotiations Friday involving Mayor Joseph Alioto and Police Chief Alfred J. Nelder, the famous hill-climbing cars stayed in the barn.

The cable cars came to a halt Thursday night in the aftermath of a brawl with police in which two operators and a conductor were arrested. The striking drivers have demanded that charges be dropped and that an unbiased group not in the police department investigate the arresting officers' conduct.

The fight erupted after an inbound Powell-Mason car collided with a truck in the North Beach Area. Descriptions of what followed vary widely, but in the course of it, more than 30 police officers were at the scene, cable car traffic came to a full halt and three men were arrested.

Charged with battery and resisting arrest were Robert L. Coats, 29, and LeRoy Hagler, 29, operators of the car involved in the crash and Phillip Alberto, 25, gripman on an outbound cable car that was held up by the collision.

Alioto first met with gripmen in a noisy confrontation that got nowhere, but then met with union representatives, whom he termed "responsible" in his office.

He said that Police Chief Nelder would investigate the incident but said "the charges will not be dismissed. I don't care what happens. We will not compromise on that. If we have to take a strike by people who can't be controlled by their union, that's OK by me."

Alioto said that the walkout was part of an internal union problem involving the Black Caucus, which appeared to be heading the shutdown movement.

For some time the group, with strong support in the 100-man cable car division, has been challenging the local Transport Workers Union representing the whole 1800-member Municipal Railway System and demanding it become more militant on social issues.

Patrolman Arthur Orrante, who is white, said he decided to arrest Coats after truck driver Louis Knight, 29, of Gate 5, Sausalito, said Coats tried to assault him. The conductor "gave me a bad time," Orrante said, and Alberto stepped in. Orrante said Hagler and patrolman George Zube later scuffled.

20TH ANNIVERSARY

Jack Benny Switched To TV In Days When Stars Were Wary

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jack Benny was the biggest name in radio 20 years ago when he jumped into the unknown waters of television.

He surfaced smelling like a million dollars.

In an historic video first, Benny walked before the cameras and with elaborate egotism said, "I'd give a million dollars to know what I look like."

Benny will celebrate his 20th anniversary on the tube Nov. 16, and well he should. He pioneered the way for Bob Hope, Red Skelton and other radio stars who were as chary of television as John Gilbert had been of talking pictures.

"I wasn't the first radio personality to go into TV," Benny said agreeably. "George Burns and Gracie Allen were the ones to break the ice.

"Of course, television had developed some of its own stars — Milton Berle and Sid Caesar. But radio stars didn't like the new medium, and movie stars wouldn't get near it for anything.

"I WASN'T afraid because my stage experience prepared me for facing an audience who could see me."

Jack's first show was 45 minutes long. He thought a half hour was too short and an hour was too long.

"My first guest was Dinah Shore," Benny recalled, "and she'll be back with me for my anniversary show."

So will half of Hollywood. Benny has enlisted his old radio gang, Rochester, Dennis Day, Don Wilson and Mel Blanc with Cameo shots by Bob Hope, Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Skelton, Burns and Dinah.

Additionally he has included film clips of 48 major guests who appeared on his television shows — among them Marilyn Monroe, Harry S. Truman, Gary Cooper and Humphrey Bogart.

JACK BENNY
Ageless fiddler

"IT'S going to be a great show," Benny said with the enthusiasm of a newcomer.

"Jack isn't really 39 years old," said writer Hugh Wedlock who has been writing for Benny 35 years. "He's much younger than that."

Perhaps the nicest surprise on Benny's show will be the appearance of his wife, Mary Livingstone, who hasn't been seen on the tube with her husband in 14 years.

"I had to convince her to do the show," Jack said, gesticulating with his hands. "After it was over, she said never again. She's not really interested in a career. But Mary looks better now than she ever did, and she hasn't lost that great delivery of hers."

Benny, unlike his wife, has a compulsion to perform.

"Let me put it this way," he said. "If another new medium came along now — one as revolutionary as television — I would want to get into it, even at my age.

"Oh, forget about that last part," Jack concluded. "About the age, I mean."

THURBER TRIAL

Six Prospective Jurors Dismissed

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Six prospective jurors were dismissed yesterday as selection of a jury continued in the trial of Frank J. Thurber in San Francisco Superior Court.

Thurber, 45, of San Bruno, is charged with murdering Independent-Journal employee Allan W. Daly last July.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Pierre Merle dismissed one prospective juror, Dorothy Martini, with a peremptory challenge after she said her husband was a member of San Francisco Typographical Union 21.

Thurber, indicted Aug. 3 by a San Francisco Grand Jury on charges of murder, conspiracy, burglary and robbery, is a member of San Francisco Mailer's Union 18, affiliated with San Francisco Typographical Union 21, which has been on strike against the I-J since Jan. 7.

Daly was fatally shot at his San Francisco home July 4 when two young men entered, slugged him with a metal pipe and shot him while his wife was searching the kitchen for money the men had demanded.

Thurber was arrested July 6 along with two San Bruno teen-agers. He was freed on bail and rearrested July 16 when Daly died. He has been held since in San Francisco City Prison in lieu of $250,000 bail.

The two youths, who told police Thurber was the man who took them to Daly's home, have been sentenced to long-term commitment with the California Youth Authority. Merle indicated yesterday that they would be called to testify against Thurber.

Mrs. Martini's presence on the jury was challenged by Merle after she said her husband was a printer with Sorenson's Advertising Typographers in San Francisco.

She said her husband had been required to do picket at the I-J, but added she didn't think the fact that Thurber was a member of an affiliated union or that Daly was an I-J employee would influence her as a juror.

Thurber's attorney, Nathan Cohn, challenged another prospective juror, Margaret thom-Wohrden, when she said her boy friend was a San Francisco policeman.

Visiting Judge Edmund M. Moor of Alpine County Superior Court dismissed two prospective jurors who said they would not be able to vote for a death sentence and two others who said, the trial, estimated to last three weeks, would interfere with vacation plans.

Residents Form New Association

Residents of Young America Avondale Subdivision No. 4 in Petaluma have organized the Petaluma Valley Homeowners Association.

Assisting in formation of the homeowners group was John Schoonover, past president of the Gnoss Estate Association, Novato.

Elected as officers were Richard Courier, president; Mrs. Gerald Birkland, vice president; Mrs. A. James McGovern, secretary, and Ronald Chesterton, treasurer.

The officers and directors will meet Monday at 8 p.m. at the home of Courier to draw up by-laws and to establish a regular meeting date.

Courier said the association will not be in competition with the East Petaluma Civic Association or any other homeowners associations, but will work with them to better the community.

No Approval For Lot Split Request

A lot split application by A.A. Raymond for property at 625 Locust Road was not approved by the Sausalito Planning Commission Wednesday, as reported in Thursday's Independent-Journal.

Commissioners continued the matter to Nov. 18 to allow them to make a field inspection of the land.

Planners To Study Novato Rezoning Plan

Proposed rezoning of West and South Novato to half-acre and acre minimum lots will get a public hearing Monday afternoon before the Marin County Planning Commission.

The hearing is set for 2 p.m. in the commission chambers on the third floor of the Civic Center.

This will be followed by another hearing on Waldo Giacomini's proposal to dike 132 acres of marshland in South Tomales Bay for dairying.

At the Oct. 27 hearing, conservationists protested in force, and the planning commissioners asked Giacomini to get an engineer's report on what effect the dikes would have on flooding in the area between Shoreline Highway and White House Pool.

The county planning commission's all-day meeting starts at 9 a.m.

The morning agenda includes a report on the county's proposed septic tank ordinance that would tighten requirements, rezoning of a strip of Marin Municipal Water District land (abandoned railroad right-of-way) along Fern Canyon Road outside Mill Valley from residential to open area, and Oliver Mauch's tentative map for a 12-lot subdivision at the corner of Vineyard Road and Wild Horse Valley Drive, Novato.

Mechanical Press Reduces Pollutants

NEENAH, Wis. (UPI)—A mechanical press, normally used to make beer, wine and apple cider, has a significant new role here processing a less palatable liquid—paper mill waste water. Kimberly-Clark Corp. uses the press to squeeze solid materials from 5 million gallons of effluent a day, thus reducing the pollution of local waterways. As much as six tons of broken wood fibers and other solids are separated daily for use as land fill.

Potluck Dinner

The Bolinas Beach Improvement Club will hold a potluck dinner at 7 p.m. today at the Bolinas Mesa Clubhouse, followed by a meeting on law enforcement in the Bolinas area, according to Alice C. Silva, publicity chairman.

Tiburon Learns Funds For Park, Open Space Available

Federal and state monies are available to help Tiburon acquire park and open space land, the city's parks and recreation commission has been told.

Vernon E. Perry of Belvedere, financial consultant to the Golden Gate Bridge District, told commissioners Thursday that several government programs offer matching funds to cities for recreation expansion.

First, a master plan showing what areas are desired must be prepared. Then a cost estimate must be drawn up. Finally, the city council must confirm the master plan and land acquisition policy.

That's where Perry comes in, Kleinert said. His job is to take the plan to the Marin County Board of Supervisors, the state or the federal government.

"There's a wealth of matching funds available," Kleinert said, "including money for ecology programs and wild life preservation." He said Perry reported that sometimes federal teams will conduct studies for cities embarking on such programs.

Perry suggested that Tiburon join Belvedere in developing a parks master plan for the entire Peninsula and then apply jointly to the government. "This greatly improves the chances of success," Kleinert said.

The commission voted to ask Tiburon Planning Director Wayne E. Moody to combine all reports on park and open space acquisition and aid the commission in preparing the master plan as the first step in seeking government grants.

Also approved was a motion asking Mayor Denis T. Rice to invite the City of Belvedere to participate in the formation of the plan and the application for the grants.

The commission also was told that Rice wants it to prepare an interim plan for the use of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way, which the city wants to condemn and turn into a bicycle-pedestrian pathway.

A master plan for the path will be prepared when the land is acquired by the city, Kleinert said, but the interim plan will fill the gap until the permanent plan is finished.

Australia is the smallest of the continents.

CERF RATES JOHN O'HARA

"It is my personal opinion hat John O'Hara in his lifeme was the most unappreiated author in American litrary history. I think he beongs on top, along with such ontemporaries as William aulkner, Ernest Hemingway nd Scott Fitzgerald.

second and third years of the contract, and a $500 a month pension for all workers retiring after 30 years service regardless of age.

At the Wednesday meeting, Woodcock said the council members would discuss the current state of the negotiations and, if necessary, make plans to "meet the situation created when strike benefits are no longer available."

UAW workers on strike, or laid off because of lack of work, have been drawing between $30 and $40 a week in strike benefits, but UAW secretary-treasurer Emil Mazey has warned that the original $120 million strike fund will be exhaused if the strike does not end by Dec. 1.

Leaders Picked For World Bank

BONN, GERMANY — Two German finance leaders have been picked to take the reins of the World Bank and Interational Monetary Fund (I.M.F.) for 12-month terms.

Bonn's progressive Economics Minister Karl Schiller will preside over the World Bank, founded in 1944 with the primary aim of providing credit for significant projects in developing countries.

The I.M.F., designed to deal with tensions on the global money market by extending credit to countries with payment problems, will be headed by West German Federal Bank President Karl Klasen.

During their tenures, Schiller and Klasen will have to make preparations for and preside over the annual assemblies of the two organizations. The meetings are slated to be held in Washington, D.C., in September 1971.

Marin's Lucky Stores Plan To Remain Open

Despite a strike which is halting deliveries to 22 Lucky Stores in the Bay Area, managers of two Marin stores said today they have no plans to close their doors.

The managers have rented trucks and today brought in enough produce, milk and bread to last the weekend, according to Eugene Toulouse, assistant manager of Lucky's in Fairfax.

"We may have to close down our butcher shop tomorrow because we are nearly out of meat," Toulouse said, "but I hope we can rent some more trucks and bring some in on Monday."

Lucky stores in Fairfax and Northgate Shopping Center are being picketed by supporters of the striking Office and Professional Workers Local 9, which has a woman president and largely female membership.

Jean Maddox, president of Local 29, said Lucky has granted a cost-of-living escalator clause and improved fringe benefits to its male-dominated unions and is discriminating against her union, 90 per cent female.

Approximately 10 male pickets were at the Northgate store this morning and six or seven were picketing the Fairfax Market.

The union is asking an 80-cent hourly raise over three years and agreement was near on the salary demands, according to Mrs. Maddox. But she said there was still wide disagreement over fringe benefits, cost-of-living clauses and other demands.

"We don't intend to close; we'll sell what we have," said Harold Davis of the Northgate store. "We have the same amount of people in here as usual and they are pretty understanding."

Davis said the store has enough meat, bread, milk products and other goods for its weekend customers.

Yesterday, $300,000 worth of perishable items trapped in the Lucky Stores Inc. warehouse in San Leandro by the strike were given away to charitable organizations.

Trucks, autos and people formed a two-mile long line outside the supermarket chain's warehouse. Many individuals and families who arrived after the giveaway was announced were also given food.

"This looks like China in the middle of a famine," said one Lucky supervisor who stood in the rain and surveyed the crowd of hundreds of persons.

Union leaders labelled the giveaway a propaganda move, but pickets stood aside as trucks from the Salvation Army and dozens of other organizations responded to the invitation to pick up the foodstuffs.

The giveaway began at 8 a.m. By 11:30 a.m. all the food was distributed, but hopeful people continued arriving at the warehouse until late in the afternoon.

Car Theft Charge Dismissed By Judge

A charge of car theft against Leonard Woodall, former Marin County man charged with disappearing with his employer's car about a year ago, was dismissed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court by Judge Peter Allen Smith.

Judge Smith ruled that there had not been sufficinet evidence to show that the car had been stolen. Woodall had said that he had left the car with a note on it that it was to be returned to Richard C. Kenney, who owns an auto body shop. The car has never been found.

Man Pleads Guilty To Billy Club Charge

James Harold Dineen, 23, of Anaconda, Mont., pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a reduced misdemeanor charge of possessing a billy club in Sausalito last Saturday.

Dineen, who had earlier been charged with a felony count of the same offense, was sentenced to the time he has spent in jail by Judge Peter Allen Smith. It was reported that Dineen was to be turned over to other jurisdictions as he had holds on him for offenses from other states and counties.

He said the Republican re-broadcast of the President's Oct. 31 speech at Phoenix, Ariz., made Nixon look like "a candidate for district attorney of Phoenix" but the firseside chat of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, "stole the center from Nixon."

To hope that the country would prefer the Nixon of Phoenix to Muskie's performance. he said, "is to compound incompetence with wishful thinking."

In Beirut, the Al Fatah guerrilla organization said it was responsible for two bombs set off in Tel Aviv's main bus station Friday. One man was killed and 34 persons wounded.

Al Fatah said guerrillas of its military wing, Al Assifa, carried out the operation. The Baghdad-based Voice of the Palestinian Central Committee said in a broadcast heard in Beirut that the operation was "a part of a commando drive to sabotage the newly extended Middle East cease-fire."

Market Hit By Foul Liquid

The market, an Independent-Journal advertiser, was the target of a stink bomb last week.

seven varieties of strategic missiles presumably covered by the Strategic Arms Limitations (SALT) Talks at Helsinki, were in the parade list circulated by the sources.

And there was no immediate evidence that the snubs jolted Soviet authorities into speeding up the expected release of two Army generals and a major whose Beachcraft U8 airplane strayed over Soviet territory Oct. 21.

Officials in Washington could not confirm unofficial reports circulating in Moscow that Soviet authorities soon will release the detained Americans — Maj. Gen. C. D. Sherrer, head of the U.S. joint military mission in Turkey; Brig. Gen. Claude M. McQuarrie Jr., his aide for ground forces; and Maj. James R. Russell Jr., the pilot of the aircraft.

The United States has maintained that the aircraft strayed accidentally into Soviet terriory.

Hospital workers at San Rafael's Kaiser Foundation Hospital are among 4,000 Kaiser hospital employees granted a 50-cent hourly wage boost, the Hospital Workers Union announced yesterday.

Deadline For Fall Semester

Applications for admission to any of the 19 California State Colleges for the fall semester must be submitted by Nov. 30.

Applicants will file a single application at the college of their first choice and list as many as three other colleges in order of preference. Applications are available at all high schools, community colleges and state colleges.

Harold Soeters, dean of admissions at Sonoma State College, said all applications submitted this month will receive equal consideration within quotas set at each campus. Priorities will be given to veterans and community college transfers.

Soeters said that all applications submitted in November will be given the same consideration regardless of the date of receipt.

Dr. David Kagan, coordinator of admission services, said it is unlikely the college system can accomodate all qualified applicants at college of first choice. In such cases, applications will be automatically forwarded to alternate college choices in order of preference listed by the applicants.

Applicants will be notified by March 1, by one of their colleges of choice, as to whether space has been reserved for them for the fall term. Applicants must then submit necessary such as grade

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Mother's Noise Is Invading Her Daughter's Private Air Space

DEAR HELEN:

I left home once because of it, then came back as I felt guilty —also broke. But Helen, I'm up to my ears in noise.

It's my mother. She slam-bangs around the house — doors, drawers, etc. She plays television way up to here. When we have donnybrooks about it, she says she can do what she damn well pleases in her own house. I tell her noise is invading my air space, thus she invades my privacy.

Her hearing is normal — it's been tested — but I wonder if all this loudness will affect her later. They say kids who listen to rock music tend to go deaf, and my mother's noise really ROCKS you! After I came home, she tried holding it down for a while, but now it's high level again.

Before I leave for good, maybe you could tell an introverted child how to cope with an extroverted parent. — BLASTED OUT BY A CLATTERFAMILIAS

DEAR BLASTED:

Just as certain people need more heat than others, so too does your mother need a slam-bang, noisy life to keep her perking. You can't change her basic drives any more than she can change your aversion to "clatterfamilias," but you can both hit the consideration button a little harder. Perhaps she'll tune down television if you ignore a few door slams: Things like that . . . but don't expect a total switch on either side. Introverts and extroverts can help each other up to a point, but they'll never really understand what makes the other tick. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I read about a survey that says only three out of 20 married couples really get along and like each other, maybe even to the extent of love. Seven out of 20 figure marriage is okay but nothing great. And about 10 out of 20 only stay together out of necessity because they're trapped by family, finances or lethargy.

If this is true — and it was a government sponsored national survey — how come marriage is still the most popular game around? — NON-GAMBLING BACHELOR

DEAR NGB:

Because nobody thinks the bad stuff will happen to him. Besides, up until recently, it's been the only game in town. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I am sitting at my desk, after hearing a chorus of "Oinks!" (as in pig.) It started when we were out in the school yard and Jane said, "Carol wears that vest because she isn't wearing a bra." Next day, being curious, I wrote Carol a note asking her if she was bra-less.

Well, some boys got hold of the note and started teasing Carol who now hates me. At least, somehow, everybody's calling me a pig, especially boys.

Am I ruined for the rest of the year just because of a stupid note? — EIGHTH GRADE OINK

DEAR EGO:

Junior Hi feuds burn out fast, maybe because there's always a new hassle to take their place. Call (don't write) Carol and talk it over. Meanwhile, ignore the "Oinks" until they go away. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I thought I would do something keen like a teen and send you my oodles of niceness. SO!!! Here is my poetic contribution on "What is Nauseating Drivel?"

Nauseating drivel is when your heart strings are tugged, your eyes fill with tears and your throat with lumps. It is the feeling I get when I read things in your column (like "What is a Service Girl?") with a full stomach. Let a swallow cry or a bluebird fly or a housefly die and I think I, not you, but I, will surely swallow the lump in my throat and bravely force my way through your blankety blank "What Is A" column — A TEENY BOPPER WHO KNOWS

THE PRETTY dress dominated most of the more than 24 fashion openings previewed during the last three weeks by UPI fashion writers in the nation's garment district, New York's Seventh Avenue. Models wear dresses by three of the nation's most influential designers, who are pinning their hopes for spring on the rebirth of the pretty dress. (UPI Telephoto)

Adele Simpson Brings Back Shawls In Ladylike Fashions

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Designer Adele Simpson, considered peerless as a designer of ladylike clothes, brings back the huge fringed shawl for spring. Triangular-shaped shawl, that is.

The prettiest in her collection, seen Thursday, matched a nearly ankle-length silk dress printed in what she described as a rose festival pattern. The shawl was so huge its back point fell to the hem of the dress.

Mrs. Simpson, whose customers include Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, endorsed the jumper and the jumper look—the latter being a dress with sleeves set in to look like a blouse, She also favored the coat and shirtwaist dress, in neutrals, navy and paintbox colors. None of these was midi length.

Designer Simpson, sticking with the formula that has made her successful, served up only ladylike clothes. There wasn't a peek-a-boo or transparent top look in the collection.

THE PANTS outfits that opened the collection were four parters, meant for those who want to be comfortable while gaing from here to there by plane.

The pants had matching wrap-around skirt and midi-length, trench coat, plus dotted or printed blouses self-bowed at the neck. These came in red and navy versions. Worn with huge-brimmed hats they were, indeed, ladylike.

Her daytime costumes featured slightly gathered skirts, skirts given movement via pleating and easy bodices with long sleeves much of the time. The latter always were self-belted.

For after five, Mrs. Simpson liked pastels nearly to the ankle dresses, some with skirts decked in flouncing. The fabrics she favored were crepe, silk and chiffon.

SOFT DRESSING was how she described the evening silhouette, featuring many chiffon cages in pale ice cream colors. To emphasize the softness some dresses were shaped to the body by elasticized sheering.

Business at Adele Simpson's is moving along very well. As the designer, herself in a black velvet jumper with white satin, long-sleeved blouse, put it:

"In a season when many apparel enterprises are in a depressed state (mainly over the midi) our business has been sensational—North, South, East and West. Mainly because we don't stand still.

Glad To Return To Novato's Fresh Air

By MOLLY MARIN

Returning to Novato from a trip to the Orient are Mrs. Harold Avery and Mrs. William Pratt. Mrs. Avery is supervisor of nurses at Novato General Hospital, and Mrs. Pratt is a nurse there.

They went by plane, leaving on Oct. 10, and their first stop was Taiwan, where Mrs. Avery said the country was beautiful. She was impressed by the National Museum, shops and the abundance of fresh fruits and vegetables.

They stopped in Hong Kong before going on to Kyoto and Tokyo riding the Bullet Train. Mrs. Avery said that she had never run into a smog problem compared to that in Tokyo. She said she enjoyed the trip but was glad to return to Novato to get a fresh breath of air.

MR. AND MRS. Ronald Frank Antonioli entertained 200 guests at their hill top home in Black Point Oct. 24.

Mr. Antonioli introduced his Marin friends to his bride, the former Pamela Cameron Foulds. The couple were married in South Lake Tahoe on Aug. 8.

Zipper Foot Should Only Be Used For Zippers Or Cording

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

I am a beginner when it comes to sewing and have just learned the virtues of using a zipper foot to insert the lapped type zipper. Now I'm wondering why I can't use the zipper foot for all of my sewing.

MRS. R. E. W.

DEAR MRS. R.E.W.:

The zipper foot is only half of the regular presser foot width so that it can be used very close to the zipper or cording, whereas the regular presser foot would prevent this close stitching. However, the regular presser foot controls the fabric much better since there is a part of the metal foot riding on each side of your actual machine stitching. I would only use the zipper or cording foot in the specific techniques for which it was designed.

While we're on the subject of zippers, I would like to go into the nylon invisible zippers a little more thoroughly since I have received so very many letters asking for more information about them.

Many women resist them naturally, remembering when they weren't heat resistant and they had to replace many of the old zippers that were used in cottons that needed a hot iron. Today, nylon has been perfected to the point that it will withstand the same heat that is used for pressing on cottons without any disastrous effects. If the length of the zipper is not the length you prefer, whip-stitch over the closed coil one half inch below the desired zipper length. Cut off the excess zipper about one half inch below your whip-stitching.

The nylon zippers can be machine washed, or dry cleaned and tumble dried. They won't rust or corrode. It's best to close the zipper before washing, dry cleaning or pressing. Use a press cloth when ironing or pressing at temperatures higher than the ordinary cotton setting. Should the zipper become curled after washing and drying, simply steam press the zipper flat again.

Some fabrics such as polyesters have less than a 1 per cent shrinkage. It is recommended that you preshrink your zipper before applying. This is done by immersing the zipper in hot tap water for a few minutes. Roll in a towel to absorb moisture. Air dry and press lightly, ease zipper tape slightly when applying.

Should zipper become hard running after washing or dry cleanings, lubricate the coil edges by rubbing with beeswax, soap or with a commercial zipper ease product.

If you don't care for the metal tab of the zipper, you may cover it with your fabric or remove the tab and add your own decorative drop or jewel for a fashion accent.

MRS. JOHN E. POSTMA, Troy, Mich. is this week's Tailor Trix winner for her following sewing suggestion:

"I have learned to love to sew, but have better success if I follow the pattern and instructions carefully. The tracing wheel is a must for marking darts, seam allowances, tucks, and pleats. Since this creates havoc with the pattern and I do enjoy going back and reusing my patterns, I have tried something that has worked beautifully for me.

"Before using a pattern, press it and then on the lines indicating darts, seamlines, or other important matching points, I press a piece of paper surgical adhesive tape on my pattern. Buy it in the 1 and 1½ inch width rolls. You'll find your patterns will last indefinitely and that favorite styles may be used over and over again."

DEAR EUNICE,

You have often mentioned putting in a zipper by hand to give a more custom finish to a garment. Would you please repeat these instructions?

MRS. J. W. B.

DEAR MRS. J. W. B.:

Hand sewn zipper application will not only give a more custom finish to your garment in both lapped and centered application, but the hand sewing will result in a softer, more fluid line. You may prefer the hand stitching for the last step only.

It is best to use silk buttonhole twist because of the extra strength and soft sheen which adds to its appearance. This is done from the right side of the garment. Bring your needle through the surface from underneath. Take a very small stitch back, perhaps only one or two yarns of the fabric, bring your needle forward and up through your fabric. Continue, a stitch back and then forward keeping stitches about ¼ inch apart. Be sure not to pull the thread tight after each stitch, the thread should almost form a small French knot appearance that will work back into your fabric slightly.

If your fabric is very thick, it would force the distance between each stitch to be longer. To give the appearance of closer stitching and to provide additional strength, repeat back-stitching between the first stitches. Final step to hand-stitching is to reinforce by machine stitching zipper tape to seam allowance from wrong sides.

Any handwork on a garment adds to its value, because it is handwork. Don't fret yourself into a tizzy if each stitch isn't quite as even as machine stitching. Handwork is never that perfect. If you are working with sheer fabrics, the zipper will be much softer and more flexible if you hand sew every step instead of just the finish or top stitching.

Wall hangings, a caftan, bikini cover are all gifts you can make from the instructions given in the booklet "Boutique Gifts." For your copy send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

SUMMER — A Laplander in the north of Sweden takes time out from tending his herd of reindeer to pose with one of his creatures. Filmmaker Dick Reddy visited the rugged Arctic area during the summer when snow still dotted the mountains to film, "A Swedish Summer." The movie is to be shown Monday at 8:15 p.m. at San Rafael High School auditorium.

DRAMA REVIEW

Collegians Excel In Night Of Bard

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

James Dunn, the miracle man of the College of Marin's drama department, has done it again. Or when hasn't he stopped?

Last night's opening of William Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" was like a banquet with each entree outdoing the preceding one. To put it mildly, it was one of the most enjoyable evenings of theater I have experienced in several seasons.

Puck's closing lines begin, "If we shadows have offended, Think but this, and all is mended — That you have but slumb'red here . . ." Offend? The audience could have stayed for another hour.

In his program notes he says, "we hope to bridge the gap of 375 years and take you to London of 1595 where the Lord Chamberlain's men, led by Richard Burbage, Will Shakespeare and Company, attempt to show you that 'the lunatic, the lover, and the poet are imagination all compact'."

Indeed he has done just that. From the ticket taking Beefeater guards, intermission 16th Century dancers, fire eater, Punch and Judy show to the Elizabethan stage, Dunn draws you into Shakespeare's time.

The stage is set in a leisurely fashion with the cast members strolling down to the stage, stopping here and there for a friendly hello.

The story of "Midsummer" is so familiar it's needless to discuss the plot, but let's say only it was probably written for an aristocratic wedding where merrymaking was the order of the day.

With the use of the superb reproduction of tme Elizabethan stage under Alonso D. Gonzalez, who also had the task of creating the costumes and deft lighting touch of Ronald Krempetz and special songs by Thomas W. Buckner, the actors were charged with bringing Shakespeare's words alive. Dunn's sixth sense of fitting a youthful actor into a certain character is almost uncanny.

To maintain the pace, which was almost electrifying at times, Dunn had to have sterling performances from the spirit world — at least in the two major roles of Oberon, the king, and Puck, his conjure boy.

Mark Rasmussen, whom I have observed turn into a versatile young actor, was excellent as Oberon. His abilities were equally matched, however, by Joel Blum as Puck, who spun magic in delivery as well as in his rhythmic movements.

And, too, the young lovers were freshly acted by David Brown as Lysander; Howard McMaster as Demetrius; Roxane Wilkinson as Hermia, and Alice Rorvik as Helena.

Balanced with the principals were the delightful artisans who nearly walked off with all the honors. Cuteness in these roles sometime spoils the effect of the Bard's hilarious words, but not last night. The artisans' concluding play of Pyramus and Thisbe was a shrewd bit of theatrics. Cast in these are John Evans as Peter Quince; J.W. Harper as Nick Bottom; Shelly Lipkin as Francis Flute; John Chapot as Tom Snout; Robert Cooper as Snug; Rick Casorla as Robin, and the hound Grover, a distinguished little fellow named Grover James Finney.

Carla Sarvis as Titania, Oberon's queen, had a sure feel of her part, and had able assistance from her court: Karen Meadows as Peaseblossom; Stephanie Saunders as Cobweb; Kathy Rainey as Moth, and Linda Apple as Mustardseed.

While their roles were limited to squeals and mumblings, Jess Jestrab, Elwood Markham and Ernie Shelton as the Trolls (part of Oberon's entrouage) added just the right touch in the forest scenes.

Todd Norris as Theseus, Duke of Athens, was fashionable in his limited role, as was Pamela Contos as Hippolyta, his queen. Leonard Roy Stevens as Egeus was convincing, and Alan Kernan, as Philostrate, the master of the revels, had just the right amount of prissiness.

"Midsummer" will be performed again at 8 p.m. today and tomorrow in the college's Fine Arts Theater. It will also run Nov. 12 through 15 and Nov. 19 through 22.

If the SRO sign is out by next Friday, hit yourself for being late to the ticket office.

Pleads Innocent To Heroin Charge

David A. Fried, 20, of San Rafael, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of possessing heroin for sale when arrested Oct. 21 in San Rafael on an outstanding traffic warrant.

Fried allegedly had seven balloons of the narcotic with him when arrested.

'A Swedish Summer' Is Film Topic

"A Swedish Summer," a travel film sponsored by Explorama of San Francisco, will be shown Monday at 8:15 p.m. at the San Rafael High School auditorium.

Photographer Dick Reddy, who will narrate the film in person, made the film, which includes footage from Lappland in the far north, during a four-month swing through the Scandinavian country.

The movie also includes views of Stockholm, a midsummer celebration, Gotlard, Gota Canal, Gothenburg, and Dalarna, according to Explorama.

Kentfield Request Due Before Board

The Kentfield School District board will consider a request by the Kentfield Parent-teacher Association for $2,000 for the 1971 summer school program.

Chicano Session Scheduled Friday

Marin County Economic Opportunity Council leaders will meet with spokesmen for Marin's Chicano community next Friday to see if agreement can be reached on a program to meet needs of the Spanish-speaking.

The meeting grew out of the appearance of some 30 Chicanos at Wednesday's EOC board meeting in San Anselmo. The visitors stressed their language problems and outlined needs.

The meeting will be in the office of Robert Lomax, EOC director. He said no hour has been set for the talks.

1970 BUICK SKYLARKS

Air Conditioned

$3495

Brand new '70 Skylark coupes with comparable equipment such as air conditioning, power steering, V-8 engine, radio, heater, tinted glass, deluxe wheel covers, white wall tires and vinyl interiors that sold new for over $4300.

These three cars — each with slightly over 5,000 miles — are absolutely spotless inside and out. If they didn't have our license plates on these cars — you couldn't tell them from new.

The purchaser of any of these '70 Buicks picks up 4-years and 44,000 miles of the GM new car warranty. Two of these cars are gold and one is chocolate brown and all have contrasting light beige vinyl interiors. 0Z107183, 0Z107173, 0Z107182.

Eastwood School Sale On Agenda

The Mill Valley School District Board will meet Monday at 8 p.m. at Tamalpais Valley School, 350 Bell Lane, to discuss with members of that community the sale of the Alice Eastwood School site at Eastwood Way and Glenwood Avenue.

Sale of the 5.11-acre site has been recommended to help pay for construction of the district's Middle School, now being built at Sycamore Avenue and Camino Alto.

Also on the agenda is the setting of salaries for the current school year for teachers and classified employees.

Fairfax Council To Eye Housing

The Fairfax City Council is scheduled to meet with the county chief of advanced planning at 8 p.m. Monday at city hall to discuss the requirement for a housing element in the city's master plan.

In addition to the discussion with Albert W. Solnit, the council is scheduled to hold public hearings on abating a old store at 85 Bolinas Road and debris in a creek.

Also set for discussion is a proposed ordinance to cover amending cable television franchises and customer rates.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Thinning Of Bone Mass In Elderly Women Major Cause Of Fractures

Van Dellen

About four million older women in the United States have osteoporosis, a loss (or thinning) of bone mass. It is one of the common causes of backache and spontaneous fractures, especially of the hip. One pessimistic physician listed the sequence of the disorder as follows: osteoporosis, broken hip, pneumonia from prolonged bed rest, nursing home and finally, death.

The disease is less common in males and is called idiopathic osteoporosis when it develops in younger men and women. No one knows why the bones of these individuals become porous, lose too much calcium or have too little bone formation or both.

ORIGINALLY, lack of female sex hormones (estrogens) was suspected because osteoporosis often developed following the menopause. Furthermore, bone loss is delayed or fails to occur when these hormones are given continuously from the time of the 'change'. But the results were not too good when estrogens were given to elderly women long after bone changes took place.

Other glandular products that may play a role are parathyroid hormones that dissolve bone and release calcium into the blood. This is counteracted by thyrocalcitonin, a hormone that prevents calcium loss. Some researchers believe that osteoporosis is due to a hormonal metabolic imbalance. This avenue is presently being pursued. Human growth hormone also leads to improvement, but the product is so scarce that its use is impractical at this time.

INCREASING the intake of calcium and vitamin D also may help. Milk and cheese are high in the former; calcium tablets and powders also are available. An objection to this remedy is that calcium is poorly absorbed by the intestine. Furthermore, it diminishes the rate of bone destruction for too short a time. The phosphates increase calcium retention and may be effective.

Residents living in areas where the water supply has a high fluoride content have less osteoporosis. This explains the rationale of oral sodium fluoride as a remedy.

GENES FOR BLONDNESS

Miss N. writes: Someone told me that the offspring of two natural blonds are not perfect because of the genes they have inherited. Is there any truth to this statement?

REPLY

Not to my knowledge. In some countries, blonds are in the majority and intermarriage is inevitable. Their offspring live as long as anyone else and do not suffer from inherited imperfections because of the color of their hair.

ALLERGIC DISEASES

Mrs. K. L. writes: My son was born with eczema, which cleared up after his second birthday. Then he developed asthma. Last year he got hay fever. Are all these ailments connected?

REPLY

Yes, all are allergies. If possible, you should take your son to an allergist. He has a life-long disease and it is none too soon to start him on the right path.

COFFEE SIDE EFFECT

P. C. writes: Could 6 to 8 cups of coffee a day cause loss of equilibrium? During the day, I have spells where I momentarily lose my sense of balance.

REPLY

Perhaps, but other possibilities must be considered, such as ear trouble, anemia, hypoglycemia, or low blood pressure. Abstain from coffee for two days, and if the dizziness disappears, you have your answer.

Statistics Show Smokers' Tastes Run To Tar Brands

John C. Maxwell Jr., an analyst for a New York brokerage firm, predicted cigarette consumption would rise despite government health warnings and elimination of broadcast commercials.

Maxwell said in an article in Barron's, a financial newspaper, that following a dip in sales in 1969, "the cigarette industry is on the eve of new growth in this decade."

"While the reason for the upward strength in consumption is certainly nebulous, it may be laid to continued governmental programs on everything we eat or drink," he said. "Thus the populace possibily has a credibility gap."

Maxwell compiled the sales rankings of the various cigarette brands. His figures combined with the latest government tests of the tar and nicotine content of cigarettes show that only one of the 10 best sellers — Kent — is also rated lowest in tar and nicotine.

The largest selling cigarette —Winston —had 10 times more tar than Carltons and 13 times more nicotine than Marvels, the two brands ranked lowest in the substances.

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) Friday released the results of its October tests which show that 34 brands were decreased in tar content since May and 20 were reduced in nicotine.

However, 15 were increased in tar content and 18 increased nicotine content while there was no change in the tar content of 66 brands and in the nicotine content of 77.

The FTC tests each of a brand's variety —king size and 100's, with and without menthol, soft pack and hard pack, etc.

The FTC said Carlton was lowest in tar followed by Marvels, King Sano, Frappe, Kent, Duke, Life, Multifilter, Tempo, True, Montclair, and Doral. Brands lowest in nicotine were, in order, Marvels, Carlton, King Sano, Frappe, Duke, Kent, Vogue, True, Life, Stratford, Multifilter and Gauloises Disques Bleu.

This year's best sellers, according to Maxwell, were Winston, Pall Mall, Marlboro, Salem, Kool, Camel, Kent, Tareyton, Viceroy and L&M. The only change from last year's sales rankings was in 10th place where L&M supplanted Lucky Strike.

The U.S. Public Health Service and a number of private health agencies have tried to discourage cigarette smoking since a 1964 Surgeon General's report linked cigarettes with lung cancer. Subsequent may also contribute to heart disease and other ailments, and that low tar brands may be less hazardous.

Congress passed a bill last year outlawing broadcast cigarette commercials effective next an. 2, and strengthening the warning on cigarette packages. In addition, the FTC has announced its intention to require that all cigarette ads include the brand's tar and nicotine content.

Nixon Calls Closest Aides To Map Plans

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) —President Nixon summoned his closest advisers to the winter White House today for a post-election session on domestic programs, and probably political strategy.

Seeking relaxation after a rigorous campaign schedule, Nixon arrived here Friday night for a 10-day working vacation at his Bayside villa.

He was expected to fly to Grand Cay, a tiny green isle in the Bahamas later today as a weekend guest of multimillionaire pal Robert H. Abplanalp of Bronxville, N.Y.

TOP AIDES

Flying in from Washington for an 11 a.m. EST gathering were Attorney General John N. Mitchell, Nixon's campaign manager in the 1968 presidential election, presidential assistants John D. Ehrlichman, H. R. Haldeman and Donald Rumsfeld, counselors Robert H. Finch and Bryce Harlow and special counsel Charles Colson.

Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler billed the meeting, as a "long range planning session," with no set agenda.

"We'll be looking ahead for the next two years" and mapping homefront programs to be submitted to the next Congress, he added.

Ziegler said Nixon's lieutenants on Capitol Hill will push for passage of the revolutionary welfare program proposal during the lame duck session.

LOW INCOME

The House-passed measure, which guarantees a minimum income to poor families, is presently stalemated in the Senate Finance Committee and the bulwark of his domestic program.

Although the today's gathering of Nixon tacticians appeared to have political overtones, Ziegler insisted that its purpose was not an election post mortem.

Nevertheless, although the White House called the election a "tremendous success" there were indications that Nixon is less than satisfied with the overall GOP showing, particularly in the state houses, and has decided to revise campaign tactics for the 1972 presidential tilt.

MONEY ISSUE

In their soul searching, some Republican advisers feel that the pocketbook issues won out over "law and order" with middle America when it went to the polls.

He will be joined here early next week by his wife Pat, who will spend the weekend in Washington to catch up on White House chores.

Prosecution Concludes Thoresen Death Case

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI)—The prosecution has concluded its case against Mrs. Louise Thoresen, accused of killing her millionaire husband in their home full of machine guns, other weapons and explosives.

District Attorney Frank Wells called nine witnesses as he attempted to establish that the victim was shot in the back while lying in bed and that Mrs. Thoresen had had an extramarital affair.

Defense attorneys will offer opening arguments Monday. They have indicated that they will seek to establish that Mrs. Thoresen shot her husband in self-defense.

The most damaging prosecution testimony against the long-haired 34-year old widow came from Mrs. William McDermott, who lived near the Thoresen home. Mrs. McDermott testified that the defendant ran to her home after the shooting, admitted she killed her husband and said he was "asleep" when she shot him.

Dr. John Miller, a pathologist who performed the autopsy on Thoresen's nude, bullet-riddled body, said he was shot five times in the back while lying in bed "in a rather comfortable position with his chin against his chest."

Dr Donald Hessel, a chemist, said traces of LSD were found in Thoresens' blood. Earlier testimony by a laboratory expert indicated the presence of barbiturates as well.

Investigating officers found 50 pounds of marijuana in the house, along with $20,000 worth of military-type weapons and explosives.

Friday the prosecution introduced six apparent suicide notes written by Mrs. Thoresen, two of which indicated that she had had an affair with a man identified only as "joe."

The notes to her husband said she intended to "take the pills and go to sleep."

Mrs. Thoresen, who broke down in sobs earlier in the trial, turned away Friday when bloodstained bedclothes were introduced in evidence, with bullet holes identified by a ballistics expert.

Kennedys Lead Mourners At Cardinal Cushing's Services

BOSTON (UPI)-A joyous Mass of Resurrection consecrated the soul of Cardinal Richard Cushing to God Saturday before a congregation of the rich and famous, the humble and the poor who were his parishioners.

Cardinal John Wright, delivering the eulogy, recalled that Cushing's theme "was always the same: new worlds to conquer for Christ, new hope to bring to man, . . . all things made new."

Holy Cross Cathedral was jammed to capacity with mourners, including Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Mrs. Jacqueline Onassis and other members of the family. Hundreds more stood outside.

The cardinal's casket, opened since Tuesday when his body was placed in the lofty cathedral to lie in state, was closed as the dignitaries filed in. The cardinal's galleta, his hat of office with its thirty tassles, rested on top of the casket.

Following the mass, Cushing's body was removed for the procession to the Portiuncula Chapel at St. Coletta School for Retarded Children in Hanover, where he was buried in a crypt that is a replica of the tomb of St. Francis of Assisi in Assisi, Italy.

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Regardless Where Heart Queen, Ace Located, South Is Victor

It was almost 200 years ago that the Queen of Hearts made some tarts, only to have them stolen clean away by the Knave of Hearts. To this day threre's a little bad blood between them, and nothing gives the pasteboard queen of hearts greater satisfaction than to show the jack (as the knave is now called) how worthless he is. If you don't remember the old nursery rhyme, maybe you can see how the queen got her revenge in today's hand — thanks to South's careless play.

HIGH CARD ACTION

South won the first trick with the ace of diamonds, led the ace of trumps and then gave up a trump trick to the king. East returned a club to dummy's king, and declarer returned the five of hearts from dummy.

East played the ten, and South hopefully put up the king of hearts. West won with the ace of hearts and led the queen of hearts to capture dummy's unguarded jack. "That'll teach him," the queen said as she won the trick.

South had to give up a club trick, losing in all one trump, two hearts and one club. Down one.

PROPER VALUE

South should make his contract by seeing the proper value of the knave of hearts. After taking the ace of trumps at the second trick, South should lead a low heart toward dummy's jack.

If West has the queen of hearts, he must play it to prevent dummy's jack from winning the trick (or from driving out the ace). And if West does put up the queen of hearts, dummy's jack can be used next to drive out the ace.

ACTUAL HAND

In the actual hand, West would shift to a club (best), and dummy's king would win. Declarer would lead the jack of hearts to force out the ace. Now South would win the next club in his hand with the ace, and would cash the king of hearts to discard dummy's losing club. The contract would then be safe.

If West didn't happen to have the queen of hearts, dummy's jack would have no value. But then declarer could later lead a heart from dummy toward his king. He would make his contract if West had the queen or if East had both the ace and queen.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - K Q
♦ - 10 9 8 4
♥ - K 8 7 4
♣ - Q J 10.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds. The hand is a bit too strong for a response of 1 no-trump, which would promise only six to 10 points in high cards. You plan to bid 2 no-trump at your next turn if partner rebids his spades.

A Step Toward Solving Drunken Driver Problem

WE ARE KILLING PEOPLE at the rate of about 55,000 per year on U.S. highways.

Over the years, engineers have improved highway design to make driving safer. Freeways, for instance, are demonstrably safer than earlier designs.

Of late, auto manufacturers have given more attention to safety in design. Some notable achievements already have been recorded.

Were it not for these and such things as more rigid license examinations, the human slaughter on our highways would be even worse.

The American Automobile Association's Foundation for Traffic Safety is among groups demonstrating concern and making an effort to find solutions.

AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety is headed by Edwin S. Moore, who is no stranger to Marin. Although he is not a resident here, he has spent his lifetime in the San Francisco Bay area and long has been as familiar a figure on Marin golf courses as he is at the speakers' rostrum before service clubs and the like.

Since retiring as executive vice president of the California State Automobile Association a couple of years ago, Ed Moore has been able to devote more time to his duties as president of the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety.

ACCIDENT INVESTIGATION statistics show that alcohol is involved in more than half of the 55,000 annual traffic deaths.

Approximately 44 per cent of those who die on our highways each year through no fault of their own are the victims of drinking drivers.

More startling to the uninitiated is the fact that "acute alcoholism is present in the majority of persons responsible for fatal automobile crashes."

Ponder all this and you come to the conclusion that we can never make any significant headway against the shocking highway death toll until we figure out how to deal with the drinking driver.

ABOUT FIVE YEARS AGO a judge in Phoenix, Ariz. — Eugene K. Mangum, by name — saw this problem in perspective and groped for ways to deal with it.

At the same time a professor at Arizona State University — Dr. Ernest I. Stewart — was developing some ideas for dealing with drinking drivers through educational techniques which resemble group counseling.

Fortuitously, the judge and the professor got together. Another educator, Dr. James L. Malfetti of Columbia University, joined the effort, as did the Phoenix Police Department.

Later, the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety lent financial support.

Judge Mangum began to require convicted drunken drivers to take the course as a part of their sentence.

The results have been dramatic.

Many drinking drivers became aware apparently for the first time of the full weight of the problem. Many have been motivated either not to drink at all or not to drive while drinking. It is as simple as that, in final result.

THE AAA FOUNDATION for Traffic Safety refers to the program as "DWI Phoenix." DWI is the old fashioned police blotter symbol for driving while intoxicated.

Now the foundation is preparing to encourage all jurisdictions everywhere to adopt a program. "DWI Counterattack" is the label which the AAA Foundation applies to its own efforts.

One of these days Ed Moore will see that the California State Automobile Association advocates the DWI Counterattack program for Marin County.

It may even be that Ed Moore himself will be on hand to preside as his AAA Foundation's movie, "DWI Phoenix," is presented.

If you have the opportunity to see it for yourself, you are certain to be a strong supporter of this suggested new approach to bringing the highway slaughter under control.

INCIDENTALLY, nearly every person sentenced by Judge Mangum to take the Stewart-Malfetti course in Phoenix has resented the sentence and turned up for the first class "with a chip on his shoulder."

Ed Moore has said of DWI Counterattack that its "intensely humanistic approach to the rehabilitation of drunk drivers holds out new promise for reducing the awful toll of highway deaths that has become a national tragedy."

At the very least, DWI Counterattack is worth trying in Marin. The sooner the better.

Clean Environment—A Right?

We recently heard a lawyer say that Americans' right to a clean environment may be guaranteed, vaguely and implicitly, in the Ninth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

The Supreme Court derived the "right of privacy" from this long-ignored part of the Bill of Rights. The ninth amendment tells us that the listing of rights, such as freedom of speech and religion, does not eliminate other rights retained by the people.

What more basic right can the people have than to breathe clean air and to live in a clean environment?

It's an intriguing idea.

Falling Leaves

Is anything more symbolic of the season than falling leaves? These delicate bits of brown parchment carry a message of the ephemeral quality of life.

Just yesterday, these leaves were gay reds and yellows — the legacy of a long, dry summer. The day before, they were green, robust living things. And the day before that they were tightly folded in small, hard buds.

Leaves crowd the life cycle of all living things into a single year. Yet, they fall, mold, provide sustanance for the rebirth next spring.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS to all the candidates, both successful and unsuccessful, who conducted decent campaigns, appealing to voters on the basis of qualifications and issues. And BRICKBATS to those who resorted to smear campaigns.

BRICKBAT — an especially big one — to the fiend who telephoned Katherine M. Trau of Corte Madera with the false report that her 18-year-old son was missing in action in Vietnam. The depravity of a person who could get his "kicks" from such cruel imposture is beneath contempt.

BOUQUETS to the Novato Jaycees for their bicycle safety clinics for youngsters to be given tomorrow.

BRICKBAT to the Novato Teachers Association for threatening "sanctions" (boycott) of Novato Unified School District in a dispute over how much pay raise they receive. Haven't we heard the teachers associations proclaiming loudly that they are "dedicated professionals"?

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Halloween Visitors

Ladies, Gentlemen

We read so often these days of the unfortunate incidents among our youth, that we felt a story from the other side of the coin might be of interest. We were visited by 113 boys and girls on Halloween. Each one was dressed in an attractive costume, with a "trick or treat" bag —some of the tiny ones accompanied by their mother or father.

The point we want to bring out is —everyone of these 113 children was a little lady or gentleman. Each one said a happy "thank you" or "gee, thanks" or "thank you SO much" and —many wished us a "happy holiday."

It was a joy to have 226 little feet come trotting up to our door. Their happy greetings and smiling faces gave much more pleasure to Mr. Johnson and me, than did the "treat" they received from us, I am sure.

We hope all citizens were as fortunate as we in San Anselmo!

Earlier Catholic Priest In Congress

This evening (Nov. 4) as I was reading the I-J. I noticed on page 10 an article on the election of the first Catholic priest to Congress. The article was titled "Boston College Jesuit Becomes First Catholic Priest Elected To Congress." I was under the impression that Father Gabiel Richards was the first. Even though he was only a territorial delegate from the area around Detroit, he was elected to Congress.

Tragedy Needed To Force Fish Inspection Law?

By MARGUERITE DAVIS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A dramatic, well-publicized tragedy is needed to prod Congress into approving a fish inspection bill, according to Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich.

Hart, who helped win enactment in recent years of laws that require federal inspection of meat and poultry plants, found adamant opposition in the industry to his proposal for a similar requirement for fish and fish products.

"Regrettably, history tells us that this sort of legislation usually is enacted only in response to some dramatic and well-publicized tragedy," he said.

Until then, he said, inspection likely will be limited to the occasional checks by the Interior Department of the nation's 2,200 fish processing plants—a voluntary program which a department spokesman estimated provides inspection of any single plant no more than once in three years.

A REPORT by Consumers Union, an independent testing organization, said a survey of 20 brands of fish sticks sold nationally were in poor condition: Indications of fecal contamination were found in more than half the products sampled, and seven of 20 brands contained less than 60 per cent fish, the minimum standard required for any kind of federal grade, the report said.

Fish bones found in three brands made these foods potentially dangerous, Consumers Union said, and the average shopper found it impossible to read the codes that indicate the date on which the perishable fish were frozen and packaged. The fish sticks deteriorate in quality within three months of storage, even at zero fahrenheit, the report said.

Lee Weddig, executive director of the National Fisheries Institute, said it is the taste of the sticks, not the measured amount of fish they contain, that interests shoppers. Manufacturers now are trying to determine the most popular recipe, he said.

MRS. VIRGINIA H. Knauer, special assistant to the President for consumer affairs, disagreed.

"When people buy fish sticks they want fish, not something else," she said. "Consumers are entitled to know what they are getting for their money.

"I think the percentage of fish in fish sticks should be right on the package so there can be no mistake about it. But I am even more concerned about the contamination in fish sticks reported by CU . . ."

The contamination, according to Deputy Commissioner Winton B. Rankin of the Food & Drug Administration in testimony last year on the Hart bill, was bad enough to require instant federal inspection.

"The fish were hung on wooden sticks which were encrusted with rotten fish scales and particles from previous batches," he said. "Debris from previous batches was trapped in the nicked top of the processing table since no attempt was made to clean the table between operations."

In another plant, Rankin said, an employe scrubbed the stainless steel table used for cleaning and preparing fish.

"After scrubbing it, he took a filthy rag from his pocket and carefully shined the table top. It was then ready to inoculate the next batch of fish with a heavy load of bacteria from the rag . . ."

WEDDIG SAID Hant's proposal for continuous inspection of fish and fish products was an obsolete solution. Fish, unlike meat and poultry, are not warm-blooded, and fish plants should be subjected to flexible, spot-check inspections, he said. Less than 3 per cent of fish and fish products sold in the United States are inspected by the Interior Department under its voluntary plan, CU said. The department said, however, that figure apparently did not include fish used to manufacture meal for animal foods. With that, the total would rise to 24 per cent, it said.

"All the best rat poisons have been banned to protect the environment."

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Nov. 7, 1960

County Clerk George S. Jones predicted a turnout of more than 80 per cent of the 71,905 registered in Marin to vote in the Nov. 8 election.

The first teacher strike in New York history crippled the school system of the nation's biggest city, although most of its 837 public schools attempted to conduct classes.

20 YEARS AGO

Nov. 7, 1950

John F. McCarthy, at 28 one of California's youngest candidates for state Senate, won election by a slim margin in a four-candidate race to succeed former Sen. Thomas F. Keating. Richard M. Nixon was elected to the U. S. Senate. Hubert B. Scudder was re-elected to Congress.

Sausalito and Marin City voters approved formation of a sewer district by a vote of 2,217 to 241.

Nixon-Agnew Strategy Plays Into Hands Of Southerners

WASHINGTON — A large question mark out of the election concerns President Nixon's high rating as political operator. Zeal, yes, ardor, passion, no one could fault him on that score. But whether the Nixon-Agnew strategy serves the long-term objectives of the administration and the Republican party for 1972 and beyond is the doubt.

The degree to which he wollows the score and calls the plays is part of the doubt. That is pointed up by an incident that occurred as the White House was shaping up the game plan for Florida which proved on Tuesday night to be a Republican disaster area.

The extent to which Harry S. Dent, Sen. Strom Thurmond's man in the White House, had helped to rig this strategy was apparently a closely held secret. The fierce attacks on school busing from Republicans high and low throughout the South carried the Thurmond brand. In South Carolina, the senator's home state, a segregationist Republican, Albert S. Watson, who ran a more or less openly racist campaign, was defeated by Democrat John C. West, a moderate Democrat.

THE ADMINISTRATION deliberately rejected the straightforward road to a two-party south that had been proved out by Linwood Holton's election as the first Republican governor of Virginia since Reconstruction. Having played the game of the Old South, the White House is now confronted with the familiar domination of key congressional committees by southerners who have ridden the escalator of seniority to power.

Fundamentally, it is a veto-power producing stagnation. That is shown most dramatically in the Senate Finance Committee. That committee, with Sen. Russell B. long of Louisiana as chairman, is carefully stacked with conservative Democrats and Republicans. The administration's family assistance plan — its showpiece in the social legislation field — was rejected by the committe by a vote of 14 to 1. It had been passed by the House.

Not only that but the committee voted 9 to 3 to tack the trade quotas bill onto the measure providing increases in Social Security payments. If this trick is sustained on the Senate floor when the Congress returns, the President will be confronted with a painful choice. To veto the Social Security bill because the protectionist trade measure is an appendage will anger millions trying to get by on Social Security payments.

THE 9-TO-3 VOTE in the committee is highly indicative. Besides Long, the Democrats who voted to tack on the trade bill were Anderson of New Mexico, Gore of Tennessee, Talmadge of Georgia and Byrd of Virginia. Republicans voting for the trade maneuver were Bennett of Utah, Curtis of Nebraska, Fannin of Arizona and Hansen of Wyoming. Opposing were Ribicoff of Connecticut and Harris of Oklahoma, Democrats, and Williams of Delaware, Republican.

The threat of a protectionist trade bill, which would touch off a disastrous trade war, has been met by evasion and double-talk.

The latest move is reopening of talks with Japan, with the administration applying pressure for voluntary quotas. That could be a way to squirm out of the trap laid by the protectionists in the finance committee.

Textile quotas were part of the promise made by candidate Nixon to Thurmond in return for Thurmond's help in swinging southern delegates to Nixon. It was a costly promose.

How Nixon Strategy Went Awry At Halftime Of Football Games

WASHINGTON — The question that everyone is trying to figure out is where the Nixon strategy went wrong. Heinrich Applebaum, elite professor of political science at Moribund University, believes he can pinpoint the exact moment when President Nixon lost his chance to gain control of the U. S. Senate and House of Representatives.

Applebaum told me, "My surveys indicated that up until the Sunday morning before Election Day, President Nixon had it made. The violence issue, thanks to San Jose, had taken hold and an indignant nation was waiting to go to the polls and vote out those candidates whom both Nixon and Agnew indicated were permissivists who condoned student unrest. I have never seen a better orchestrated campaign, and I was willing to cede the Senate and House to the Republicans."

"The pro football games. That's what happened."

"I don't understand."

"The Republicans bought time on both NBC and CBS for a special political appeal by President Nixon to be aired between halftimes of all the pro football games in the country. It was a blunder of colossal proportions."

"I DON'T understand."

"Who watches football on Sunday in the United States?"

"The Silent Majority," I said.

"Exactly. The very backbone of this country. Now the Silent Majority is willing to listen to anything the President of the United States has to say six days a week. But Sunday they set aside to watch football. They don't want to hear about the Vietnamese war, the economy, law and order or violence in the streets. All they want to do is drink their cans of beer and watch two football teams try to kill each other on the gridiron."

"That isn't asking much," I said.

"UP UNTIL halftime, the Silent Majority was willing to vote the straight Nixon-Agnew slate," Applebaum said.

"But, suddenly, President Nixon appeared on millions of screens all over the country. The Silent Majority couldn't believe it. They were expecting to see a halftime show with a marching band, drum majorettes, baton twirlers and all the things that make pro football worth watching.

"In fury, they changed to the other channel only to discover President Nixon had also bought time between the half of that game. And, instead of talking about football, Nixon was discussing politics.

"It takes a lot to get the Silent Majority angry," Applebaum said. "But this was too much. When you mess around with their football games on Sunday, you're hitting them where it hurts.

"All over the country people started throwing beer cans at their television set. Husbands began screaming at their wives. Kids began to cry. By the time the President finished making his appeal, he lost all the good will he had picked up in his three weeks of arduous campaigning. The Silent Majority decided anyone who was that insensitive to pro-football-watching on Sunday afternoon could just go whistle 'Dixie.'"

"BUT, WAIT a minute, professor. The Democrats also bought spots at halftime and actor E. G. Marshall and Democratic Chairman Lawrence O'Brien made a pitch for their party."

"No one knew who they were," Applebaum said. "The Silent Majority thought they were doing a meatball commercial for Alka Seltzer."

CHURCH CRASH PAD

Typical Weekly Rap Session

By GEORGE NEVIN
(Second of two articles)

It is a cold and blowy Wednesday night. It's pouring rain outside, but inside a conference room at the Mill Valley Methodist Church it's warm and dry.

About 15 persons sit in a circle talking about issues that divide young and old. The topic tonight — drugs.

This is the regular Wednesday rap session between members of the church congregation and the youths who spend the night at the crash pad there.

Tonight's rap is led by Harold Richter, who once ran the crash pad and still works on the staff of the Street Ministry of Southern Marin, which is in charge of the crash pad program.

Three church members, all women, join the discussion. They are Louise Waschow, a member of the church committee which oversees the pad, Barbara Schrier and Sonia Lamoreaux.

Richter asks for a show of hands from the "freaks," as they often call themselves, on how many have dropped acid (taken LSD). All but one raises his hand.

Then he asks the church women what they think of drugs. There is a silence, and then Mrs. Schrier speaks.

"I have a strong reaction to that question," she prefaces her remarks, "and it may shake some of you up, but we've been talking about getting things into the open, so that's what I'll do."

She takes a breath and continues. "I think drug users are being cowardly. Drugs are an escape. There must be better ways to accomplish the things that drugs accomplish."

Mrs. Schrier asks just what it is that drugs do accomplish. One youth says he thinks LSD helped him to "see through phoniness and games." But he is unable to tell her how.

He and several others say they used to use acid but have stopped because they had gotten everything out of it they could. "I've just outgrown it," was how one put it.

A girl asks Mrs. Schrier what her reaction will be when her son starts using drugs. "Not if he starts, but when he starts," she emphasizes.

"I separate the user from the use," Mrs. Schrier replies. "I would explain to him why I disapprove, give him the facts, and then hope he agrees with me.

"Obviously, I can't stop him from smoking grass. But I'll let him know that I'll continue to love him even though I disapprove of what he does."

"Hey, that's beautiful," smiles Charles Cox, Street Ministry staffer who runs the pad.

Back to the benefits derived from drugs. Mrs. Vaschow asks how it is possible to be sure a change in a user's life is brought on by drugs. "Couldn't it be just a natural result of maturation?" she asks.

There is no way to be sure, the youths assert. "It's impossible to tell," one says, "since I can't go back and unuse the acid."

In that case, Mrs. Schrier says, "Why not hold off on drugs and see if these desirable changes might happen anyway, drug or no drug? Just think the risk involved is not worth the benefit that might result."

The freaks hold firm, though. "I know that acid opened my mind to many different realities," one maintains. "I just don't need it anymore, but it did me a lot of good."

It is the consensus of the youths that drug use will be part of what they feel is an alternate culture springing up, but drugs will not dominate that culture. Many think the media has blown the drug issue out of proportion.

"Drugs never were the be-all and end-all. They're part of our life, but not the biggest part," one says.

He speaks against drug use from his experience as a physician. "Whenever a doctor prescribes a drug, he weighs the possible bad against the benefits. With hallucinogenic drugs the risk far outweighs the benefit."

"But don't you prescribe drugs, doctor?" he is asked.

"As seldom as possible," he answers.

"He's so cautious with drugs that it infuriates me sometimes," Mrs. Schrier adds with a laugh. "He'd much rather let the body's natural defenses fight disease."

It's getting late, and Richter, who has let the conversation flow, reminds everyone. "We'll be back next week. Think about what we've said and come back. Bring someone else with you."

The session breaks up, and the people drift off. Cox and James Sonju, his fellow crash pad staffer, express satisfaction with tonight's rap. "People seem to be opening up more," Cox says. "We didn't solve anything, but I think both groups are starting to trust each other."

They walk back to the small room that serves as the crash pad. Half a dozen youths already lie on the floor asleep. A light burns in one corner of the room near a table, where several others sit and smoke cigarettes and talk softly.

One youth holds his stomach and doubles over in pain. "He hadn't eaten for a long time and just ate everything he could get his hands on," someone explains. "He'll be OK."

A box of first aid supplies appears, and someone fills a cup with hot water from the tiny kitchen and adds several spoonsful of epsom salts. "Here, drink this," he says, thrusting the cup at the sick mouth.

He drinks it, although he makes faces at the foul-tasting potion. But it helps.

More and more of the youths drift off to bed. They roll their sleeping bags out on the carpeted floor and stretch out, oblivious to the others who stay up. Soon, the youth with the stomach ache turns in, the others follow and the lights go out.

In the morning, a girl goes around and wakes everyone up. "Rise and shine," she calls. "Remember, we have to be out of here by 8:30. That's the rule.

Sleeping bags are quickly folded and tucked into packs. Brooms are produced and the floor is swept. Doors are thrown open and the crisp air of after-rain fills the room. The sun is shining.

One by one, the youths shoulder packs and head off. Some will move on; others will return to the crash pad tonight. Cox and Sonju watch them go, and then head back to the Street Ministry staff pad at Saint Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Marin City.

As Rev. George D. Carter says, "It isn't easy to play house mother to 15 transients," but Cox and Sonju know that if no one did, the youths would have no where to go at night in Marin County.

2 Themes Emerge From Convocation

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

Jewish and Christian scholars from several nations met a few days ago at Seton Hall University, South Orange, N.J., to discuss how things stand between these two faiths which history has placed in a close but often strained relationship.

Since no votes were taken, it would be improper to say that any consensus emerged from the four-day convocation sponsored by the American Jewish Committee and Seton Hall's Institute of Judeo - Christian Studies.

But two themes did stand out in papers presented by 50 prominent theologians and historians.

The military-diplomatic crisis in the Middle East is a serious and continuing source of tension between Jews and Christians. Jews feel that Christians should give Israel strong and unqualified support in her hour of peril, and they resent what they perceive as neutralist or even pro-Arab sentiments on the part of some Christians.

The resentment is reciprocated by some Christians, who feel that Jews have no right to pressure Christians, in the name of interfaith amity, to take a particular position on an international political question.

Few if any participants in the Seton Hall dialogue saw much hope of early solution of this difficulty. But many were inclined to view it as a temporary setback to a long-term development that is exceedingly hopeful.

The long-term development was described by Rabbi Marc H. Tanenbaum, director of interreligious affairs for the American Jewish Committee. Reviewing progress of recent years, Rabbi Tanenbaum said:

"Meaningful first steps have been taken to create an emergent new Christian culture within which antisemitism can no longer find official church sanction, and in which Judaism is beginning to be appreciated as a permanent source of truth and value for the Jewish people."

The last part of that statement is loaded with significance. For centuries, Catholic and Protestant teaching has depicted Judaism as a fossil religion, of interest only because it was the context in which the Christian revelation took place. Jews have been treated as potential converts to Christianity rather than adherents of a living faith which may have much to teach, as well as something to learn, in dialogue with Christianity.

Within the past five years, partly as a result of the work of the Catholic Vatican Council and partly as a result of initiatives by the Protestant and Orthodox communions affiliated with the World Council of Churches, this patronizing Christian view of Judaism has been radically modified.

"The Jewish people are now being perceived in their own terms, rather than as candidates for conversion," Rabbi Tanenbaum said, "and that constitutes a significant breakthrough which makes it increasingly possible to have authentic communication between Judaism and Christianity as religious peers."

Essentially the same point was made by the Rev. Cornelius Rajk, director of the Vatican's Office of Cattolic-Jewish Relations. In the past, he said, Christian teaching virtually ignored Judaism after the coming of Christ. But the savage persecution endured by Jews in Nazi Germany and creation of the state of Israel have opened the eyes of many Christians to the fact that "Judaism today exists as a strong, living, religious reality."

This new awareness of Judaism has been accompanied by a growing willingness on the part of Christians to acknowledge that God's spirit may be at work, His truth glimpsed and His will manifested in more than one religion.

This is not a "new" Christian viewpoint. It was the standard teaching of the early Church, all the way back to the time of St. Paul. Until recently, however, it was in grave danger of getting lost beneath the accumulated misunderstandings and bigotries of many centuries.

New Pastor For Church In Larkspur

Selection of Johnson, to succeed Rev. Frank Hamilton who resigned in May, came Oct. 18 at the congregational meeting. The new pastor will assume regular duties Nov. 22. Formal installation will be on Dec. 13.

A graduate of the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, the 36-year-old pastor has been associated with the Davis Community Presbyterian Church for the past two and one-half years in the church's campus ministry. Prior to that he had been an associate pastor of the Calvary Presbyterian Church in San Francisco.

Terra Linda Retains Marin Grid Stranglehold

Fumbles Ruin San Rafael, 19-7

By DAVID EINSTEIN

The record book will duly note that the Terra Linda High School Trojans won their fifth consecutive Marin County Athletic League football championship last night. If history fails to record that the San Rafael High School Bulldogs used their mud-soaked field like a silver platter to give the game away, it's just as well.

Using two fumble recoveries and an intercepted pass to set up all their touchdowns, the Trojans romped joyfully to a 19 - 7 win, thus completing their second perfect 6 - 0 MCAL season in a row.

FIVE FUMBLES

The Bulldogs, who also came into the game undefeated in league action this year and are now 4-1 with one game remaining, played as though they were allergic to the ball. More likely, it was the condition of the field, drenched by three straight days of rain, that caused San Rafael runners to fumble five times.

Terra Linda, on the other hand, turned the ball over only once, and wound up making a prophet of Don Lucas, the winningest coach in MCAL history, who said before the game the outcome would be decided by who got the brakes.

INTERCEPTION

Terra Linda safety Rick Trono, the smallest man on the field, made the biggest break late in the third quarter, with the rain just starting to fall, when he intercepted a pass by San Rafael quarterback Dirk Gansloser on the dead run at midfield and galloped to the two-yard line before being bounced out of bounds. Two plays later, tailback Matt Bowman slid over for the winning touchdown.

In the third period prior to Trono's interception, the Bulldogs seemed to have regained the poise that had carried them to four convincing league victories — poise they obviously didn't have in the first half.

Speedburning halfback Scott Duncan, previouspy contained by the Trojans and unable to get outside on the slippery turf, ripped off 42 yards on the first play following the second half kickoff, and Gansloser completed the 69 - yard drive by bootlegging the last 11 yards to score. John Morehouse added the extra point that gave San Rafael a 7 - 6 lead.

INSURANCE

But the Bulldogs' prosperity was shortlived, and they hastened their own demise after Bowman's touchdown by fumbling at their own 27-yard line on the final play of the third quarter. It took Trojan quarterback Larry Kerr and compnay six plays to score, with reserve halfback Mike Sabel slanting off

Rancho Cotate In Rout

The Cougars of Rohnert Park sparkled in their season-ending game as they rolled to a 22-0 halftime lead. Wlodarczyk, who ranks in the top 10 among Northern California passers, threw two touchdown passes in the first half and set up two second half scores with long bombs.

Cooper scored twice in the second quarter, on a 15-yard strike from Wlodarczyk and an 85-yard interception return. His other touchdown came on a dive in the third quarter after Wlodarcyzk hit him on a 40-yard pass to the Dragon one yard line.

Wlodarczyk, who opened the scoring with a nine-yard toss to Rod Logue in the first period, completed his night's work in the fourth quarter by setting up the Cougars' second to final touchdown with a 46-yard shot to Don Ostrand.

Mike Wlodarczyk, Steve's brother, scored the Cougar's last two touchdowns, on a five yard run and a 23-yard interception runback.

Marin Tars Lose Game By Inches

By STEVEN DREYER

Although the final score was 14-12, the College of Marin football team lost to host Contra Costa College last night by exactly six inches.

Led by emergency quarterback Pete Carroll, the Tars marched 83 yards in 12 plays midway through the second period before being stopped on the six-inch line by an inspired Comet defensive line. Carroll kept the ball twice, both times trying over right guard, but to no avail.

INEFFECTIVE

Carroll replaced back-up signal caller Kevin Peak after one quarter, when Peak proved ineffective against a strong Comet pass defense. Regular quarterback Jim Peters is out for the remainder of the season with a severely sprained ankle.

Key penalties, a muddy field, and a weak defensive right side hurt the Tars all night. Comet offensive backs collected 292 yards in 65 carries. Marin managed only 70 yards rushing, but an impressive 199 in the air mainly due to Carroll's outstanding performance. The sophomore starting defensive back, playing his first game ever as a quarterback, completed 11 of 23 passes for 196 yards without an interception, while running with the ball seven times for an additional 21 yards.

TWO SCORES

Contra Costa led at halftime 8-0 on a one-yard run by halfback George Minnifield early in the opening period. Minnifield scored again, in the third quarter, before Marin could get in the ball game. Tar end Larry Blackwell ran the ensuing kick off to Marin's 24 yard line where Carroll ran for 16 yards, then handed off three times for 14 yards. Carroll then unloaded a second-and-twelve bomb to end Ron Price for 46 yards and the score.

BLACKWELL

With momentum in its favor, the Marin defense held Contra Costa scoreless throughout the final period. The Tars struck for the second time late in the fourth with another Carroll completion, this time to Blackwell for 30 yards. The two-point conversion pass was incomplete, and then Contra Costa ran out the clock for the win.

The loss gives Marin a dismal 0-4 Camino Norte Conference mark, with only one game left,

A Phone Call From Russell And Nate Is Back To Form

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Bill Russell is retired, but he still brings a winning touch to the National Basketball Association.

The great Boston center this week called Nate Thurmond, the 6-11 San Francisco pivotman. Thurmond had undergone off-season surgery, threatened to retire, and then arrived late to training camp after a lengthy salary hassle. He had been ineffective in early-season games.

Thurmond, who termed Russell's call "a hell of a fine gesture," responded to the urging of the all-time NBA great with one of his stronger performances Friday at Portland.

The 6-11 Thurmond hit 18 points and grabbed 25 rebounds to lead the Warriors to a 110-103 win over the Trail Blazers. San Francisco, now 5-6, hosts San Diego tonight.

Jeff Mullins and Jerry Lucas continued their fine play with 32 and 26 points, respectively, while rookie Geeoff Petrie led Portland with 23, Stan McKenzie added 17 and Jim Barnett 16.

Hextall Leads Way In Seals' Victory Over Maple Leafs

By DAVID DIETZ

Hextall, a redheaded centerman acquired by the California Golden Seals during the summer after being discarded by the Los Angeles Kings, helped set up three goals last night as the Seals routed the Toronto Maple Leafs, 8-4.

The goal outburst was the highest in the Seals' brief National Hockey League history and the win was their third straight — also a first. After losing their first five and seven of their first nine, the Seals are now one point from leaving the cellar in the NHL West Division.

The listless fashion with which California opened the season was no fault of Hextall's. Showing aggressive play from the opening of training camp, the 27-year-old Hextall now has five goals and six assists in 12 games to share the club lead.

In the dressing room last night, Hextall noted no difference in his play from last season, despite being sent to the minors by the Kings after playing only sporadically.

"I guess they didn't like me in Los Angeles," Hextall said,

Raiders Host Browns In Battle Of Leaders

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Oakland Raiders, who got a few breaks at the right times against Kansas City last week, hope the ball bounces their way again this Sunday as they play the Cleveland Browns for the first time ever in a game involving division leaders.

The Raiders came on to gain a 17-17 tie against the Chiefs on a 48-yard field goal by George Blanda in a game fans thought was lost. The tie, coming as the Denver Broncos were losing, boosted Oakland into first place in the AFC's West Division.

The Browns lost 27-10 to San Diego last Sunday but lead the AFC Central race by two games. The Oakland West lead is strictly a percentage one, mostly because of two ties. - Many of the Cleveland players admit they played "awful" last week in losing to San Diego and they hope to rebound at the expense of the Raiders.

"We know we are in for a tough afternoon," said Cleveland quarterback Bill Nelsen. "The Raiders do so many things well, offensively and defensively, that to beat them you just have to guess right all the time."

The Browns, six point underdogs, feel maybe the best way to move the ball on Oakland is to run it the way the Chiefs did last week—three yards at a clip.

"That is a possibility," said Nelsen.

"That is a solid club," Madden said. "We aren't going to fool them with any razzle-dazzle plays. They have exceptional linebacking and do a good job of disguising their defensive alignments until after the ball is snapped."

The game, naturally, is a sellout while Bay Area fans continue discussing last week's Kansas City tussle in which defensive end Ben Davidson was accused of spearing Chiefs quarterback Len Dawson and thereby precipitating a fight with Otis Taylor.

Both the Browns and Raiders have ailing running backs. Leroy Kelly, with a tender ankle, is listed as a probable starter for the Browns while Hewritt Dixon (bruised ribs) has been switched from doubtful to probable.

Wide receiver Warren Wells and running back Charlie Smith also came out of the Kansas City "war" with aches but chances are both will play against Cleveland. If they can't go, Rod Sherman will move in for Wells and Larry Todd for Smith.

Petaluma Ends Win Famine

Petaluma High School's football team avoided finishing the 1970 season in the North Bay I League cellar last night by defeating the only team in the league worse than themselves. The Trojans shut out the lowly Ukiah Wildcats, 20 - 0 on mud-soaked Durst Field in Petaluma.

The victory for the Trojans was only their second of the year — their first in league play, while the Wildcats did not win a game. Petaluma led for most of the contest, 6 - 0, but added two fourth quarter touchdowns to add a convincing touch to the victory.

The first touchdown came in the first quarter after Al Bettman intercepted a Ukiah pass and rambled 40 40 yards to the two-yard line. Trojan running back Mike Swallow scored two plays later from one yard out.

Quarterback Dan Hart and halfback Mike Ringstad added the fourth quarter touchdowns on runs of four and two yards.

Trojan coach Howard Caden head said he was happy to see his team win, and to see high morale despite the team's 2-5-1 record.

HEALTHY S.F. TEAM

49ers To Go Bear Hunting

CHICAGO (UPI)— For the first time this year the San Francisco 49ers will go into a regular season game with the entire 40-man squad in near perfect health.

Sunday, the 49ers, who lead the NFC's West Division race by a half game with a 5-1-1 record, tangle with the Chicago Bears, who are struggling along with a 3-4 record and no Gayle Sayers.

Sayers, in past years, has run wild against San Francisco, so the 49ers go into this game a little relieved they don't have to face the star Chicago running back.

"Their linebackers are quick and smart," Nolan said of the Chicago defenders. "We all know what a great player Dick Butkus is but we consider Leroy Caffey only a step behind."

Nolan also thinks the Chicago front four of Bill Staley, Willie Holman, George Seals and Ed Obradovich is the equal of any in the game.

"They're good ,"Nolan said. "They hang in tough and they could give us trouble."

The key to success Sunday as Nolan sees it is for his team to establish a running game.

"We have to do that and early so that our passing can be more effective," said the San Francisco coach.

Gene Washington, the fleet Forty Niner wide receiver who sat out last week's 26-10 victory over Green Bay, is ready to go again at full tilt. No one was more pleased to hear that news than quarterback John Brodie, who likes to throw to Washington every chance he gets.

Washington, of course, figures to give the Chicago defense problems. He is a tough man to defense one-on-one and yet if they put double coverage on him tight end Bob Windsor and running backs Ken Willard and Doug Cunningham become free targets for Brodie.

Brodie goes into Sunday's game with a career total of 1,979 completions. Only three other quarterbacks in pro history have completed more passes—Johnny Unitas, Y. A. Tittle and Sonny Jurgensen.

Sunday's game is the 37th between the 49ers and Bears and the Bears lead the series 19-16-1. San Francisco, though, is favored by 6½ points.

DALLAS HAS IT TOUGH, TOO

Close Race In Pro Football

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

There are almost more theories on why the Dallas Cowboys don't win in the playoffs than there are people in Dallas.

Almost everyone in town has his own theory why the Cowboys have been beaten for four consecutive years in key post-season games, in cluding 38-14 and 31-20 losses to Cleveland the past two years.

One of the many theories — which may or may not have any more validity than any of the others —is that the club has had it too easy in the regular season in recent years.

"If you've never been in a fight, you're not ready for one when it comes along," is the way one team spokesman put it.

Not since 1966, when the Cowboys were 10-3-1 and Cleveland was 9-5, has any team come even remotely close to the Cowboys in their division during the regular season. In 1967, Dallas was 9-5 and Philadelphia was second at 6-7-1; in 1968, Dallas was 12-2 and New York was 7-7; last year Dallas was 11-2-1 and Washington was 7-5-2.

But this year, things have changed. The Cowboys are in a fight —and they know it. The club is currently engaged in a four-way battle for the NFC Eastern Crown. The Cowboys are tied at 5-2 with St. Louis while both the New York Giants and Washington Redskins are 4 3.

The Cowboys are also about to enter the phase of the schedule that wi ll make or break their bid for a fifth straight division crown this year. The Cowboys will invade New York Sunday —and then will play three tough games in a 10-day open.

Coach Tom Landry's club will host St. Louis in the Monday night TV game on Nov. 16, travel to Washington on Sunday, Nov. 22 and host old nemesis Green Bay on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 26.

Dallas is a three-point favorite to turn back a New York team it beat by a 28-10 margin in the second game of the season. But the Cowboys trailed 10-0 at halftime in that game and the Giants now have reeled off four straight victories and are shooting for an upset.

In the other games, Minnesota is at Washington, Cleveland is at Oakland, San Francisco is at Chicago, Denver is at San Diego, Atlanta is at Los Angeles, Detroit at New Orleans, Boston is at St. Louis, Houston is at Kansas City, Miami is at Philadelphia, the New York Jets are at Pittsburgh and Cincinnati is at Buffalo. In the Monday night TV game, Baltimore meets Green Bay at Milwaukee.

If St. Louis beats Boston (and the Cards are heavy favorites to do that), Dallas must beat the Giants to remain tied for first place in the NFC Eastern Division.

Except in the AFC Eastern Division where Baltimore has a two-game lead over Miami, the leaders in the other divisions could be caught this weekend.

The Western Division races in each conference are the closest. Oakland, which has a 3-2-2 record, must beat Cleveland because Kansas City (3-3-1) is a heavy favorite over Houston. Denver (4-3) is an underdog against San Diego (2-3-2).

Should Cleveland upset Oakland and Kansas City and San Diego win, the race in the AFC West would look this way: Kansas City 4-3-1; Oakland 3-3-2; San Diego 3-3-2 and Denver 4-4. You can't get things much closer than that.

Meanwhile, San Francisco must beat Chicago to stay ahead of Los Angeles, which is expected to beat Atlanta, in the NFC West.

If Cleveland loses to Atlanta, it can be tied in the AFC Central by Pittsburgh, which is meeting a crippled New York Jet team.

Minnesota has to beat Washington to stay ahead of Detroit, which is figured to beat New Orleans, in the NFC Central.

Detroit's Basketball Problem

DETROIT (UPI)—University of Detroit officials have yet to take the drastic action of recruiting an entire new basketball team following the suspension of 25 varsity and freshmen players after they called for the ouster of Coach Jim Harding.

Most of the action since the players listed their demands Thursday has been behind the scenes in an attempt to salvage the Titans' varsity basketball program.

NO PRACTICE

The Titans are scheduled to open the 1970-71 season Dec. 1, but there have been no complete practice sessions since last Monday when 13 players boycotted practice. The boycott spread until Thursday when the entire squad demanded Harding's resignation and he retaliated by suspending them.

Detroit officials Friday said they had received hints that several players are interested in rejoining the team, but they consider themselves too deeply involved to simply abandon the players' coalition.

NOT OFFICIAL

While there was no official activity, interested alumni and university administrators were busy trying to arrange a peaceful solution to the impasse.

Should reconciliation talks fail, school officials have indicated they would begin recruiting a new team from the school's student body.

Jock Liberation Front's Jog-In

BERKELEY (UPI)—A disruption intended to disrupt the Big Game between Stanford and California Nov. 19 is being planned by the Jock Liberation Front (JLF).

It will take the form of a Jog-In, according to Randy Smyth, a former University of California quartermiler and football bench-warmer.

He said Friday the JLF would number several thousand and jog up to the stadium.

A similar adventure at Kansas University drew a few dozen joggers to the stadium, who quickly withdrew when police arrived.

"But we believe we succeeded in educating the people to the jock problems there," Smyth said.

He said the JLF has two goals: Liberate jocks (athletes) and bring athletics to the people.

"We want people to know where sports is at," said Smyth. "Sports in America is a microcosmic form of the evils in our society as a whole. Football is an exhibition of sexism, of elitism by separating the athletes from other students, of racism, of militarism—as shown by the techniques of the game and the military music of the band, and of authoritarianism among coaches and administration.

"It is no accident that sports, the way they are, breed people like Richard Nixon."

He said future targets would include Syracuse, the University of Washington and Detroit University.

California broke a 2-2 first period deadlock with three goals in the opening six minutes of the second. Featherstone's second tally at 5:31 of the final period made it 6-2, but the Maple Leafs got two back when the Seals got careless with the big lead.

The Seals took advantage of sloppy Toronto passing throughout, and coach Fred Glover attributed the deciding three-goal barrage in the second period to aggressive play.

"We went out and started bumping them," he said. "We weren't doing that in the first period.

Benvenuti Is Shooting For Knockout

"I don't like making predictions and I don't believe in them," Benvenuti said. "But I can say it's my intention to finish this bout within the limit."

After meeting Monzon for the first time Friday, Benvenuti commented: "He's got good muscles, but otherwise he doesn't impress me."

Asked if he were worried about the outcome of the fight, Benvenuti said, "When you are old like me (he is 32), you have to worry about everything. But it's going to be Monzon who will do the worrying."

The 28-year-old Argentine shunned the ritual pre-fight boasting and spoke of Benvenuti only as "a great champion." However, he said he was speaking from hearsay since he never had seen Benvenuti in action.

Monzon has never before fought outside Latin American, but all the same he comes with an impressive professional record of 68 wins, 45 of them on knockouts, three losses and nine draws.

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Bob Barbarossa, Pompano Beach, Fla., fired a 6-under-par 66 Friday to move into a third round tie entering Saturday's final round of the Professional Golfers Association school tournament.

Barbarossa, trying for the second time to earn one of the school's 18 berths for the PGA tour, tied at 207 with the first and second round leader, Bob Bourne, Oberlin, Ohio.

Alone at third with a 210 total was Richard Karl, Endicott, N.Y. Bob Lewis, Warren, Ohio, Vic Loustalot, Sacramento, Calif., and Dwight Nevil, Irving, Tex., deadlocked for fourth at 212.

GARDENA, Calif. (UPI) — A 7-under-par round of 64 shot Cesar Senudo from seventh place to the lead Friday at the midway point of the 72-hold Gardena Valley Open golf tournament.

The 27-year-old Senudo, in at 132 after two rounds, ripped the par 71 Western Avenue course for seven birdies.

NBA ROUNDUP

Lakers' Jerry West Thrives On Pressure

By United Press International

Jerry West has this thing about pressure.

"I thrive on pressure," says West. "I welcome it. I'm at my best in a tough situation."

West took advantage of a pressure situation Friday night, sinking a 20-foot jump shot with 41 seconds remaining to give the Los Angeles Lakers a 106-104 victory over the New York Knickerbockers.

New York had drawn to within two points at 104-102 with 55 seconds left before West scored his crucial basket for the deciding points. West had 32 points and backcourt mate Gail Goodrich had 33 to pace the Lakers' attack. Willis Reed led the Knicks with 24.

In other National Basketball Association action Friday night, Philadelphia downed Atlanta, 118-112, Phoenix edged Chicago, 105-102, Boston ripped Seattle, 116-94, Baltimore beat San Diego, 125-118 and San Francisco defeated Portland, 110-103.

Billy Cunningham, Hal Greer and Jim Washington combined for 87 points to lead the 76ers over the Hawks. Cunningham had 38 points, Greer 25 and Washington 24 to highlight the Philadelphia attack. Bill Bridges and Pete Maravich led Atlanta with 20 points each.

Dick Van Arsdale scored 14 of his 23 points in the second half to lift the Suns over the Bulls. Chet Walker led Chicago with 29.

John Havlicek's 30-point performance paced the Celtics over the SuperSonics, Boston's fourth victory in a row. Dick Snyder's 28 points were high for Seattle.

Earl Monroe had 27 points and Gus Johnson scored 25 while taking down 20 rebounds as the Bullets beat the Rockets. Baltimore ripped off eight straight points at the start of the fourth quarter to break open a close game. Elvin Hayes' 35 points led the San Diego attack.

tackle the last 10 yards for the insurance touchdown.

Terra Linda's first touchdown, which happened to be the first against the Bulldogs in league play this season, also was the product of a fumble, one of four San Rafael committed in the first half. Midway through the second quarter, Kerr, the league's best linebacker, pounced on a loose ball at the Bulldog 12-yard line, and then the same Kerr got up to direct his team into the end zone in three plays. He hit Bill LaHaye on an eight-yard swing pass, and gave twice to fullback John Scozzafava, the second time for three yards and the touchdown.

Both teams showed surprisingly effective rushing games, considering the mud, but it was the churning power of Scozzafava and Bowman deep in San Rafael territory that allowed the Trojans to cash in on the breaks.

San Rafael	0	0	7	0-	7
Terra Linda	0	6	6	7-	19

TL - Scozzafava, 3 run (Kick failed).
SR - Gansloser, 11 run (Morehouse kick).
TL - Biwman, 2 run (Run failed).
TL - Sabel, 10 run (Corbett kick).

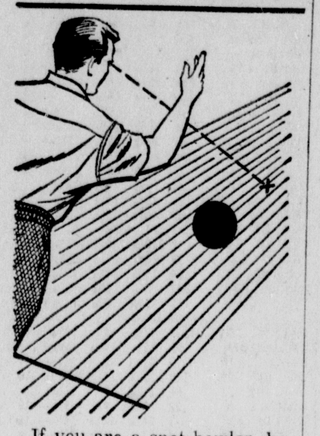
By DON CARTER



If you are a spot bowler, be one. It does you little good to carefully calculate which board or arrow you should be throwing the ball over, then take your eyes off the spot before the ball gets there. How will you know whether the ball hit the target or not? The secret is concentration. Know exactly where your ball rolled.

Ski Resorts Are Opening

SQUAW VALLEY (UPI)— Squaw Valley and Mt. Rose open for the 1970-71 ski season today, joining Mammoth Mountain, which started going Thursday.

With snow due to continue falling in the High Sierra, there is also a chance that the Sierra Ski Ranch will start at least a portion of its lifts this weekend.

After hovering near 7,000 feet most of the week, the snow level has dropped to around 5,000 feet and is getting lower.

Several other areas, including Bear Valley, Boreal Ridge and Heavenly Valley, are tentatively planning to open Nov. 14. Sugar Bowl is aiming at Nov. 21.

TERRA LINDA YOUTH

Folk Singer Begins Career At The Dock

MARIN'S GLENN CAMPBELL — John L. Pulsipher, 18, of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Wollborg of Terra Linda, says he's been singing songs since he was three. He's just launched his professional career.

A young Terra Linda singer, a look-alike of country-western singer Glenn Cambell but with a sound all his own, has finally begun his career after years of motherly encouragement.

Eighteen-year-old John L. Pulsipher, who last night started his second week as a professional singer at The Dock in Tiburon, said yesterday his destiny as a singer began at age 3.

"My mother used to sit me in a highchair and make me sing 'Way Down Upon a Swanee River,'" laughed young Pulsipher, his guitar clutched under one arm.

A garduate of Terra Linda High School, he now studies music at the College of Marin when not singing at the Tiburon restaurant on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

Pulsipher began seriously to consider a future in singing four years ago while under the tutorage of Byron Jones, San Rafael High School music teacher.

Later came engagements at private parties and the United Service Organization shows in San Francisco where he teamed with the wife of his manager, Allan Hurwitz.

Now he's awaiting that "first break" into show business, said Pulsipher, hoping soon to be propelled into records, nightclub contracts and possibly television.

"We're hoping some record company people from Los Angeles will come to listen to me," he said. "You have to be working somewhere before they will show any interest."

Pulsipher, who sings about 40 songs a night, is also a composer. His program of four sets — 10 songs each — includes about 10 numbers he has composed in the last year.

His compositions are usually spontaneous affairs, the young singer said, sometimes taking only five minutes to write. Other times, however, a week's labor is involved.

They range from "Go Gentle Love" to "Jamaica Bay," and typify the types of songs he likes best — folk and popular.

But his future is in singing ("Because I do it best") not composing. He said then it doesn't matter if he becomes a name singer.

"You don't sing for getting some place," he said, "but rather for the beauty of the song."

Pulsipher, who lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Wollborg of 479 Hibiscus Way, last year played the leading role in Terra Linda High School's production of "Carnival."

He will be appearing weekends through the middle of December at The Dock, but after that the future is uncertain. One thing's for sure, however, it will be a future of singing, he says. "Ever since I was a child I have never really thought of doing anything else."

Captain Of Gun-Laden Subchaser Disappears

The captain of a gun-laden subchaser raided in the Tiburon Harbor on July 15 has disappeared although his attorney said yesterday he thinks the boat is still in the Bay Area.

After attorney Marvin Cahn of Berkeley reported in Marin Municipal Court yesterday that he cannot locate Jerald Noel McDonald, 30-year-old Salt Lake City Navy veteran, nor his boat, a bench warrant was issued for McDonald.

Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. set bail on the bench warrant at $5,000 and ordered McDonald's earlier bail forfeited.

Earlier the court had issued a bench warrant for the first mate of ship Makaira, George William Lawson, 28, also a Navy veteran.

McDonald is charged with possessing stolen property, possessing a tear gas gun, a sniperscope and having a concealed weapon in a car.

A preliminary hearing for the remaining crew members, Robert Allen Drake, 19, and James Lee Harris, 25, is set for next Tuesday. They are accused of furnishing marijuana and possessing stolen property.

Drug agens who raided the converted subchaser theorized that the boat had been used to smuggle both arms and narcotics between Mexico and the United States. The agents found no narcotics on the day of the arrest but confiscated about 60 handguns and rifles, many of them loaded.

Review Board Names Chairman

The newly formed Greenbrae Architectural Board of Review has named John A. Russell chairman and Richard R. Dresel secretary, the Greenbrae Property Owners Association announced yesterday.

Application for architectural review may be made by writing P.P. Box 454, Kentfield.

Gasoline Price War Continues

The price war reportedly was sparked by the start of a self-service Mobil station in San Rafael and price cuts in San Francisco.

Arthur W. Mortensen, an officila of the Texaco distribution center in Petaluma, described the price cuts as "part of the general price depression" in the area, noting that gasoline prices have been cut in San Francisco, Santa Rosa and Napa.

"I'm at 32 cents a gallon on regular. It's a gas war," reported the proprietor of George's Texaco station, Fourth and Irwin Streets.

San Rafael Union Service, Second Street and Lincoln Avenue, reported its prices were dropped 3 cents a gallon on regular and 2 cents on premium.

Gilmore's Shell Service at Third and Irwin Streets dropped its prices, citing the start of a self-service Mobil station across the street as a key factor.

The Marin Independent Service Stations Association had strongly protested conversion of the Mobil station at 575 Second Street to self-service.

A random check of service stations in Novato, Fairfax and Mill Valley revealed that stations in those cities were holding the price line.

Don's Phillips, 396 Irwin Street, is holding the line, but the proprietor said he was opposed to the self-service operation.

Violence Trial Jury Goes Home While Attorneys Argue

I-J Special Report

FAIRFIELD — The jury in the trial of seven men arrested outside the Independent-Journal Valentine's Day was sent home yesterday when attorneys continued arguments over the admissability of evidence.

Judge William E. Jensen dismissed the panel until Monday when it became clear no further testimony would be heard.

Marin Deputy Dist. Atty. Joshua W. Thomas wants to introduce photographs taken of debris-throwing pickets during a pro-labor demonstration outside the newspaper plant, but the defense contends the pictures were snapped after the arrest of the seven defendants.

Judge Jensen has ruled inadmissable testimony and evidence of post-arrest violence.

Whether the judge will allow Thomas to introduce any of his pictures will not be known until Monday.

The trial, switched here when the defense said it couldn't get a fair trial in Marin, will begin its fourth week Monday.

Elderly Housing Plan On Agenda

Plans for a nonprofit housing development for the elderly will be considered Monday at 8 p.m. by the Mill Valley Planning Commission. The meeting will be at city hall.

The Mill Valley Community Church wants to build the project, which ultimately would house 400 retirees, on 9.78 acres at Camino Alto and Miller Avenue.

Also before the commission will be a tentative subdivision map for a 45-unit townhouse project on 2.5 acres near La Goma Street and Miller Avenue.

P-TA Reserves Space For Play

The Sir Francis Drake High School Parent-Teacher Association has reserved the Nov. 20 performance of the Ross Valley Players to raise funds for scholarships and equipment for the school in San Anselmo.

The association will get a share of each ticket it sells to "Absence of a Cello" which will be at 8:30 p.m. at the Barn, Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

Tickets can be purchased from Mrs. P.G. Bozzio and Mrs. Gene Cashman, both of San Anselmo.

Civic Center Security To Be Studied

The Civic Center Security program, including frisking people who enter, will be discussed by the Marin County Human Rights Commission next Thursday at San Rafael High School.

The commission will meet at 8 p.m. in Room CA-1 (Cafeteria building) at the high school.

Commissioners will discuss the constitutionality of the stop-and-search program at the entrances to the Hall of Justice and Civic Center Administration Building and whether or not the inconvenience to the public is justified.

Commissioners will also seek more information on the "secret witness" program started this week by the Independent-Journal to make sure it protects persons who might be wrongfully accused of crimes.

The "secret witness" program permits anonymous tips by citizens who have information on major crimes but do not want their identities known.

Marin Planners To Meet In Mill Valley

The Mill Valley City Council will meet with its planning commission and the Marin County Planning Department Tuesday at 8 p.m. at city hall to discuss housing requirements in the city.

The county planners are meeting with each city in Marin to explain new state and federal requirements that cities must adopt a housing element as part of their general plans.

Innocent Plea To Felony Charge

Carl Ove Smith, 21, of Novato, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to a felony charge of battery on a police officer. A preliminary hearing was set for Tuesday.

Smith was arrested Oct. 29 when he allegedly hit a policeman investigating an auto accident in which he had been involved.

Butcher Talks Set To Continue

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — Negotiations on a three-year contract between 10,000 Northern California butchers and their employers were to resume today, according to federal mediator Roger Randall.

The butchers are working in Marin County markets and elsewhere in Northern California only on a day-to-day basis, so long as negotiations continue.

Randall said yesterday that this weekend's talks could be "the critical stage" in agreeing to a new contract or starting wide-scale walkouts.

Details of the assessment district proceedings will be discussed as well as the possible awarding of a construction contract. In the bid opening Thursday, the apparent low bidder was Arthur B. Siri Inc. of Santa Rosa at $318,100.

Second lowest of the six bidders was Argonaut Constructors of Santa Rosa at $327,826.

Sentencing Date Set in Pot Case

Donald William Rodriguez, 19, of Corte Madera, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a felony charge of possessing marijuana. He is to appear in Superior Court Nov. 16 for setting of a sentencing date.

Rodriguez, who had earlier been accused of cultivating pot, was arrested Sept. 13 by Sheriff's deputies who said they saw him and another youth watering four plants off Tiburon Paradise Drive. The other youth's case was transferred to juvenile court, where proceedings are not public.

Transfer Case

The case of Michael Gordon Mosier, 18, of Corte Madera, yesterday was transferred to juvenile court from Marin Municipal Court.

Mosier is charged with an auto burglary Oct. 10.

Technicality Halts Plan

A technicality has temporarily held up plans by the Sleepy Hollow Homeowners Association to form a community services district, according to Assist. County Administrator John F. Barrows.

Barrows said the petitions the association submitted to him Wednesday lacked the required dates beside each petitioner's signature.

For the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission to act on the petition, it must bear the signatures of 5 per cent of the assessed valuation of the proposed district, Barrows said. He said he would not determine the validity of the signatures until the date formality is completed.

The Sleepy Hollow homeowners indicated they intend to have the proposed district take over functions of their fire district, and also to acquire the Sleepy Hollow Stables property for recreation use, Barrows said.

The dollar is derived from the thaler, first minted in Bohemia in the 15th century.

Poetry Reading Among Events On College Calendar

A Salute to Marin's Flying Ace

Marin Native Air Ace In World War I

Downed Eight Aircraft In Flying Dog Fights

The late Clinton Jones Jr. was the kind of guy that Snoopy wants to be . . . a World War I flying ace, maneuvering his Spad over the French landscape, shooting down the enemy.

Jones, born and reared in Ross, became one of this nation's first air aces by downing eight enemy planes in dogfights, and was twice awarded the Distinguished Service Cross.

He was a member of the 22nd Pursuit Squadron, which in 61 flying days accounted for 46 victories over German planes, a feat, Capt. A. R. Brooks, squadron commander described as a "remarkable record for the small length of time to do it in."

WHAT WAS it like in the skies over France in those days? The official records dwindle down to a set of dry statistics, and memories of old fliers tend to fade, or in the other extreme to embellish the exploits beyond the facts.

Undoubtedly the most authentic account came from the fliers themselves, shortly after the events, and Lieutenant Jones left behind such a record.

After the armistice, he sent to Capt. Brooks, an account of several of his battles, which has been made available to the Marin Magazine.

One of Jones' noted feats was downing three enemy planes in a dog fight in the Mont Fauson region between Very and Ivoiry as the enemy planes were attacking an Allied observation balloon.

OF THIS episode, he wrote: "Our patrol of seven met nine Huns. Gentle reader it grieves me to state that two of the enterprising fellows made good their escape. I had four combats in said flight and as far as known camped two. No pilots lost."

(In the reconnaissance report, he was credited with three confirmations.)

"During said fight it was my good fortune to find myself on one Hun's tail. He dived, followed by yours truly, at a distance of 50 meters, 30 shots. He continued his nose dive right into the ground.

"COMING up a bird jumped me from above and in front. He peaked firing. There being little choice in the matter for me I pulled up and fired with apparent success. He went down in a normal glide. I followed to put the finishing touches on him.

"Some one jumped me from behind. . . . Mr. Swaab (Lt. Jacques M. Swaab) kindly shot this baby off my tail. Still later another of these persistent pilots endeavored to do his bit. LaForce (Lt. W. W. LaForce) attended to this last in most up to date manner."

"The first Fokker I attacked had grey wings. He crashed, going down in vertical nose dive, pulling out and crashing on edge of a wood. I saw my bullets about 30 going into his plane about the pilot seat."

OF THE second downing, he reported: "When coming up a Fokker peaked on me from in front. His shots went over me. I pulled up and fired about 25 rounds directly into his machine, turned and got on his tail. He was far below and while shooting I could see pieces of his ship floating down as he went down out of control."

On the third success, he said; "Saw a Fokker diving after a Spad. I fired no more than 20 shots and he left with three Spads on his tail. My shots entered near the pilot's seat and he also appeared to be out of control."

Not all of Jones' missions were as spectacular and he told in his memorandum to his commanding officer, of a flight near Verdun on Oct. 18, 1918. At that time, he tried to signal down an enemy plane outnumbered by seven Spads.

"SEEING the odds against this plane I endeavored to play the good samaritan, went up to signal to this baby," he wrote. "My efforts in this direction evidently were not appreciated for he turned his gun on me and tried to demonstrate his ability as a marksman.

"This so enraged me that I was forced to set his plane on fire but not before shooting the pilot in the eye and some big holes in the gas tank. In the meantime a fire having started in my ship I was forced to land, which landing took place in some wire entanglements. No. 18 washed out."

Lieutenant Jones' hairiest adventure came just before the armistice, when he became separated from his patrol near St. Georges and his plane was riddled, but he escaped uninjured.

In an excerpt from his diary, he described the events as follows:

"Lost my patrol over Aincreville, joined a formation of eight Spads. We encountered four Fokkers one of which detached himself from his formation and dived under us.

"FEELING particularly ambitious that day I went down after him. I got on his tail and fired about 100 shots. My position was excellent and shots seemed to be going right into the pilot's seat.

"He pulled up in front of me affording me the best shot I ever had in the air. While he was in this position, I got in another hundred shots and finished him.

"While still doing the right thing by this Hun, one of his compatriots jumped me from behind in a most disconcerting manner. From his method of attack this bird was at least Baron Richthoffen's first cousin for he rode me from 4,000 meters right to the ground.

"The old maneuver failed, that of nose down, for after a 1,500 meter nose dive I pulled out only to be greeted by a burst of incendiary bullets very near my head, in fact had I not pulled that organ in, the usual 'Well, it was too bad, he was a nice fellow,' might have followed.

"WHEN HE had put six bullets in my nourrice tank and three through my windshield, I dived 1,000 meters more and pulled out. He still continued his unwelcome attentions. Inside slipping the remaining distance, he was on my tail and still firing. Result — 27 bullets in my plane; washout. . . . Also my last appearance."

On that flight, Jones was flying Spad No. 20, which is stored at the Smithsonian Institution, a plane also flown by Capt. Brooks.

In writing a history of the plane, Capt. Brooks reported seven victories were accounted for in Spad No. 20. On its landing after Lieutenant Jones' Oct. 30 flight it had 27 bullet holes, six in the nourrice tank, three in the windshield and the remainder in the wings and fuselage.

He noted that on Oct. 27, Lieutenant Jones, flying Spad No.

Fokkers Knocked Out

ALTHOUGH his record was excellent, Jones didn't get off to a fast start in combat, according to the following account in a book of "Experience of Capt. A. R. Brooks."

The captain wrote: "Speaking of the manner in which a novice is absolutely 'lost' during his early patrols, I might tell you that on September second, while showing Tyndell and Jones, then two new pilots, the region from Luneville to Metz, I attacked and shot down in flames a Boche biplane machine, with Jonesie half unstrapped in his seat, unable to join the fray, while 'Tyn' searched in vain for the target I was apparently shooting at, and failed to see any signs of the camouflaged Hun below."

But two days later on Sept. 4, 1918, Capt. Brooks noted that any "lack" in the early mission was compensated "when the same three of us attacked and shot down out of control a Boche who had spectacularly shot down one of our balloons."

CAPT. BROOKS also recalled another flight in which Jones participated, this one on Oct. 9 on a patrol to Brieulles-sur-Meuse . . . "with Beane, Clapp, Jones, Crissey, Vernam, Gibson, Le Force and Lovell, we saw Huns all around.

"Arriving at the lines we chased a Fokker from above one of our balloons; he was joined by six others, then six more. We ran into two more biplanes and a group of five Fokkers. Then a group of 14 Fokkers intermingled with this other patrol. Observation planes, Brequet bombing planes or other Spads, and what-not. We managed to get into a decent amount of questionable positions in the sky, and we were fortunate in shooting down a few, without losing any of our men."

In general, the captain reported, "Such things as alerts, protective missions, bomb dropping (we carried two small 20-pound bombs on our small planes) road strafing, patrols were all in one or another day's work.

Capt. Brooks has described Jones as "one of the finest fighter pilots as well as one of the finest gentlemen I ever knew," and his record outstanding.

IN RECOUNTING his experiences, the captain praised the squadron, pointed out that "Clint Jones accomplished several brilliant exploits that won him eight official credits."

After the war Jones returned to the Bay Area, but then settled in Sacramento, where he was owner and manager of a grain business for 40 years before he died in 1965 after a brief illness.

New Service For The Sick

Three Hospital Orderlies Launch Home Aid Program

By GIL PEARSON

Something both unique and necessary for house-bound invalids is the brand new Sick Room Service of Marin — the brain-child of three enterprising hospital-trained orderlies.

Reginald Butler, the prime mover who conceived this SRS, says, "We provide emergency medical aid by experienced orderlies and nurses' aides on a 24-hour, seven days a week basis, for patients in their own homes.

"Our activities are greatly varied according to demand and include catheter change, bowl care, bath assistance, feeding, bedding change, dressing changes when authorized, and assistance to doctors and nurses as are required.

"We do not administer drugs or injections, nor do we provide ambulance-type service or do housework."

SRS STAFF members are fully qualified as hospital orderlies and nurses' aids. They are dispatched on telephone call from the house-bound to any location in the county from Point Reyes to Fort Cronkite.

The staff is available for emergency calls of comparatively short duration. The service cannot, accordingly, furnish full-time assistance. The fee is a nominal fixed rate ranging from $3.50 to $8.50 a hour plus mileage and materials.

Orderlies and nurses aids who want to join the SRS for additional part time work are invited to phone and register.

Hospitals and medical facilities in Marin and San Francisco counties which have a continuing demand for emergency home sick room orderlies and nurses aids can be serviced by SRS via telephone request.

PRINCIPAL MEMBERS of the Sick Room Service of Marin are Thomas McNaught with two years hospital orderly experience in Texas plus four years in charge of Marin General Hospital Central Service night orderlies.

Alfred Misa, who has three years as an orderly in a Long Island, N.Y., hospital and a year with Marin General. And, Butler with five years as an orderly with St. Joseph Hospital, Chicago, and Marin General.

Phylis Berdanier and Mary McNaught lend organizational and administrative effort to establishing the SRS as a vigorous business.

IN DEVELOPING this statement for the benefit of countless patients in dire need of such services, the writer asked for an appraisal of this new project by a medical authority. Five doctors responded as follows,

"To Whom It May Concern: Reginald Butler, Thomas McNaught, and Alfred Misa — all of Marin General Hospital, have come up with something both unique and necessary. They call it SRS, Sick Room Service. Its 24-hour emergency nature makes it of service to the sudden requirements of home-bound patients. We can only wish them well. Signed, Drs. John R. Manis, J. Gavin Southerland, Theodore D. Hiatt, Charles E. Calza, and Harper J. Buck."

ORGANIZERS OF Sick Room Service are, from the left, Tom McNaught, Alfred Misa and Reggie Butler, experienced orderlies at Marin General Hospital. (Photos by Gil Pearson)

Realtors Note Fifty Years

"$150 buys a house and lot. Of course, there are other requirements. But they are easy for the right kind of a man. He must be a family man; a home loving man; a man with good moral character; enough ability to hold his job; and pay on the house and lot what he now pays in rent."

The poster went on:

"If you are that kind of man, you can get a home in Sequoia Park in San Anselmo."

Other signs and advertising notices included such phrases as "the balance can be paid over a period of five years; this means you can pay as little as three dollars per month. Can anything be fairer?" Or "we insure the residents of Laurel Dells immunity from saloons, manufacturing establishments, and everything else detrimental to a highly organized community. Lots are from $250 up."

OR THE poster that reads: "Santa Venetia . . . the still water marvel of the 20th Century, most stupendous project ever conceived in the west; four miles of canals, 100 feet wide, bulkheads of concrete, artistic staircases; $1,000,000 to be spent in improvements . . . mountains, still water, and sea, all in one."

That was a sampling of the real estate picture in the early days of the Marin County Real Estate Board back in the 1920's, 1930's, and even before.

This month, the Board, now called the Marin County Board of Realtors, celebrates its 50th anniversary.

A 50th anniversary dinner was held a few weeks ago at Domenic's in San Rafael. In attendance were many of the past presidents and the officers and members of those early boards that were formed when the industry was a far cry from the important factor it is in Marin County in 1970.

TODAY, the Marin County Board of Realtors has 225 member offices with a total of more than 800 employees. It is one of the largest employers in the county, probably exceeded only by the school district and county employees.

With headquarters in an expansive, one-level commercial building at 255 West End Avenue off the Miracle Mile, it now has nine employees headed by executive manager Dan Deedy.

The Marin County Board of Realtors has played, for many years, an important role in the growth and prosperity of Marin County, says 1970 president W. Bruce Shafer.

The board was very active in the campaign for the introduction of the Golden Gate Bridge. Members campaigned for the first bridge bond issue in the early 1930's; they voted for it; they advertised for it, put stickers on their cars, placards in their windows; they talked it up. No bonds, no bridge.

The board was active, too, in urging the location of what is now Hamilton Field Air Base in our county.

OVER THE years, the board has contributed financially to high school graduates with their Archie Culpepper Award, to the College of Marin, to scores of fine causes; they have a blood bank; they have worked hard in

Fifty years ago, though, the board had an estimated 14 members, as compared with its more than 800 today. "We could count the number of brokers in Marin County on both hands," said Thomas Minto, one of the first members and now an 81-year-old Kentfield resident.

"We felt an organization of real estate people would be beneficial, both to ourselves and to the residents of the county," said Minto. "Our first meeting was held in our own office, Kent and Minto, then at 210-216 Sir Francis Drake in San Anselmo. Dues were $1 per month; we needed a few dollars for correspondence, stamps, etc. We met once a month, most of the time alternating holding the meetings in members' offices. Sometimes we had five or six people present. We had no secretary, no salaried help, all volunteer work done by members We occasionally put on a dutch treat meeting-party. James Leach, Tom Kent (Kentfield was named after his father), Bob Carey and myself were among the organizers in those days.

"From 1922 to 1934, the records of the Board are sketchy. It was somewhat inactive."

"IN THESE depression years, the real estate field, as did everything else, reached its low peak. Many real estate offices just closed," Minto said.

"People had no money, they had no confidence, they didn't know when they would get a job. Quite a number of real estate contracts were in escrow, and were cancelled. Sometimes real estate brokers also had an insurance business tied in, and this kept them somewhat solvent," said Minto.

Talk of the Golden Gate Bridge started in the early 1930's. Engineer Joseph Strauss attended a meeting in Santa Rosa, at which a number of Marin County real estate leaders were in attendance. From that meeting, some historians say, came the first "push" for a study of the feasibility of the Golden Gate Bridge, and realtors played a big role.

IN 1934, the board was reorganized, and a man with the unusual initials of U.S. Turley became its next president. In 1935, Farrington L. Jones was president, and the Board had approximately 20 members.

Succeeding presidents were C. R. DeWitt, who established, in 1936, the first Multiple Listing Service, which was to collapse during World War II; Maynard Redmond in 1937; Lloyd Grandi in 1938; then George Schleicher, Bill Nock, Tom Irvine, W. Robert Miller, Columbus Pierce, Redmond again, then Frank Healion in 1945 — to cover the World War II years when the Board continued to function, though in a limited way.

After the war ended, however, the Marin County board really started to grow along with the county. Many veterans stationed here during the war liked Marin County, and they returned here. Population began to increase.

In 1948, while William G. Rutherford was president, the Board adopted the slogan: "On the Golden Side of the Golden Gate," a slogan still used today.

IN 1949, president Archie Culpepper re-established the Multiple Listing Service as a separate organization of the board. In 1950, president Bill Hamilton initiated studies that combined the Board and the Multiple Listing Service.

The year 1951 marked a historic milestone in the Board's history. The first office was established in the Cheda Bldg., in San Rafael, a tiny 10x12 office. Dan Deedy was hired as execu-

Other highlights in the years ahead included establishment of the Marin County "Man of the Year" award, since discontinued for a number of reasons. Among the winners were Ada Fusselman, for her work with education (a woman actually became the first "man" of the year); Manny Charnow, for his work with senior citizens; Joseph Brusatori, now San Rafael Chief of Police, for his work with juveniles, and others.

The Marin County board won the "outstanding achievement" award presented by the California Real Estate Association in 1954; the Board built and moved into its present home at 255 West End Avenue in 1956; the $500 Archie Culpepper Award to be presented to an outstanding high school senior each year was created in 1957, and awarded for the first time in 1958; films were purchased for the juvenile hall in 1959; the Board took over complete occupancy of the 255 West End address in 1962.

Some comments about the past:

FARRINGTON L. JONES, 1935 president: "I remember when we felt lucky to make a $250 commission, when I used to drive an old three-door Hupmobile, and my wife a tiny Dodge, when I sold a touse right after the war to war correspondent Marguerite Higgins in Fairfax, a little Marin County retreat for her.

"There are more problems in selling real estate today than there were in those days — financing, more zoning restrictions, more property to choose from. In those days, you didn't look for the buyer; you looked for the listing of property. If you had a good listing, you really needed no help in selling it. If one person didn't buy it, the next one would."

C. R. DeWITT, 1936 and 1946 president: "I remember being the first secretary after the re-organization in 1934, when the county was mostly summer homes, and we had ferries and electric trains for transportation.

"I sold the old Rafael Hotel, a monument in those days on a 20-acre plot at Grand and Jewell, for something around $40,000, quite a price more than 40 years ago. The Board used to meet there once in a while, until it burned down in 1928. Hillside lots in San Rafael were selling for $250-$300 then; level lots, up to $1,000. You could build a home for $4 a square foot; buy a nice home for $3,000-$5,000, and I used to sell many homes over and over again."

FRANK HEALION, 1945 president: "I was a member from 1920 when we first organized, but I was not one of the officers. Sometimes we met in the old Tamalpais Hotel because some of our members owned it. We just met; not much organization, no money, just meet and make a few rules we thought would be good for everyone. I came to Fairfax in 1903; I'd build a little cabin on a lot and then sell it. Most of my lots in Fairfax were $250-$300, approximately 50 feet by 100 feet.

As for the future of the Marin County Board of Realtors and the real estate industry in Marin county, Donald Beacock, vice-president elect of the Board, and chairman of the Long-Range Planning Committee, says:

"My hope for the future is that we maintain our progressive position as leaders. Our industry and our Board are on the threshold of a new beginning. It is true we are faced with many challenging problems both from inside and outside our industry, but our task must be to turn these problems into opportunities for ouselves, our Board, and our communities.

"We must enter this new era with the knowledge that the past fifty years must be considered so that we may effectively plan for the next fifty years. Our future objectives should be to increase even more our professional standards, to promote and protect real property ownership, to help find constructive solutions to the problems of our communities, and to improve the efficiency and effectiveness with which we serve the public."

FORMER WINSHIP HOME NOW BEING REMODELLED BY ITS NEW OWNER

THE climate of Ross Valley is acknowledged by all to be the most perfect all the year round of any within less than an hour's ride of San Francisco.

There is absolutely no fog and no wind.

A sleeping porch should go with all homes in Winship Park, as this means rest and strength for you and your wife, and good health and happiness for the little ones.

It is an ideal place for the family. Good schools and churches, and daily deliveries by the nearby produce merchants—in fact a country home with all city advantages.

THE COUNTRY ATMOSPHERE of Ross was a selling point stressed by a San Francisco real estate agent, who praised the climate and claimed it was an ideal place for the family to live.

A TYPICAL JAMAICAN villa, such as the one above at Ocho Rios, are available for short and long term rentals by tourists.

Jamaica Has Treasures

By MURRAY J. BROWN

OCHO RIOS, Jamaica (UPI) — The first foreign visitor to Jamaica was Christopher Columbus, back in 1494. He was disappointed because he didn't find any gold and silver he was looking for and soon sailed away.

But this tropical island in the Caribbean held other treasures which were discovered by hundreds of thousands of other tourists in more recent years, including fine beaches and beautiful mountains.

The town, a few miles from Discovery Bay where Columbus is said to have landed, is on the site of the first Spanish settlement in 1509 on the island.

IT WAS in this same area that Columbus and his men were marooned for a year on his fourth and final expedition to the New World about 10 years after his first visit.

It was here, too, that the last of the Spanish forces hid out in caves for years before fleeing to Cuba from British troops who captured Jamaica in 1655.

The caves at Runaway Bay later served as hideouts for gun and rum runners and other smugglers. Now there are guided tours into the subterranean chambers with their stalactites and stalagmites and other weird rock formations, capped by a ride in a glass-bottomed boat across a lake in the Green Grotto about 120 feet below the surface.

A GOOD two-lane road skirts the shore of the Caribbean between Montego Bay and Ocho Rios. It passes through, or by, small towns and fishing villages, mangrove swamps, pimento groves, sugar cane and other plantations and long stretches of pristine beaches.

Scattered along the road are numerous stands with carvings, bowls, and other handicrafts of mahogany, mahoe and other local wood. Statues of bulls predominated, but I bought a graceful carving of a heron in flight for $5 Jamaican.

Incidentally, since Jamaica switched over to the decimal system of currency, the U. S. dollar is equivalent to 83 cents Jamaican. Generally major hotels and other enterprises catering to American tourists will quote prices in U. S. as well as Jamaican dollars.

But there are some that do not, so check first or you may find yourself paying more than you expected.

ANOTHER highlight on the drive was the visit to Dunn's River Falls, on the coastal road a few miles west of Ocho Rios, one of the most scenic sights in the West Indies. Here a mountain stream cascades 600 feet over a flight of natural rock steps to a perfect beach on the Caribbean.

Experienced guides are available, for a small renumeration, to assist climbers up and down the falls. The rushing waters have carved pools in the steps where climbers can cool off on the way up or down.

Moviegoers should recognize the falls — it was in a James Bond film. The late Ian Fleming, author of the Bond novels, had a home at Oracabessa, about 10 miles on the other side of Ocho Rios.

There is another unusual natural attraction about 10 miles south of Ocho Rios, on the main road to Kingston — Fern Gully, a three-mile-long dry river bed through a rocky gorge where giant ferns form a thick canopy which blots out the sky.

THE TOWN of Ocho Rios, which dates back to the early days of Spanish rule, is about 70 miles east of Montego Bay and nearly 60 miles north of Kingston. It is linked to both by good roads and air services.

Development of tourist facilities in the Ocho Rios region did not begin until after World War II but the resort area now stretches across 40 miles, from Discovery Bay on the west to Port Maria on the east.

There are about a score of top-rated hotels strung out along the beaches or in the nearby hills, as well as more than 100 villas, cottages and apartments available for short and long-term rentals.

Most major hotels are self-contained resorts with private beaches and pools, tennis courts and golf privileges, dining, dancing and entertainment.

Magnificent Trip Through Redwoods

A drive through the main redwood groves of California that lie just south and north of Eureka is one of the most magnificent journeys to be had anywhere in the West.

It matters not whether you have made the trip before. Passing along the highway beneath awesome stands of timber or walking quietly through a cathedral-like grove is an unforgettable experience.

SOME OF California's most impressive redwood forests lie along the Redwood Highway, U.S. 101 between Garberville and Rio Dell, says the California State Automobile Association.

Just north of Garberville you leave Highway 101 to visit the first grove of trees in Humboldt Redwoods State Park, the Holbrook Grove. Then a few miles further north along 101 you again leave the freeway and take the Avenue of the Giants which proceeds through the heart of all the groves that are strung out between Phillipsville and Scotia.

HUMBOLDT Redwoods State Park comprises almost 40,000 acres. Two of the tallest trees in the world are here — the Rockefeller Tree and the Founders' Tree. Both are situated just a short drive north of Weott.

Some of the finest state campgrounds are in the redwoods. One is Richardson Grove just south of Garberville. Three others, Burlington, Hidden Springs and Albee Creek, are further north near Myers Flat and Weott.

At Scotia you can visit the Pacific Lumber Company and one of the few remaining company towns left in America. The entire town is devoted to the huge drying yards, sawmills and plants of the lumber company which has been in continuous operation since 1869.

THERE IS a museum here where you can see old photographs and historical mementos of the lumbering activity in the redwood region. Next to the museum is an old Heisler locomotive originally built for the excursion run on Mount Tamalpais in Marin County. Later it was used as a logging locomotive until it was retired some years ago.

Visitors can also avail themselves of a free self-guided tour of the lumbering operations through one of the sawmills and the factory. The route is marked by yellow arrows and at each place of interest you will find a card describing the process at that point.

And one thing nice about a drive along the Redwood Highway is that you can make the trip any time. The camping area and groves are open all year and the mild coastal climate is just as appealing in winter as it is in summer.

Some Baggage Tips For The Holidays

Holiday travelers can help assure themselves of a happier trip by following a few basic tips about handling their baggage.

"During the holidays," said William E. Hastings, vice president for package express of Greyhound Lines, transportation subsidiary of diversified Greyhound Corporation, "we will handle hundreds of thousands of additional pieces of baggage."

"By following a few basic steps, travelers can help move this huge volume without problems —and help us give them better service."

Here are Greyhound's tips:

MARK baggage clearly — always put identification stickers or tags both inside and outside your bags. A brightly colored or unusual tag will eliminate the problem of look-alike luggage and will help you readily identify your own luggage.

Remove all old destination tags so they don't mislead baggage handlers.

Check your luggage at least half an hour before your bus departs. Always look at the destination shown on your baggage claim checks — as soon as you receive them — to make sure your baggage has been checked to the correct destination.

Travel as lightly as possible. Most professional travelers manage with one suitcase which they either check or carry aboard. Or check your main bag and bring aboard a small bag containing your personal items, reading materials or camera. Greyhound allows you to carry aboard most suitcases up to medium size.

NEVER store valuables, breakable or fragile items in your luggage. Keep them in your personal bag.

Check baggage rack before leaving bus to be sure you have all your personal luggage.

Since more people travel during the holidays, give yourself more time to reach terminals, buy your ticket and check your baggage.

"Many travelers like to carry their bags on board," said Hastings, "and Greyhound encourages them to do so. The reason is simple — the bag you take with you travels with you and arrives when you arrive."

New Zealand Swinging And Economica

By TOM TALAMINI

If you're young . . . or young at heart . . . and enjoy the out-of-doors, then New Zealand should be high on your priority list of "places in the world to visit."

With a population of almost three million, of whom more than half are under 26 years of age, you'll find this small South Pacific country is made to order for the traveler on a limited budget.

Because of the country's compactness — only two-thirds the size of California — distances between one point of interest and the next are short. And don't let New Zealand's smallness fool you, for crammed into those two green islands is some of the most varied and spectacular scenery offered any place else in the world.

ADD TO these scenic attractions some of the best trout fishing and deep sea fishing found anywhere, good hunting, countless trails for hiking and mountain climbing (New Zealander Sir Edmund Hillary warmed up in the New Zealand alps for his eventual conquest of Mt. Everest), skin diving, swimming and surfing, excellent skiing in the winter (North America's summer) and a fine selection of golf courses.

New Zealand is ideal for exploring on foot or perhaps bicycling. The roads are good . . . and uncrowded. There's an excellent system of public transportation. Buses and trains are especially inexpensive. In fact, everything in New Zealand is inexpensive by American standards. You can rent a car for as little as $12.90 a week, plus 7 cents a mile.

GASOLINE is about 42 cents a gallon but the smaller cars in New Zealand get 30 to 40 miles on a gallon, and because of the country's compactness, mileage doesn't add up very fast.

Even cabs are cheap . . . about 15 to 18 cents a mile . . . and tips are not generally expected.

As for accommodation, guest houses and private hotels (those that do not serve liquor) vary from $2.25 to $4 a night, including breakfast . . . not the Continental type served in Europe but a hearty breakfast that includes eggs and meat and potatoes. Some of these small hotels offer full board for less than $5 a day.

IF YOU really want to trim expenses, you can rent a camper suitable for two to six persons for as little as $25.20 a week, including insurance, plus 8 cents a mile.

You can furnish your own gear or rent blankets, sheets, sleeping bags and cutlery for $2 per person. There are numerous camp grounds on both islands.

Of course, the best deal for the individual student traveler is to follow the youth hostel trail where he can get bed and breakfast for about 50 cents a night. New Zealand has some 50 youth hostels, mostly in the smaller communities. However, House Hostel (accommodation in private homes) is available in Auckland, New Zealand's largest city, at the popular thermal resort center of Rotorua on the North Island and at the South Island's three principal cities, Christchurch, Dunedin and Invercargill. There is a Youth Hostel in the capital city of Wellington.

New Zealand is a member of the Youth Hostel Association, and young hostelers from North America can obtain further information on New Zealand hostels by writing to P. O. Box 436, Christchurch, New Zealand. Ask for a copy of the current New Zealand handbook, which is free to all hostel members.

GETTING back to the low costs in New Zealand, a haircut will run 55 cents; a shampoo and set about $1.50. Admission to a movie is about a dollar. And if you happen to be of the legal drinking age (21 or over), a glass of beer will set you back about 11 cents, a scotch about a quarter.

Meals, too, are ample, tasty and inexpensive. For example, steak and eggs in a nice downtown cafe is about $1.75. And if you're doing your own cooking you'll save a bundle . . . about 38 cents a pound for a leg of lamb; less than 50 cents a pound for sirloin or prime rib.

As for swinging, any country with such a large population of young people is bound to swing. However, with the exception of Auckland and a few spots in some of the other larger cities, it's not the type of swinging associated with night spots and discotheques. It's for those who love the out-of-doors singing around a campfire, informal get-togethers at cafes, in a hotel room or at the hostel.

THE WEATHER is generally mild and almost sub-tropical in the far north. There is a great deal of rain with a fair amount even in the summer, but that's what makes the country so green and attractive. However, it's advisable to carry rain gear at any time of the year.

There is one drawback to a visit "down under." New Zealand is almost 7,000 miles from the West Coast of the United States, and consequently it's expensive to get there. By taking advantage of excursion flights this cost can be trimmed considerably . . . and once there you'll be able to live comfortably on just a few dollars a day.

Story Of Loneliness

"Islands in the Stream," Hemingway's posthumously published novel, is essentially a story about loneliness.

In a cottage set on an isolated wind-swept beach of Bimini, lives a self-exiled artist, who is a survivor of two broken marriages. His three sons are visiting him, and although there are gay escapades of deep-sea fishing trips and beach picnics, the theme of loneliness pervades as he sadly anticipates the time when they must leave him at summer's end. Soon after their departure, he learns that two of his sons have been killed in an automobile accident.

The second part of the novel finds the artist some years later in Cuba during World War II. Still alone, he soliloquizes with his cats, and engages in long barroom philosophies with the town prostitute. His presentiment of death culminates with the news that his third son has been killed in action.

Part III centers around the activities of a small patrol boat whose crew must hunt down the survivors of a Nazi submarine. The artist is the skipper of the craft, and although there is great comraderie amongst the crew, he prefers to remain isolated in his grief.

It is true, as many critics have pointed out, that the novel needs considerable editing. Some think it isn't even finished. There are some long tedious conversations, and some irrelevant reminiscences. But it is running across an old acquaintance. You know what he is like, and it is like old times to hear what he has to say again.

The unmistakable Hemingway characteristics are all there. As in many of his other novels, he uses himself as the protaganist. At the time he wrote this book, he had been through at least two marriages, had three sons, and he also chased around Cuban water during the war.

Familiar too, are the mouth-watering descriptions of long drinking bouts. Hemingway can make a simple gin and tonic sound utterly delicious. He is also at his best writing about the he-man occupations that he loved so much during his lifetime. In this case, a deep sea fishing expedition is so vividly described that your own arms practically ache from pulling in the monster fish.

And, running through this novel too, is Hemingway's preoccupation with the death cult. It is strange that this man who revealed in an active, exurerant life, should have this dark theme permeating so much of his writings. With the exception of 'The Old Man and the Sea," Hemingway seems to squelch the dignity of man by his great emphasis on death.

As pleasant as it is to read "Islands in the Stream," the reader abruptly realizes at its conclusion, that he has been left with nothing. Hemingway doesn't give him anything to keep. He talks about his virility, his good times, his drinking, and his loneliness, but nothing is given that might add to the understanding of life's experience. Nothing is given that might expose a new facet of the human spirit. And that is what is disappointing, not the poor editing, but the fact that nothing is left upon which to ponder.

Shaw In His Writing Days

SHAW: AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY, 1898-1950, THE PLAYWRIGHT YEARS by Stanley Weintraub; Weybright and Talley, 295 pages, $10. Reviewed by Anne G. Stine.

A few years ago Stanley Weintraub gave us "Shaw: An Autobiography, 1856-1898" — a scholarly selection of his writings covering his boyhood and early years in London.

In his second volume "Shaw: An Autobiography, 1898-1950, The Playwright Years" Weintraub uses the same method as before: piecing together reminiscences, lectures, articles, interviews — every form of his writing and journalism. Although Shaw never wrote a formal autobiography (claiming he was "about as real as a pantomime ostrich"), this second volume is completely successful in rounding out the picture of Shaw the writer and the critic.

The period covered is the time when Shaw was most prolific as a playwright and a journalist. In the latter category he gives us his thoughts on everything from jury duty to immortality. In the former we are treated to unlimited anecdotes on theatrical life and the people who made it fascinating, such as Beerhohm Tree who was Higgins in the original production of "Pygmalion" in 1914.

Shaw always felt that his personal life was a private matter and therefore wrote almost nothing about such subjects as his marriage. It is a tribute to Weintraub that his selection and presentation of Shaw's works enables the reader to understand the inner man and to interpret his feelings and growth, without intentional help from Shaw himself.

The mask which he maintained in public slips aside occasionally in his writings to reveal the many contradictions in his make-up. He could be at once considerate and heartless, broad-minded and prudish, gentle and unrelenting. As he grew in years, so he developed in mind and changed in outlook — as evidenced in his political views and his appraisal of world events.

The illustrations are excellent. To the average reader this is a fascinating revelation of a grand old man whose mind was forever probing and stimulating until his death in 1950 at the age of 94. To the Shavian student it is a gem. That illuminates and puts into perspective, much of G.B.S. which henceforth was either misunderstood or distorted.

ORCHID GROWING

MENLO PARK, Calif. (UPI) — If you have always felt that growing your own orchids is in the same category as doing your own brain surgery, Sunset has a book to disabuse you.

The book deplores the fact that the mystery surrounding the exotic orchid has also discouraged many gardeners from its cultivation. And, it maintains, orchids are not that hard to raise.

The book, entitled "How to Grow Orchids," was published recently by Lane Magazine & Book Co., Menlo Park, Calif. $1.95 and was put together by the Sunset editorial staff.

There is information on all aspects for orchid-raising.

Some Good Advice

Here is a book with a lot of good basic advice on earning, spending, borrowing, saving, and investing money. Mr. Scaduto, a feature writer for the New York Post, makes the point that many of us waste money through mismanagement of our funds and goes on to point out some of the pitfalls.

The chapter on the true cost of interest should be worth the price of the book to many people. He explains, for example, the difference between true annual interest and a discount, add-on, or monthly rate on unpaid balance.

Also discussed is the rule of the 78ths as applied to prepayment of loans. This allows the lender to recover a high percentage of the interest during the early months of the loan. Amazing how gullible the consumer is, isn't it?

There are excellent chapters on sources of credit, what to do when you can't make a payment, taxes, and family investment programs. There is a minor error in the chapter on taxes under the discussion of investment losses. The law was changed this year and quite possibly the book went to print too soon to pick it up. The change affects married couples filing individual returns for tax savings. Under the old law (loophole) each individual could deduct up to $1,000 in losses. The new law specifies a maximum tax loss of $500 for each individual although if they file a joint return they can write off up to $1,000 as can be unmarried individual.

Reviews Of New Reading

On the subject of investing, the author emphasizes the absolute necessity for saving and investing in order to accumulate sufficient assets to retire comfortably. He quotes a recent projection which indicates that by 1980 half of all retired couples will be struggling to live on $3,000 from Social Security and pension plan benefits.

If present rates of inflation continue that $3,000 will be worth far less in 1980 in purchasing power. This is the squeeze that makes it imperative for each of us to plan now for future income.

For those who are planning the purchase of a house for the first time, the book discusses in detail what to look for in the house, contract, and escrow arrangements. The legal differences between a mortgage, trust deed, and sales contract are defined and the advantages and disadvantages made clear. The selling side of the transaction is also discussed along with advice on how to deal with a contractor if you should build.

If you have been through all this you may know what to avoid and what to insist upon to get the most out of your money. If not, the $6.95 you will pay for this book will be money well spent.

Black Man's Views Of Pro Football

Johnny Sample, defensive back for two championship professional football teams, was a militant in shoulder pads who battled discrimination as fiercely as he did opposing players.

He conceded that he has been labeled a "dirty player," and a "troublemaker," and charged that he was blackballed by the National Football League.

"Despite some improvement in recent years, the black man in professional football is still mistreated and underpaid. The team owners, general managers and coaches take advantage of the black athlete because they think he'll grab at practically any offer or take any treatment they dish out. . . . By and large the black man ends up making less money than the white player of equal ability."

While making his points, Sample includes many episodes which entertain football buffs; clashes on the field, inside anecdotes that may come only from players willing to tell them, an account of his feud with famed Coach Otto Graham, his relationship with Coach Weeb Ewbank and the attitude of Coach Buddy Parker.

As a bonus for fans, Sample offers his evaluation of receivers and quarterbacks he has played against, both in the National Football League, where he played with the Baltimore Colts, 1958-60, Pittsburgh Steelers, 1961-62, and Washington Redskins, 1963-65, and the former American Football League, where he played with the New York Jets, 1966-68.

He considers John Unitas of the Colts as the greatest quarterback in the history of professional football, and views Joe Namath, apparently out for the rest of this season, as the "bread and butter" of the N.Y. Jets, but handicapped by painful knees.

Followers of the San Francisco 49ers probably won't be thrilled with Sample's opinion that Quarterback John Brodie is easy to intimidate. "When he's knocked down and banged up a little, he starts throwing interceptions because he's afraid to hold the ball. He gets a little rattled after he's been blitzed."

A true sportsman will be dismayed by the on-field tactics of Sample, but it is a brutal game, and apparently hurting the opponent is part of the job.

Sample is not an endearing character, but he is frank, and in the field of sports where so much poppycock is written about the glory of the playing field, he has done a service in laying bare a little of the truth.

IT DOESN'T seem exactly right to label Charles McCabe's writings as a collection of newspaper columns, even though that's what they are, packaged in hard cover under the title of "The Fearless Spectator."

By some strange chemistry putting them all together in a book and grouping them according to general themes gives them the tone of essays.

That is to say, the stuff you may have been reading mornings in the San Francisco Chronicle takes on a new dimension in book form.

When you read McCabe in the newspaper, a day at a time, with all sorts of things happening in your life from one column to the next, it's hard to fully capture the trend of his thinking.

Having his columns all together in a concentrated batch, which can be read at leisure, not on a commuter bus or over a fast breakfast, gives you a better chance to try to get an idea of the man's outlook, and follow the thread of his thinking.

McCabe covers a wide range of human activity with a fair share of comment on women from Irish mothers to the women's liberation movement, which must have been somewhere near the top of its list.

There also is a hefty collection of comment on the subject of booze; straightforward stuff that won't thrill the W.C.T.U.; some sensitive musing on the tender subject of love and a few smatterings about McCabe's experiences at large in the world.

All in all, he proves that the essay isn't dead. It's alive and living in the form of a newspaper column.

FOR US, bullfighting as a sport rates right along side squashing slugs and snails, but there is no denying that it has its many aficionados, not all of them by any means Latins, and a large number of them famous.

Peter Haining, an avid student of the spectacle, has put together an anthology, "A Thousand Afternoons," in which the likes of Ernest Hemingway, James Michener, John Steinbeck, V.S. Pritchett, Robert Ruark, and, of course, Barnaby Conrad, give their views and observations.

The selections include both fiction and fact.

For Norman Mailer the bullfight provides an opportunity to judge a man "in his greatest moment." To Hemingway, the bullfighter was "a champion, a paragon." For Conrad such books recall "afternoons of great emotion, or thrills of the kind that only the fiesta brava can offer."

But we identify more closely with George Bernard Shaw, who asked: "Who would go to see this posturing bully, the matador, if he were dressed in workman's clothes and cap?" And answered his own question: "It is slaughterhouse work and in any decent country the public is denied the sadistic satisfaction of abattoirs."

So "A Thousand Afternoons" will appeal only if, like the Little Old Lady in tennis shoes put it, as quoted in Conrad's introduction, you are "aficionated."

The price is $6.95. Which, with Hemingway, Mailer, Michener, Graves, et al, may be a bigger bargain than a ticket to the fights.

WE SEEM to be experiencing a reawakening of interest in the novels of D.E. Stevenson, perhaps as an antidote to the cynical and often erotic fiction pouring from the presses today.

Miss Stevenson, actually Mrs. J. R. Peploe, descendant of Robert Louis Stevenson and living in Scotland, is a gentle writer, unapologetically romantic. Her more than 40 novels have sold five million copies and more, testifying to her popularity.

Holt, Reinhart and Winston has now reprinted her "The Young Clementina" ($5.95), first issued in the 1930s. It is a love story set in pre-World War II England that anticipates today's preoccupation with the generation gap. And which, like so many of Miss Stevenson's tales, is lightly frosted with mystery. There's an old-fashioned quality to the story, but this is not without its charm.

BALLANTINE Books and The National Audubon Society have joined in publishing a paperback edition of George Laycock's fine book, "The Alien Animals," the story of the importation of foreign wildlife into this country, often with unfortunate consequences for the environment into which they are introduced. "Wildlife roulette," the book calls it. And man, the persistent gambler, insists on trying it again and again. Those who missed The Natural History Press hardcover edition should seize this bargain opportunity — 95 cents — to read a most interesting account of how man risks pitfalls when he insists upon interfering with nature's grand pattern.

ONE OF THE most unusual books of the season has to be "A Family Album, 1850-1970."

Credited to and copyrighted under the name "Gramma" only, the book is the product of a San Rafael woman. And it is exactly what the title indicates, her family album. Reproduced on slick paper and including a number of pages of color prints, it is priced at $17.50 and available at some Marin bookstores and by order from Gramma, Post Office Box 2912, San Rafael.

The woman responsible for the project terms the book "an anonymous offering to nostalgia" in the belief that many will identify with the people, clothing, furniture, houses, etc shown and derive enjoyment from so doing. Why no name? Because, she says, it is unimportant, and even disturbing to the whole point of the publishing of the book.

So if you want a copy of somebody else's family ablum. . .

IN ITS "Discovering Art Series," McGraw-Hill has published two more lavishly illustrated volumes, "17th & 18th Century Art" by Ariane Ruskin and "Twentieth Century Art" by Michael Batterberry, each priced at $8.95.

Like the other eight books in the series, each contains 200 or more color plates, illustrating art development from the prehistoric to the present.

Miss Ruskin, best known as an author of art books for children and herself a schooled painter, tells how the rigidity of the work of the High Renaissance gave way to a freer, richer Baroque art, highly sensuous that swept through Europe. The contributions of individual artists are enumerated.

Artist and art writer Batterberry details the more fervent and more radical revolution that took place in art in the first half of this century. It is an especially well-done account of a time of great ferment and some confusion in the art world, where the strands of the various schools are not always easily separated and traced.

The books will serve as excellent texts for students wishing not too involved but sufficiently enlightening survey of art trends of the last three centuries. A complete set of the "Discovering Art Series" books would, of course, constitute an excellent library for the art buff.

Sleuths & Suspense

NIGHTMARE by Russell H. Greenan; Random House, 205 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

This first novel by an American living in France is labeled "A Contemporary Tale of Horror."

Certainly it has its strange and eerie aspects, although those touches seem to come in splotches rather than in the sustained mood of, say, an Edgar Allan Poe.

Steven Pierglass works for a mysterious organization headed by a man known only as John, ruthless and probably paranoic. His missions skirt the law. And his newest one takes him to a rundown, integrated boarding house in search of a black man who has been anonymously blackmailing a nationally prominent politician on behalf of black separatism.

Pierglass alternates between his hunt and a genuine involvement in the lives of the boarding house occupants. He alternates, too, between periods of personal strength and weakness. And this, with the off-and-on eeriness, makes for a bit too much shifting about that is unsettling to the reader. Finally, for us, the ending left something to be desired.

But if Greenan's first novel is not a total success, it is a promising beginning for what might become a bright career.

"Who Tore My Silk Dress?"

Though your silk dress appears torn, it is not. The horizontal opening is what is termed a "silk split." It is a rather common occurance, caused by wear, the repeated bending and flexing of a silk garment in the same area.

A silk fabric is generally a plain weave with the more slender silk yarns used in the vertical direction. The wear caused by repeated bending weakens the silk threads. Eventually these threads break and a split occurs. Usually you find these splits at the elbows, around the waistline or below the sleeve heads where there is strain when the arms are raised.

We have mentioned this damage before. There is no way to overcome it. Just remember that silk is a fragile fabric, subject to a shorter life than other, hardier fabrics.

DEATH

Oh death, why do I fear thee so?
Is it the loneliness that thou wilst bring?
Or is it pain and sadness, fear, and sorrow?
Or coldness, darkness, that then will begin?
Or is it just the fear of the unknown,
That from a tiny seed within my heart has grown?
Dear God, please help conquer all my fears,
That grow and multiply throughout the years.

Wide Choice For Planting In Tubs

Take your favorite shrub, plant it in a tub and place it in a prominent location on your patio, porch, or deck. That's the formula for extra pleasure from from gardening.

Better yet, further increase your pleasure — give the above treatment to several trees and shrubs. There isn't a patio or deck that can't be enhanced by container-grown plants; few porches that haven't room for at least a small shrub or two.

Some plants will grow indefinitely in tubs and others will be happy for a given period of time, according to the California Association of Nurserymen.

IF YOU don't know where to start, rely on your nurseryman's recommendations. He'll have a wide selection of plants — and containers — from which to choose.

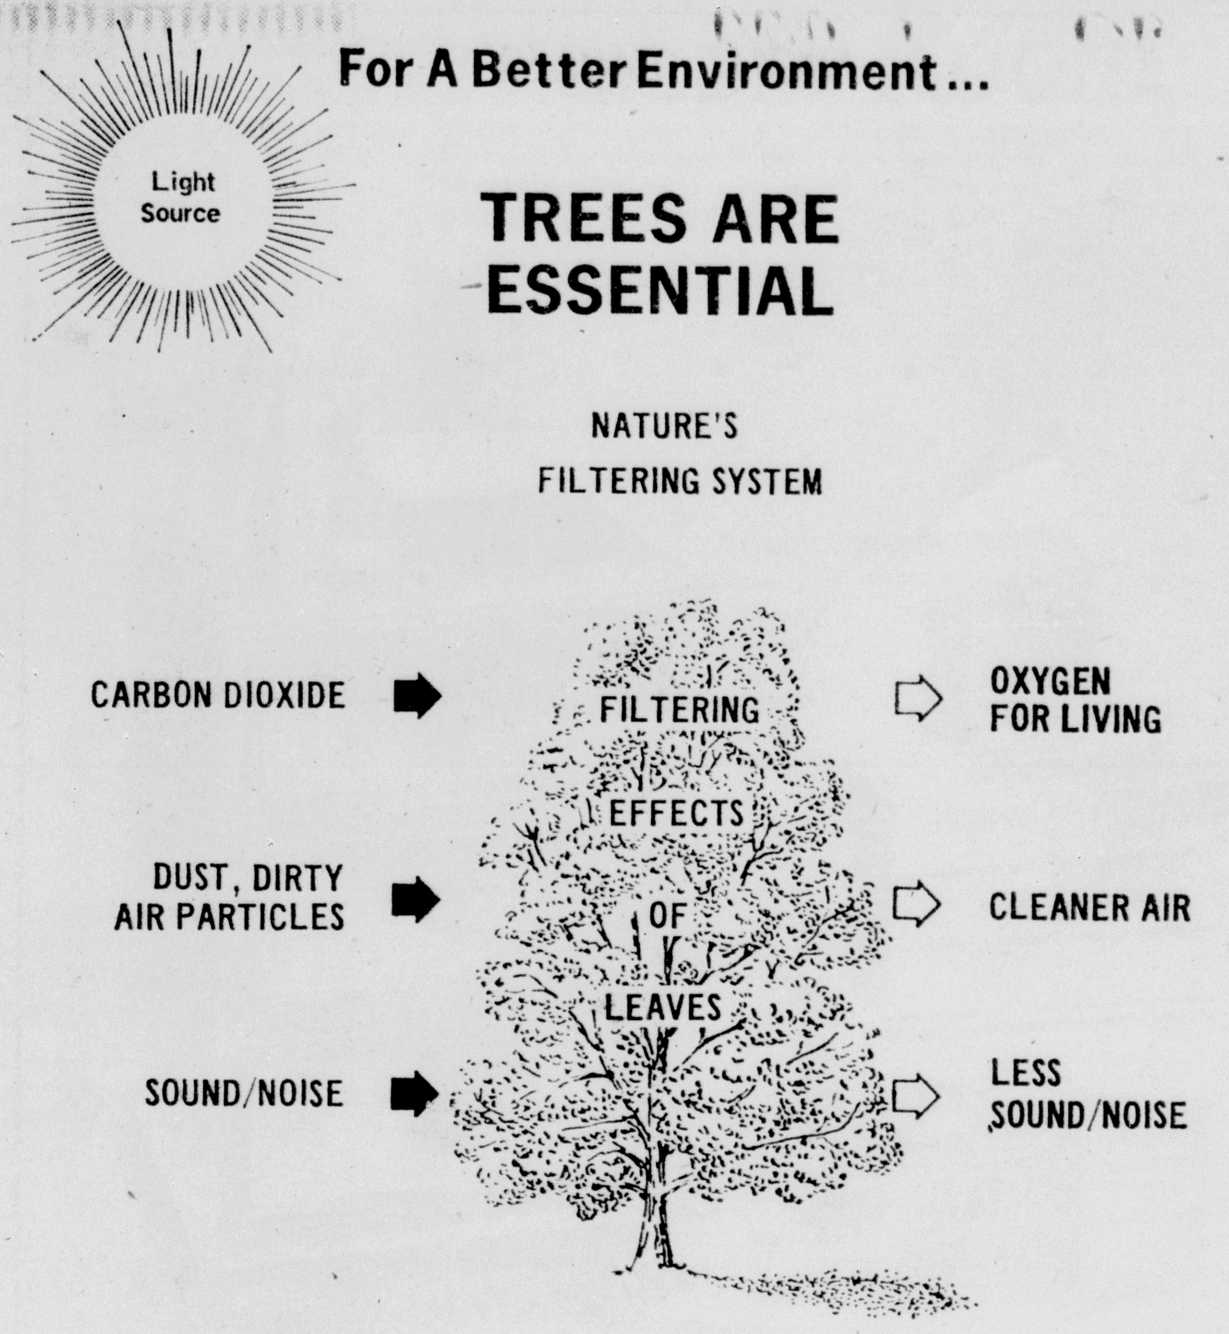
Podocarpus is a good choice for a tub. There are two well-known varieties, popularly called Yew Pine and Fern Pine. Both have finely cut foliage, with the former being more compact and the latter boasting a finer texture. Columnar growers, they make a perfect accent for an entryway or for the wall side of the deck.

The unique radial-growing Norfolk Island Pine and the artistically-shaped Japanese Black Pine are two outstanding candidates for growing in containers. You'll thrill to their beauty.

Blooming plants? For winter and spring color rely on camellias, azaleas and rhododendrons. In the warmer months you'll thrill to the beauty of gardenias, fuchsias, and hibiscus. The many choices of dwarf citrus will also tempt you — and they excel in tubs.

HOLLY is a handsome sight year-around in a container and the bold foliage of the glossy aralia, spreckled leaves of the gold dust plant offer 12 month beauty, too.

Lush foliage plants such as boxwood, Carolina Cherry, English Laurel and wax leaf privet can be pruned into interesting shapes such as globes, pryamids and topiaries. They give dramatic impact to the surroundings — and effect that will draw ohs of admiration from all who view them.



TREES AND SHRUBS are essential for a better environment and nurserymen advise that now is an excellent time to plant. The root systems of plant materials set out now will develop early during the winter months enabling the plants to take full surge of spring growth.

FOR EXTRA PLEASURE from gardening, take a favorite shrub and plant it in a tube and place it in a prominent location on your porch or patio. There are many blooming specimens, as well as handsome foliage plants, that can be used, such as the variegated holly shown above.

Indoor Gardening Brings Winter Color Into Home

On days when you can't garden outside this winter, the California Association of Nurserymen suggests that much pleasure can be derived from gardening in your home.

You need only take advantage of a light window (north or east exposure) to grow pots of color that will brighten the darkest day.

The exotic blooms of cyclamen are prominent in nurseries these days and will remain so in your home right through winter. The joy of these gems is their adaptability to garden or sunroom conditions.

AFRICAN VIOLETS are the perennial favorite for year-round fun and enjoyment indoors. The single and double blooms are especially appreciated for their cheerful contributions during the winter season.

The so-called common geranium, believe it or not, can be treated as a house plant and kept blooming right through winter. Give it a sunny south window, though.

The orchid family has its candidates for winter color. They offer the indoor gardener a thrill he won't soon forget — a thrill that often leads to a full-time hobby.

Some narcissus bulbs can be grown in a dish with no more than pebbles and water added. Dutch Hyacinths will grow and bloom in a glass with only water to dip their roots in. Crocus bulbs are also adaptable for early indoor bloom.

A FAVORITE room brightener, whatever the season, is the chrysanthemum in bloom. Nurseries have 'Mums in bloom throughout the year. Use them for indoor decorations, then move the plants into the garden.

Next fall, you'll reap additional color from the plants. Now is the height of the natural blooming season for 'Mums and nurseries will have their largest selection of the year.

This is only the beginning. Visit your nearby nursery and catch up on the news in indoor plants. You will find endless delightful selections — plants with unusual foliage, colored foliage, exotic-looking specimens, plants that trail and others that bloom with unusual flowers.

Molding Gives Decor A Lift

They say a man's home is his castle, but that's hollow glory if it's a carbon copy of every other castle in the block. Individuality is not as difficult or costly as one might think.

If a new door isn't in the cards now, the old one can be dressed up quite dramatically by applying inexpensive decorative moldings in a carefully worked out pattern. Simplest type to use are half-round.

POORLY placed or awkwardly proportioned windows can be camouflaged w i t h moldings. You can replace draperies with shutters to give a room a more tailored look and gain complete privacy and light control.

Fireplace walls and mantels often date a house more than anything else. In post-war housing, the jutting mantel lost out to the plain, flush wall. Recently the mantel has been discreetly on the comeback, in a sleeker, simpler form.

Today's health is flanked with bookshelves and low built-in benches, or sometimes cabinets to store fireplace fuel, and such new-era amenities as hi-fi systems, that older homes are not equipped to store without new built-ins.

AND THEN the walls. Perhaps Gertrude Stein should have said: "A wall is a wall is a wall." Many homeowners lavish attention on carpeting, upholstery and incidentals and of the walls ask only, "What colors?"

Woodwork can make a wall exciting and also improve the visual proportions of a room. A long hall wall is enhanced by a series of "frames" of molding.

Decorating within the frames with contrasting paint, paper, collages or an art collection offers fascinating possibilities.

Create a Spanish effect by installing two or three rows of squares of richly-hued moldings, or add a Colonial accent with a plate rail.

THE POSSIBILITIES w i t h western woodwork are all but limitless. B u i l d i n g suppliers stock hundreds of items and can also fill special orders.

For an eight-page booklet illustrating how you can work wonders in your home w i t h woodwork, write to Western Wood Products Assn., Dept. 517-P, eYon Bldg., Portland, Ore., 97204. Enclose 15 cents in coin.

Reroofing? Take Look At The Gutters, Too

When you reroof, it is an ideal time to replace tired and rusted gutters and downspouts, because hangers which support the gutter are usually placed under new shingles. Since a properly maintained gutter should last as long as the new roof, it pays to replace both together.

Noise Enemy Of Good Study

That's why many parents are setting aside a place in a bedroom, basement, attic or porch for the ycung learner so he can work without the annoyances of chatter, music and noise created by other members of the family.

HOWEVER, other essentials help give the youngster a feeling of "belonging" and ease in his surrcundings.

Concord suggests a rug will help establish an atmosphere helpful to effective study. Walls and ceiling should be attractively finished and decorated with pictures, maps and the like.

The window should be draped or curtained to please the boy or girl.

W o o d g r a i n e d hardboard makes an excellent background, too, for charts, maps, photos, and school exhibits. The boy or girl can keep the walls shipshape by an occasional wipe-down with a damp sponge or cloth.

IN ROOMS occupied by two boys or two girls, beds may be separated by means of Filigree hardboard or Peg-Board dividers, the Masonite consultant adds. Separate desks and study facilities are important in a situation like this.

Amateur Can Build Recreation Room

A BARE BASEMENT can become a thing of beauty by the application of interior decorating principles, tailored to the family's needs and a suitable selection of room surfaces and home furnishings. The room above has panelled walls, decorative mobiles at the windows, an acoustical ceiling with recessed lighting and carpeted floor.

Modernizing a basement into a recreation room is an activity that occupies thousands of families every year. And while the thought of such a large scale home improvement project might still paralyze a few woudl-be home handymen, others will be cheered by this advice from a national design consultant.

"Ingenuity is not as important as it has been in the past," says John Concord, home improvement consultant for Masonite Corporation. "The amateur can do a first-class job with the modern building materials available today, largely because new techniques for applying these materials have been greatly simplified."

The challenge, Concord believes, is in building a family recreation room that will be a source of pleasure to every member of the family. This is chiefly a matter of planning and good taste in the selection of the room's six sides — floor, ceiling and the four walls.

WHAT WILL separate the outstanding recreation room from the so-so variety is selection of furnishings, wall hangings and what decorators call "eyewash." Carpets, walls and ceiling treatment may be first class, but dressing the room with attic discards normally results in an unsatisfactory arrangement.

For the family that prefers to use its own imagination, rather than rely on professional services, Concord recommends that a good library textbook on home decorating will spell out the fundamentals.

A good starting point for a basement recreation room is selection of an attractive, durable and easy-to-maintain wall covering to go up over stark concrete. Many new textured and woodgrain hardboard wall panels offer owners a better-than-ever selection of materials, he says.

TO AVOID monotony, Concord recommends avoiding use of the same paneling on all four walls.

"Think in terms of accents," he suggests. "A woodgrain paneling is more striking when contrasted with a textured surface on an accent wall: for example, a shale white paneling with rough finish that resembles barnboard."

The remodeling will give the home owner an opportunity to create a dramatic ceiling effect. Basement remodeling projects, in particular, are more successful when finished with an acoustical ceiling, and home owners should investigate advantages to be gained from recessed lighting fixtures.

Sealing Air In Glass Helps

An insulating layer of air sealed between two sheets of glass works miracles. If you've ever put in, taken out, painted and washed storm windows and doors, you'll agree.

It's the air sealed between the window panes that insulates modern double-glazed windows. You can't see it — you can't even tell there are two layers of glass unless you look closely at the edges.

But that thin loyer of dead air works wonders: it keeps heat in the house in winter and out in summer.

IT ELIMINATES the need for storm windows, which did the same job in a most unwieldy way.

There are other big fashioned windows and modern wood window units.

All quality windows of ponderosa pine are weather-stripped at the factory to reduce heat loss and to keep out wind and dust. They are preservative treated to protect against weather abuse.

Precision-made hardware makes the windows easy to close tight and to open easily.

When warm air in a house hits cold glass or metal, the moisture in the air condenses, fogs up the windows, and often drips down onto walls and draperies. When double glazing, with its sealed-in insulating air, is used, the inside surface of the glass remains warm; moisture stays in the room air and helps keep you comfortable.

When double-glazed windows are made of wood, the problem of damaging condensation and dripping is avoided.

IT'S THE WOOD sash in factory-made ponderosa pine windows that provide the final touch in comfort, because wood is an excellent insulating material. It keeps heat in the house and it stays warm to the touch.

Since metal is a fast heat conductor, it does just the opposite. When heat escapes through window panes and sash, it's not only uncomfortable, it's downright expensive. Ponderosa pine windows and doors with insulating glass, now available in all styles and sizes, make it possible to open up a house to the light and beauty of the great outdoors.

Raise Fence For Mowing

You don't have to cope with a hay crop near your fence if you keep the bottom of the fence about a foot or more above ground.

This can easily be done by using horizontal lengths of chain along the bottom row of any type of fencing, including chain link, wood or metal. Your power mower can easily pass beneath the bottom strand of chain and do a clean cutting job along the entire length of your fencing. This saves hand-clipping and trimming.

IN BUILDING a new fence in this manner you actually gain more fencing height by using chain lengths at the bottom. You also achieve greater privacy.

If a simple effective barrier, rather than privacy, is your objective, you'll fine it easy to construct fencing made entirely of strands of chain hung between wooden or metal posts.

Lumber Standards Set For U.S. Builders

For builders and home craftsmen, the new rules promise more efficient sizes of lumber, a uniform grading system across the country and more informative marking.

The new standard for softwood lumber — of which some 34 billion board feet is consumed annually — is the result of two years' development by home builders, architects, engineers, manufacturers and other groups.

The U.S. Bureau of Standards and Forest Products Laboratory reviewed the standard and new grading rules which it requires. Widths and thicknesses of lumber will change slightly in coming months.

"NEW SIZES will be related to moisture content," explained Wendell B. Barnes, executive vice president of Western Wood Products Assn., Portland, Ore., largest lumber grading group with 40 per cent of U.S. output.

"Unseasoned lumber widths were left unchanged, with minor exceptions," he stated.

"Framing lumber thicknesses will coincide with the increasing quantities of one-and-a-half inch dry that has gone into construction in recent years," the lumber official noted. "Dry board thickness was set at three-quarter inch, which builders say is an easier fraction to work with.

"Saving in raw material and shipping costs could run as high as $150 on the average house," Barnes estimated.

FRAMING lumber will end up the same size in use, whether it was dried at the mill or shipped unseasoned. Either way, the mill will have to cut the same size from the log.

Each producer will stamp his lumber "S-DRY" or "S-GRN" to tell the buyer its condition when it was surfaced. Any one grade will look the same, whether the lumber comes from West, South or East, because it will be sorted by the same restrictions, on knots for example.

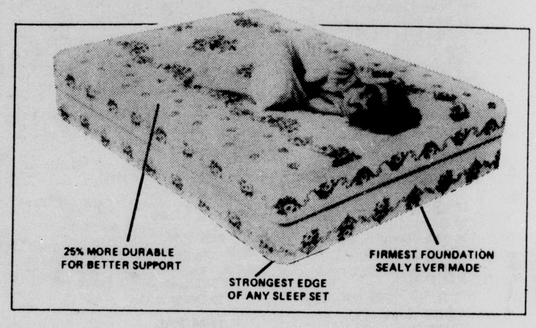
Tonight could be the last night you'll sleep on an ordinary mattress

Sealy has something better. New Posturepedic Sleep System.*



Designed in cooperation with leading orthopedic surgeons for total comfort... and total support that promises no morning backache from sleeping on a too-soft mattress. This comfortably firm design starts with deep-quilted layers of luxury cushioning for a pampering surface. Underneath, special high-resiliency coils support you firmly. But Posturepedic is more than just a mattress.

...Posture-Grid foundation for total firmness
This Sealy improvement completes the Sleep System. It uses modern torsion bars—a better base for the mattress than an ordinary box spring. Much firmer. More durable. A totally sag-proof edge. The "feel" is so wonderfully different we invite you to try Posturepedic for 30 nights...if you're not 100% satisfied return it—no obligation.

Still only $89.95
Ea. pc., full or twin size

Also Available in Queen & King Size

20TH ANNIVERSARY

Jack Benny Switched To TV In Days When Stars Were Wary

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jack Benny was the biggest name in radio 20 years ago when he jumped into the unknown waters of television.

He surfaced smelling like a million dollars.

In an historic video first, Benny walked before the cameras and with elaborate egotism said, "I'd give a million dollars to know what I look like."

Benny will celebrate his 20th anniversary on the tube Nov. 16, and well he should. He pioneered the way for Bob Hope, Red Skelton and other radio stars who were as chary of television as John Gilbert had been of talking pictures.

"I wasn't the first radio personality to go into TV," Benny said agreeably. "George Burns and Gracie Allen were the ones to break the ice.

"Of course, television had developed some of its own stars — Milton Berle and Sid Caesar. But radio stars didn't like the new medium, and movie stars wouldn't get near it for anything.

"I WASN'T afraid because my stage experience prepared me for facing an audience who could see me."

Jack's first show was 45 minutes long. He thought a half hour was too short and an hour was too long.

"My first guest was Dinah Shore," Benny recalled, "and she'll be back with me for my anniversary show."

So will half of Hollywood. Benny has enlisted his old radio gang, Rochester, Dennis Day, Don Wilson and Mel Blanc with Cameo shots by Bob Hope, Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Skelton, Burns and Dinah.

Additionally he has included film clips of 48 major guests who appeared on his television shows — among them Marilyn Monroe, Harry S. Truman, Gary Cooper and Humphrey Bogart.

JACK BENNY
Ageless fiddler

"IT'S going to be a great show," Benny said with the enthusiasm of a newcomer.

"Jack isn't really 39 years old," said writer Hugh Wedlock who has been writing for Benny 35 years. "He's much younger than that."

Perhaps the nicest surprise on Benny's show will be the appearance of his wife, Mary Livingstone, who hasn't been seen on the tube with her husband in 14 years.

"I had to convince her to do the show," Jack said, gesticulating with his hands. "After it was over, she said never again. She's not really interested in a career. But Mary looks better now than she ever did, and she hasn't lost that great delivery of hers."

Benny, unlike his wife, has a compulsion to perform.

"Let me put it this way," he said. "If another new medium came along now — one as revolutionary as television — I would want to get into it, even at my age.

"Oh, forget about that last part," Jack concluded. "About the age, I mean."

NATALIE WOOD and Robert Redford star in "This Property Is Condemned," a dramatic story of a small-town Southern beauty who thirsts for freedom. The movie will be presented Thursday at 9 p.m. on Channel 5.

CERF RATES JOHN O'HARA

"It is my personal opinion hat John O'Hara in his lifeme was the most unappreiated author in American litrary history. I think he beongs on top, along with such ontemporaries as William aulkner, Ernest Hemingway nd Scott Fitzgerald.
